Saved His Life.

In a stairway on a Woodward avenue Monday sat a man who looked the picture of sadness, and every now and then he pulled out a red handkerchief with many holes and rents in it, and wiped tears from his eyes. By and by a pedestrian halted and asked:
"Say, stranger, what ails you?"
"Oh, I danno. I guess I feel sad."

"You shouldn't feel sad on New Year's Day. It's the day on which to brace up and swear off."

"That's just the point!" replied the man, as he brought out the handkerchief. "I haven't anything to swear off from."

"Don't you drink?"

"Not a drop."

"Nor smoke, nor chew?"

"Neither one; nor do I swear, gamble, bet nor lie."

"Well you must be a pretty good man."

"Oh! I am—I am! I'm too good. The rest of you can resolve to-day not to rob or steal again. You can swear off on whisky and tobacco and lay plans of economy, but I've got to plod right along in the old track."

"Can't you think of one single point for reformation?"

"Not a point—not a one. I've sat here for a whole hour trying to find one single weakness, but I can't do it. Stranger, it makes me sad, and you must excuse these tears. When I realize that I am so all-fired good I am half inclined to commit suicide."

"I'll tell you of a point, old man."

"Will you? Thanks! thanks! What is it?"

"Why don't you resolve to get your hair cut, wash your face, clean out your nails, and put on a clean shirt?"

"Why don't I? I will! Thank Heaven, there is a show for me after all! I'm not as good as I thought I was. Yes, sir I'll do it. Shake with me! You have probably saved my life, and my gratitude is unbounded."

And then he cried some more, but they were tears of joy.
