Sexagessima Sunday-morning prayer and sermon by the Rector from St. Matthew's gospel V. 38 39.

"Ye have heard that it hath been said An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.

But I say unto you, that ve resist not evil; but whosever shall smite thee on thy right check turn to him the other

Every truth which was uttered by our Dord in reference to some literal outward action, is found on examination, to be the foundation of some great noral law.

While the words of the text refer to the duty of a christian under one special circumstance, they lay down a certain principle which should mark his course his relation to men.

But it has been a hard matter for hristian people in general to uco the obligation which Christ laid on us when he said whoseever shall smite thee on the right cheek turn to him the other also. From a heavenly stand-point the command is right and obligatory on all hristians, WAR それた
