J. N. Foscue, Esq., of Polloksville, is in the city with pork for sale. This is the right sort of farming. Make pork and cotton both to sell: when cotton is low and pork high, sell the pork; if pork is low and cotton high, sell the cotton.

Quarantine.

At the regular meeting of our city councilmen on Tuesday night an ordinance was adopted placing Trenton and vicinity under quarantine during the existence of small-pox. This is no doubt the result of the many rumours in the city vesterday that this disease was spreading to the country frm Trenton, but we learn from a private letter from there yesterday evening that the reports are unfounded. There was no new case up to yesterday morning. Our city authorities will certainly raise the quarantine as soon as they consider it safe to do so, and in the mean time the city stands ready to render any assistance the affiicted people of our sister town may ask for.
