THE JOURNAL.

NEW BERN, N. C., MARCH 20, 1883

Putting it off Because She had Nothing to Put on.

Susie Washington, of Louisville, Ky., was engaged to young Barret, of the firm of Grinn & Barret. He had to, after she told him on the eve of their wedding that she did not intend to marry him, but that she loved and would wed instead Mr Wigfield, of Chicago.

Next day he returned to the young lady's house when Miss Washington was not at home. Left alone in the house, through the open door of the love's chamber he saw lying on the bed the bridal outfit. Rolling up the things in a large bundle he took them away with him. When Miss Washington returned, she found the things gone, and, on learning from the servant who had been there, at once suspected what had become of them.

After crying awhile from mortification, she determined to have him arrested for stealing. She started out for a policeman and told him about the affair. A warrant was sworn out for Barret's arrest, but that individual had got out of the city. Miss Washington, heart-broken at her loss, postponed her wedding with the Chicago man on the plea of "nothing to wear."

Lincoln and the Quakeress. "Great thoughts come from the heart," said a French philosopher. He might have added, "and are expressed in few and fitting words."

No American ever so truly illustrated this apothegm as did Mr. Lincoln in his speech at Gettysburg. He had the art of making a perfect speech in few words. Another speech of his also illustrates his wonderful art.

During the war Mrs. Gurney, an eminent Quakeress, sought an interview with Mr. Lincoln in order to animate his spirit by exhortation and prayer. One rainy Sunday morning she, in company with three friends, saw the President in his private room at the White House.

In a short address she assured him of the sympathy which she and the friends felt for the burden-bearing Executive. She then knelt in fervent prayer for him and the country.

As Mrs. Gurney was leaving, the President took her hand, and holding it for a few moments in silence said, "I am glad of this interview. In the very responsible situation in which I am placed, as an humble instrument in the hands of my Heavenly Father, I have desired that all my words and actions may be in accordance with His will; but if after endeavoring to do my best with the light which He affords me, I find my efforts fail, then I must believe that for some purpose unknown to me He wills it otherwise."

"If I had had my way, this war would never have been, but nevertheless it came. If I had had my way, the war would have ended before this; but nevertheless it still continues."

"We must conclude that He permits it for some wise purpose, though we may not be able to comprehend it. For we cannot but believe that He who made the world still governs it."
