Cool again yesterday.

Mr. J. L. Rhem left yesterday for his Florida farm.

Strawberries were offered at five cents per quart yesterday.

The prospects are bright for a good shipment of beans to-morrow.

Mrs. Susan Stanly has an excellent cleansing fluid which she sells cheap.

Our market is now well supplied with turnips and cabbage of good quality.

The steamer Defiance arrived from Baltimore yesterday with general merchandise.

The schooner Varina, Capt. Frank Bell, arrived from Sladesville yesterday with a cargo of corn and beef cattle.

Messrs. H. R. Bryan, George H. Roberts and Maj. John Hughes are attending the Episcopal Convention at Charlotte.

The steamer Tiger Lily was towed around from the railroad wharf to the Oliver wharf yesterday by the steamer Cutler.

J. C. Whitty has a combination hoe, or at least a combination handle, which can be used with a hoe, rake, fork, weeding hoe, hilling hoe, etc.

The new hose for the Fire Companies was tested yesterday by the Atlantic Company and proved satisfactory. It stood the test of 145 pounds to the square inch and the couplings are pronounced to be the best the companies have ever had.

Capt. John T. Patrick, General State Immigration Agent for North Carolina, will visit Kinston on the 26th, New Berne on the 28th and Beaufort on the 29th of May to confer with the farmers and land owners as to their wants, either to sell land or to secure tenants or laborers.

Mr. Dobson Heard From.

News was received yesterday that a man answering to the description of John Dobson, passed there going in the direction of Morehead City. Parties went down last night to loook after him.

Took the Belt.

George A. Oliver, Cotton Broker, took the belt yesterday at the Exchange in the matter of sales. He sold the largest lot of any seller and says he is satisfied that his apartment was unexcelled as he had eight different prices in a line of a little less than fifty bales.

Cotton Gone.

The cotton yard is nearer naked than it has been since it was built. The sales for this week have reached the exact number of bales that was sold in the whole month of May last year.

The demand seems to keep pace with the supply, and a very fair price is obtained for all offered.

A Poet Wants a Wife.

Emanuel Pace, the janitor at the office of the A. & N. C. R. R. Co. has turned poet and wants a wife. Hear him:

I wish I had a little wife,
And a little stor-er,
I'd hug her like a lump of gold
And let no one come near her.

Change in Schedule.

A slight change will be made in the schedule on the A. & N. C. Railroad this evening. The train will leave Goldsboro at 6.10 p. m. as before, will stop at Kinston five minutes longer, arrive at New Berne and Morehead five minutes later. Returning, will leave Morehead thirty minutes earlier and arrive at New Berne and Goldsboro thirty minutes earlier.

Festival and Concert.

The Ladies' Memorial Association have completed arrangements for a festival and concert at the Theatre next Tuesday night for the purpose of aiding the Monument fund. The fact that it is to be conducted by the Association is a sufficient guarantee of a first class entertainment, and the object in view should enlist the support of all good citizens.

Commission House.

We call attention to the advertisement of A. F. Young & Co., commission merchants of New York, who solicit consignments of beans, Irish potatoes or other vegetables. We have evidence of the good credit of this firm and can safely recommend shippers to give it a trial. They have no agents here. Stencils can be had at the JOURNAL office.

Cotton Market.

New York futures barely steady; spots nominal. New Berne market steady. Sales of 82 bales, 9.66¼ the highest price paid.

NEW YORK MARKET, SPOT:
Middling 11.
Strict low middling 10 13-16.
Low middling 10 1-2.

NEW YORK FUTURES:

The A. & N. C. R. R.

On a trip up to Kinston a few days ago we noticed a good many cross ties were being distributed along the line, and there were also several car loads at the depot yesterday, and the Secretary and Treasurer has advertised for 60,000 more to be delivered immediately. Col. Whitford has gone vigorously to work to put the road in condition for the summer travel, which is expected to be large this season. There is not a better piece of property in North Carolina than the A. & N. C. R. R. would be if properly managed. The business of the country, which is the basis for operating a railroad, has actually outgrown the capacity of the road.

Oyster Raising.

We give below some extracts from the Charleston News and Courier in regard to oyster planting. If the theory advanced is a good one it would be well for our oyster men next winter to take back a cargo of shell occasionally and plant them:

New Orleans has discovered a new thing to do with its oyster shells, which is to plant them for the production of more oysters. It is now found that bedding them out in oyster waters stimulates production.

Here is something about the oysters that may be taken as a hint by many of our readers in localities on the Sound where the oyster is becoming very scarce. Farming the sea is very much like cultivating the land. It does not answer to take all and give nothing. The oyster growers on the English and French coasts have discovered that they must change their system or exhaust their fisheries. It is found that shells thrown back into the sea produce thirty or forty fold in oysters in two years. Next July and August many ship-loads of oyster shells will be scattered over suitable places for oyster beds, and over the empty shells will be dropped a few live oysters. Within two years each shell is expected to have from thirty to forty young oysters attached to it.

Excursion to La Grange.

An excursion train will be run, under the management of the Board of Trustees of La Grange Academy, from New Berne to La Grange on Thursday 31st of May. On that day, Hon. A. S. Merrimon, of Raleigh, will deliver the annual literary address before the students of La Grange Academy. A large number will doubtless go up from here and Kinston to hear Judge Merrimon.

Special train will leave New Berne at 7.30 a. m. and arrive at La Grange at 10.15 a. m. Holders of tickets can return on special train which leaves La Grange at —— p. m., or on regular passenger train which passes La Grange at 7 o'clock p. m.; or remain over to the annual concert at night and return on freight and passenger train leaving La Grange at 8 o'clock Friday morning It will be seen that excursionists can return on either of these trains.

We hope many of our citizens will avail themselves of this opportunity of visiting the thriving town of La Grange and hearing the distinguished and eloquent Merrimon.

Fare from New Berne to La Grange $1.00

Thanks.

ED. JOURNAL:—Please allow me space in your paper to return thanks to the citizens of New Berne for donations to aid a few devoted christians in building a house of worship at Swan Quarter. I wish to make special mention of Messrs. Geo. Allen, P. M. Draney, Asa Jones, W. P. Burrus, W. Pell Ballance, L. H. Cutler, John Suter and U. S. Mace, and hope the people of Hyde county will remember them when they have business in New Berne. Respectfully,

T. W. HARRIS.

Beech Grove Picnic.

The annual picnic of Beech Grove Sunday-school left New Berne Tuesday morning at 5:30 a. m. on the fast-sailing steamer Trent, in charge of Messrs. W. P. Richardson and J. J. Spier, two of the most gentlemanly young men it has ever been our good fortune to meet. There was quite a crowd of invited guests from the city of Elms. After a pleasant run of two hours we arrived at Stowe's Ferry, where we found Beech Grove Sunday-school waiting for us. At the head of the happy group was Mr. Daniel Lane, the efficient Superintendent. After taking the school on board we again steamed up the noble Neuse. On account of low water it was deemed advisable to stop in Contentnea Creek, a few hundred yards below Jolly Old Field, where we met Capt. J. M. Hargett. Through the kindness of this gentleman in the loan of flats and boats we were all transported safely to Jolly Old Field, where we were greeted by a large crowd from Pitt and adjoining counties. Prof. Allen, of Centerville Academy, delivered in well chosen language an address of welcome. About 1 o'clock we all did justice to as nice a dinner as was ever spread on a picnic ground. Mr. W. P. Richardson, after returning thanks in behalf of Beach Grove Sunday School for the hearty welcome we had received, announced that it was time for us to return to the steamer. Rev. Nathan Hooker and Rev. Mr. McCullen, of Craven Circuit, were along, doing all in their power to make us happy and we all had a most delightful time. We arrived without accident, thanks to the efficient captain of the steamer and officers in charge, at about 8 o'clock p. m.

We, the invited guests from New Berne, return our many thanks to the members of Beech Grove Sunday School for their kind efforts in our behalf and assure them that if ever we get the chance we will "come agin." E.

Tuscarora Items.

Mrs. Abner Weatherington, of this place, has recently lost her eye sight.

Farm work is going ahead since the heavy rains. Cotton and corn is up and looking well.

Our citizens are a generous hearted and industrious people. We have no idlers killing snakes to itemize after, which makes our items short and dull.

We had the pleasure of attending the closing exercises of Elder W. H. Slaughter's school last Friday at Core Creek. The students took the examination splendid. We heard some as good dialogues as ever fell from the lips of any school girls. We would be glad to give their names, but we being a stranger there debars us from doing so. Everything passed off splendidly. Then all were invited to a dinner which the good people of Core Creek had prepared for the purpose. Over two hundred people ate and there was a plenty left. Candy was handed around to all. Everybody appeared to be in the bloom of youth. The day was enjoyed by both old and young. Late in the evening all returned home with hearts full of glee, and we hope the parents will press upon the youthful minds the lessons taught them by Elder Slaughter.

Literary Gossip.

From the editor Joseph Shillington, Esq., Washington, D. C., we have received the first number of Col. Wheeler's "Reminiscences and Memoirs of North Carolina and Eminent North Carolinians," which will be issued monthly in four parts, price one dollar each. It is handsomely gotten up on excellent paper, ready for binding when all four parts shall be out. Every man in North Carolina, who inspires to prominence, should have a copy and know the part of our grand old State.

Houghton Mifflin & Co. send "But yet a Woman," by Arthur Sherburne Hardy, not the English novelist, but a young American author who has in this book made his first venture as a novelist. The scene is laid mostly in Paris and the book is more remarkable for its delineations of character than for dramatic acton or delicacy of plot. A young girl knowing nothing of life, its joys or its sorrows, its dangers or its trials, desires to enter a convent but fortunately falls in love before she takes the vows and becomes the wife of a young physician instead of the Bride of the Church. But there is another, a woman of the world who has lived and suffered who seeks this retreat and one of the finest descriptions in the book is that of the ceremony of her taking the veil. It is too long to give entire and too perfect to be handed out in fragments. But the description of Father Le Blanc's charity is a gem that we can appreciate even deprived of its setting.

Father Le Blanc had a profound belief in human agencies. He loved to play the ministering angel, for his heart was a well of sympathy. There was even a latent chiding of Providence at the bottom of this well sometimes, when the sight of the poor and the suffering stirred its depths with pity for those lonely wayfarers who, neglected by this world, seem forgotten also of God. This was but one of those many themes which this mind, at once simple, honest, and profound, turned over and over reflectively, never seeing its one aspect except as on the way to the other. "The difficulty does not lie in believing the truths of the Church," he once said, "but in those other things which we must believe also." Or again, "Belief is an edifice never completed, because we do not yet comprehend its plan, and every day some workman brings a new stone from the quarry." So that while Father Le Blanc was very devout, he was not a devotee. He flavored his religious belief with the salt of a good sense, against which he endeavored to be on his guard, as he was even against his charity and compassion. The vision of Milton's fallen Spirit, beating its wings vainly in a non-resisting air, drew from his heart a profound sigh.

So, too, is the description of a vesper service of which the author says at the close

"Break your theological rocks, O ritual-hating brother, on the King's highway, and worship Him after your own fashion. For every way-faring heart over-fed upon these symbols, you shall show us one starved on your formulas. Not only for thy weaker brother, to whom God has not given the brains of the doctors in the Temple, shall these vaults of stone be the very arches of heaven; not only for the frailer sister, in the keeping of whose warm heart God has placed the sacred things of this life, shall the incense of this swinging censer be the very fragrance of celestial fields; but unto many of thine own dignity, also, shall this star above the altar be the very star of Bethlehem."

For sale by Mrs. Susan Stanly, price $1.25.
