THE JOURNAL.
NEW BERNE, N. C., JULY 26, 1883.

Instructions for Willie Jones.
"Pa," asked Willie Jones, as he was studying his history lesson, "who was Helen of Troy?"
"Ask your ma," said Mr. Jones, who was not up in classic lore.

"Helen of Troy," said Mrs. Jones, who was sewing a new heel on the baby's shoe, "was a girl who used to live with us; she came from Troy, N. Y., and we found her in an intelligence office. She was the best girl I ever had before your father struck Bridget."

"Did pa ever strike Bridget?" asked Willie, pricking up his ears.
"I was speaking paregorically," said Mrs. Jones.
There was silence for a few moments; then Willie came to another epoch in history.

"Ma, who was Marc Antony?"
"An old colored man who lived with my pa. What does it say about him there?"
"It says his wife's name was Cleopatra."

"The very name! Old Cleo used to wash for us. It's strange how they come to be in that book."
"History repeats itself," murmured Jones, vaguely, while Willie looked at his ma with wonder and admiration that one small head could carry all she knew. Presently he found another question to ask.

"Say, ma, who was Julius Caesar?"
"Oh, he was one of the pagans of history," said Mrs. Jones, trying to thread the point of her needle.
"But what made him famous?" persisted Willie.

"Everything," answered Mr. Jones complacently; "he was the one who said 'Eat, thou brute,' when his horse wouldn't take its oats. He dressed in a sheet and pillow-case uniform, and when his enemies surrounded him he shouted, 'Gimme liberty or gimme death,' and ran away."

"Bully for him!" remarked Willie, shutting up the book of history.
"But say, ma, how came you to know so much?"
"I learned it at school," said Mrs. Jones, with an oblique glance at Mr. Jones, who was listening as grave as a statue. "I had superior advantages, and I paid attention and remembered what I heard."

"Well, I say, ma, who was Horace?"
"Your pa will tell you about him; I am tired," said Mrs. Jones.
Then she listened with pride and approval while Mr. Jones informed his son that Horace was the author of the "Tin Trumpet" and a rare work on farming, and the people's choice for a president, and only composed Latin verses to pass away the time and amuse himself.—Detroit Post.
