LOCAL NEWS.

Journal's Circulation.
Sun rises, 5:27; Length of day, 13 hours, 6 minutes, 30 seconds; Moon rises at 11:44 p. m.

C. C. Daniels, of the Kinston Free Press, was in the city yesterday.

Rev. C. A. Jenkins has received a call from the Baptist Church in this city.

Mr. John S. Palmer and mother left on the Shenandoah yesterday for Syracuse, N. Y.

R. A. Richardson returned yesterday on the Shenandoah, having spent a month in Virginia.

The steamer Experiment sailed yesterday for Baltimore with a cargo of naval stores, lumber, etc.

The improvements to the old market house that are being made by J. W. Moore, Esq., will add greatly to the appearance of that portion of the city if the paint brush is to follow the work.

Mrs. Rosselle, who has been spending several weeks in this city and Beaufort, left for her home in Florida yesterday morning. She was accompanied a part of the journey by her sister, Miss Mamie Ellis, of this city.

Sheriff Jones, of Carteret, was in the city yesterday. He feels confident that Carteret will hold the county line run by Guthrie, and we are equally as confident that if she does a portion of Craven's debt will go with the cut off territory.

Our Pamlico mail carrier has been frightened by some fellow over the river who has threatened to waylay and beat him. He says he is going to apply to the U. S. Marshall for a guard to go along with him or arrest the desperado.

For Boston.

A large lot of sea oats were brought up on the freight train yesterday from Morehead City for Mr. Geo. Allen who is preparing them for the Boston Exposition. Mr. Allen is to be commended for the zeal he displays in all enterprises that are likely to advance the agricultural interest of his State. He shows a genuine State pride that is worthy of imitation. Would that we had many more such.

Passengers on Shenandoah.

Misses Hattie Harrison and Prudie Henderson for Boston.

Mr. H. B. Duffy, of the firm of Duffy & Ives, North for goods, lingering around Norfolk as he passes on.

S. G. Roberts, of the firm of Roberts & Bro., North for goods.

Geo. W. Smith, of Silver Dale, Onslow county, North for goods.

James Southgate and lady, of Durham.

The State Fair.

We have received the premium list of the next State Fair which is to be held at Raleigh on the 15, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20th of October next. Over $4,000 in premiums have been offered, and as the railroads in the State will carry articles for exhibition free of charge we hope to see Eastern North Carolina well represented.

The premium offered for the largest yield of cotton per acre from five acres is $50, $30, and $20, a 450 pound bale to be exhibited in each case. For the largest yield of corn from five acres, one bushel to be exhibited, $30, $20 and $10. Required statements and certificates to be furnished.

The Fruit Fair.

Our Wilmington exchanges, the Star and Review pronounce the Fruit Fair a grand success, "far beyond the most sanguine expectations of its warmest friends." The Star says:

"Our western friends are particularly jubilant in their expressions of surprise and gratification that North Carolina should be able to get up such a creditable exhibition. Prof. Linsback, of Salem, said to us yesterday that it was a splendid success. Another gentleman said it surpassed the exhibition at Greensboro; and a gentleman and lady on their way South from a Northern trip, and who stopped over here among friends, say they visited a fruit exhibition at Montreal, Canada, recently, and that this far surpassed it."

We must get even with Wilmington some way. Until something better can offer we insist on having a fish exhibit. The fish dealers of New Berne and Beaufort must organize an association and have a Fair. In the event they do such a thing we appoint our Swannboro correspondent a special agent to bring over one of his finest fish to exhibit here. We give us pleasure to clip the following item from the Star:

"On the 20th Capt. S. W. Nobles, of this county, has a splendid display of trout, salmon and perch. His exhibit of trout is especially creditable, there being several of forty different varieties, and in an attractive style.

On the 21st, when we came to see you, we will be in proper time, and we shall expect to find some of the juice of the fish crop.

Dr. Fritchard Accepts.

Our Baptist friends will be glad to learn that Rev. T. H. Fritchard, formerly of this State, but now of Louisville, Kentucky, has accepted the call to the pastorate of the First Baptist Church of this city, recently extended to him. In his letter of acceptance, received yesterday by Mr. J. W. Collins, he stated that he expected to be able to assume charge of the church by the 1st of the coming November.—W. L. Star.

Explanation.

Mrs. Susan E. Price called to see us yesterday to make a statement in regard to the item in the JOURNAL yesterday which stated that Mrs. Munter pulled a lady into her store and searched her. She states that she was the lady referred to, and that she had been assisting Mrs. Munter in the store during the day; that Mrs. Munter did invite her into the store late that evening and did lock the door, but no attempt was made by Mrs. Munter to search her. The report that Mrs. Munter had her in the store for the purpose of doing violence to her person was simply an imagination, as Mrs. Munter closed her door for the purpose of keeping out customers while she was engaged with her.

Quid Pro Quo.

When the news reached Tarboro Monday that ex-Gov. Holden had left the Republican party, Postmaster Williamson, Stalwart Republican, sent Ed. Bynum, Bourbon Democrat, both good friends, who twist each other occasionally, a note which read about like this: For President 1884—Benj. F. Butler, of Massachusetts.

Vice-Pres.—W. W. Holden, of N. C. How do you like the above? W. An answer wasn't long in coming back. It was this:

I suggest for standard bearer of Grand Old Party 1884.

Fort Pillow Chalmers, of Mississippi, for President, and J. Madison Leach, of N. C., for Vice-President. BYNUM.

Our informant tells us that Mr. Williamson took the "grins."—Southern.

Fine Stock.

Mr. Anthony Davis and lady, of Pink Hill, Lenoir county, returned on Friday morning from a visit to Northampton county, Virginia, bringing with them two fine calves, Jersey stock. Mr. Davis may be justly called the model farmer of Pink Hill. Though owning one of the best farms in the township, he has always stuck to the old plan of making his living at home and boarding at the same place. What we mean in this: he does not have to send west for his meat and bread, but makes it at home. He takes a pride in raising stock and poultry, and this accounts for the high state of cultivation in which his farm is in to-day.

Mr. Davis has taken this trip to Virginia and Maryland for a little recreation. He visited Read's wharf, stopping with Messrs. L. S. Read and Geo. H. Read. He is unstinted in his praise of his hosts for the royal manner in which he was treated; was very much pleased with the country and the people, many of whom he met and formed their acquaintance. He also speaks in very complimentary terms of Messrs. James and Charles Mitchell, of Baltimore, with whom he stopped while in that city.

The calves were purchased of Mr. James Clarke who lives in the city of Baltimore but owns a farm at Woolbrook. One of them is from a cow that stands registered fifteen pounds of butter per week, and has made seventeen pounds. Mr. Clarke has refused five hundred dollars for her. Good stock and a plenty to feed them on will make any country rich.

Political Troubles.

Gentlemen here from Norfolk Tuesday say that there is great trouble in the Mahometts camp there. At the recent organization of the Mahometts committee there, the Democratic element was entirely ignored by order of Collector Brady, who runs the machine in that district. That element is of course on its ear, and has prepared a petition, to be presented to the General on his return from the North, praying him to protect their interests and see that they are not swallowed up by the Republican element. The object of Collector Brady in making the Democratic element subservient to the Republican element is said to be his desire to strengthen himself with the National Republican party, so as to make a favorable impression at the next National Republican Convention, and to provide for himself in the event of the General's union with the party, which Republicans as well as Democrats now look upon as almost certain.—Wash. Letter to Alexandria Gazette.

A heavy wind, followed by rain yesterday evening, cooled the atmosphere, greatly to the relief of suffering humanity.

The Steamer Trent.

Hearing that Mr. J. J. Howard had recently made a visit to Jones county, going up Trent river, a JOURNAL reporter sought him for an interview with the following result:

"I understand, Mr. Howard, you have made a trip up Trent river recently."

"Yes, I went on the boat to Trenton and from there out to Cypress creek, stopping at Mr. A. Gooding's."

"What do you think of Trent river as a navigable stream?"

"It is a nice little stream; rather crooked in some places."

"What boat were you on?"

"The Trent."

"What do you think of the Trent?"

"The Trent, sir, is a good boat. She makes those short bends in Trent river much better than I thought she could."

"Do you think it a suitable boat for Trent river work?"

"You might build fifty boats and not get a better one. In fact, I don't think a boat of that size can be built that would work better. Capt. Smith certainly knows how to manage her."

"How do you like her machinery?"

"It is very good; she has a nice engine."

"You are a ship builder, are you not?"

"Yes, and have been for forty years."

"Do you own any interest in the Trent?"

"None at all."

We sought this interview with Mr. Howard as we had just made a trip down the river on the Trent a few days before when the water was at low mark, and we were anxious to know, as he is an old ship builder, if he was favorably impressed with the Trent as we were.

STATE NEWS.

gleaned from our Exchanges.

Wilmington Star: Mr. Patrick Flynn, long a faithful and industrious employe of the city, died yesterday. He was quite old.—A rattlesnake, measuring four feet six inches in length and six inches in circumference and having three rattles, was shot on the premises of Mr. Edward Coston, near Long Creek, Pender county, on the 18th inst. Mrs. C., who first discovered the serpent and was naturally very much excited, raised an alarm which called a neighboring gentleman to her assistance, with the above result.

Durham Recorder: The fine seasons the past week have wonderfully improved the crops in this section. The drought had, however, damaged the crops greatly which will make it impossible for more than half a crop to be produced.—In the Breach of Promise suit last week brought by Miss Lucy Glenn against B. W. Barbee for $5,000 damages, there was a mistrial. The jury seemed to disagree variously. The case was novel to our people and the court room was crowded with spectators during the whole trial, which consumed something more than a day.

Durham Tobacco Plant: On Saturday last Alvis Hopson, of Cedar Fork, was arraigned on a charge of larceny. A preliminary hearing was had before a justice and Hopson bound over to court. He traversed the town endeavoring to get some one to go his bail. Finally Paul A. Brown, the officer in charge, started with him to jail. The defendant asked the privilege of taking his horse with him. When near the Halliburton corner, Hopson put spurs to his horse and endeavored to make good his escape. Brown followed close after, firing on him all the while. He was finally persuaded to stop and brought back. On Monday he gave bond and left for his home.

Greensboro Patriot: Sweet potatoes of fair size are offering at forty cents a peck.—Greensboro Female College opened this morning with thirty-nine boarders, and every train brings from two to twenty.—At the State fish ponds there are thousands of carp, enough, Commissioner Worth thinks, to supply all demands. When cold weather comes the ponds will be drawn off and the fish taken for shipment to all parts of the State. The desire to have carp ponds does not abate, but on the contrary increases. There are now over 1,200 such ponds in the State, and the number grows greater each month. Out of the fish hatchery, which is but little over a mile from Raleigh, may be seen carp, white fish, Japan fish, etc.

Elizabeth City Economist: The negroes have a scheme it is said to make South Carolina a point for colonization in large numbers, so as to get entire control of that State and make it a black State, with an entire colored delegation in Congress.—We interviewed old John McMorine (colored) yesterday. He is, from authentic records and facts, 93 years old, and aint ready to die yet. His faculties are well preserved. He knew Betsy Town when it was a forest, and when it all belonged to Mrs. Betsy Toolley.

C. W. Cason, a prominent merchant of Edenton, died in that place on Wednesday morning last after much suffering, in the 40th year of his age.—Trim White, colored, of Perquimans, charged with arson in burning the dwelling house of Nelson Felton, is in jail awaiting trial.

Tarboro Southerner: Col. J. E. Lindsey, of Rocky Mount, dropped dead in a store on Tuesday morning, from paralysis of the heart. His death will be generally regretted. He was a gentleman of large means and a prominent politician in Nash county. His latest public service was in the legislature of 1881.—Passengers from Nags Head last Saturday had a novel experience on North Carolina waters. On the steamer Shenandoah, commanded by Capt. Southgate, were several ladies of color. For their meals separate accommodations had been prepared, which at supper time they declined, and went to the general table in the Main Saloon. Our informant states that one of the number was the wife of the colored ex U. S. Senator from Mississippi, now Register of the Treasury, B. K. Bruce. She and the others at the table behaved with propriety. It caused, so our informant states, considerable excitement among the white passengers, and a number of ladies declined to go to the table until the colored passengers had left the room. This is the first instance of the kind we have known in the State.

THE LATEST NEWS.

St. Paul, Aug. 23.—The cyclone which struck Rochester demolished about 300 houses and damaged 200 more. Twenty-four persons were killed, as far as known. The Governor has received the following dispatch, dated Rochester, Minn., Aug. 23: "Rochester is in ruins. Twenty-four persons have been killed and forty seriously injured. One-third of the city is laid waste. We need immediate help. Signed, S. W. Whitten, mayor." In a short time $5,000 was raised and sent to the aid of the sufferers. Telegrams were sent to all cities in the State calling for aid.

Chicago, Ill., August 23.—Mr. E. A. Peck, who passed through the ruined city of Rochester, Minn., and has just arrived here, gives a succinct account of the disaster, as follows: It was 7 o'clock, Tuesday evening, when Mr. E. A. Peck reached Rochester. He stated that the northern portion of the place, from the Chicago & Northwestern railroad track, was a confused mass of debris; scarcely a house was standing, and a few which were had been removed from their foundations and shattered as if by an earthquake. The afflicted survivors were at work rescuing the injured and recovering the bodies of the dead. Before midnight twenty-three corpses lay in a hotel to which they had been removed. Forty wounded persons, many of them seriously injured, had been removed to the undestroyed dwellings. It was thought that at least twenty bodies remained in the ruins. The storm appeared to have formed about eighteen miles northwest of Rochester and gathered violence as it progressed. The scene in the devastated district and the place where the dead lay was indescribably sad. Mothers wildly searched for their children, while little homeless waifs were found whom the tempest had orphaned. One child was the only survivor of a family of seven.

Shortly before the train arrived at Rochester the freight train was wrecked on the trestle at the western approach of the place. The wind had twisted the switch bar from its place, throwing open the switch. The engineer saw his peril when close at hand and jumped, saving his life. The fireman was carried over the embankment with the engine and killed. The fatal black cloud swept toward St. Charles, five miles southeast of Rochester, cutting a wide swath through the timber and farms, wrecking buildings in a little hamlet and leaving two corpses and three persons fatally maimed. The body of one of the men killed was found in a tree top. He had been torn limb from limb by the mere force of the wind while being drawn up and carried along by the terrible funnel.

The free mail-delivery system will go into effect at Chattanooga September 1.

Mr. L. P. Walkup, Monroe, N. C., says: I have derived great benefit using Brown's Iron Bitters for palpitation of the heart and dyspepsia.

LINES.

Affectionately Dedicated to Mrs. S. A. Street.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. CORA V. MARSHALL, Who finished her journey on earth in the spring-time of life ere its winter with blighted joys and withered hopes had chilled her young heart. Why the dutiful daughter, the fond and judicious mother, the devoted wife and pure minded humble christian should be thus early called we know not, but "we shall know hereafter." "The Lord of all the earth doeth right." Her work is done and she has received her crown. May her christian mantle fall on those who are left to finish the work of rearing her beloved boy. May he walk in the footsteps of his Saviour and meet her in Heaven.

Weep not for her, Her warfare's done—Just as life's journey was begun, Oh! never let your tears be shed For her, the loved and early dead.

Her toils are o'er, her cares were few—Her short brief life no anguish knew; She died e'er disappointment cast Its blighting mildew on life's path.

Her lot was blessed! She lived to know Earth's purest bliss without its woe; The joy which is a heavenly spark—And burns alone in a mother's heart.

And often in her boy's face Your loved one's smile you'll see And in his trusting guileless love She'll speak again to thee.

Then fond ones dry your weeping tears, Let no rebellious thoughts arise; She's only passed a-while before And 'waits you, on the other shore.

You would not call her back to life—To battle with it's care and strife? To share its woe, and toil, and pain, To live a few brief years again?

To view hopes fading one by one—Like flowers scorched by noonday sun, And see friends fall like withered leaves When shaken by the autumn breeze.

Perhaps alone in wintry age To sit and gaze adown life's page And mourn the hopes, and friends, with tears Long buried with the lapse of years.

No—could you see her spirit now With victory's crown upon her brow You'd bless the God whose tender love Called her from earth to joys above.

This tribute of affection is from one who knew her long and well, and loved her for her many virtues. S. J. H.
