

THE DAILY JOURNAL.

VOL. II.

NEW BERNE, N. C., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1883.

NO. 142.

LOCAL NEWS.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.
C. E. SLOVER—Beef, etc.
W. P. BALLANCE & Co.—Card.
W. P. BALLANCE & Co.—Just received

Journal Business Almanac.
Sun rises, 5:42; Length of day,
Sun sets, 6:10; 12 hours, 28 minutes.
Moon sets at 1:55 a. m.

Four bales of cotton were sold at the Exchange yesterday, bringing 91.

Capt. E. Habbs, special agent Treasury Department, was in the city yesterday.

The steamer Kinston left yesterday evening for Kinston with a cargo of general merchandise.

The revenue cutter Stevens left yesterday for Swan Island, carrying provisions for the Shenandoah.

Mr. Geo. Allen writes us a very sensible letter from Louisville. He knows how to say a great deal in a short space.

John Caraway returned on Tuesday night via the A. & N. C. Railroad. Trip too successful to want to risk the storm on the sound.

Wm. Whitford, Esq., in company with Mr. Sully, was banging away at snipes across the river yesterday. They brought in twenty-five.

We regret to hear of the serious illness of Mr. Henry Spencer. He has been confined to his room for about one week with carbuncle on his face.

Mr. U. S. Mace is snugly fitted up in his new store on the market wharf and has added to his stock of drugs and medicines, a stock of hardware.

Dr. J. T. Walsh and Mr. N. D. Myers, of Kinston, arrived on the steamer Pamlico yesterday morning on their return from a pleasant trip to Roanoke Island.

We were pleased to see L. J. Moore, Esq., out again yesterday. His health has been somewhat impaired during the summer, but he is hopeful of being able to attend the fall courts.

Among our latest exchanges is the Trade Journal, published by the enterprising firm of Oettinger Bros. of Kinston. We commend the Trade Journal to those who like fun, wit and good goods at low prices.

The steamer Pamlico arrived on Wednesday morning with a heavy cargo of general merchandise and the following passengers: Mr. T. A. Green, and daughter, Maude, John U. Smith, H. E. Duffy, Macon Bryan, Dr. J. T. Walsh, N. D. Myers and E. Habbs.

The storm which prevailed on Monday and Tuesday must have been very severe in Pamlico county, the bridges being washed away and the roads inundated to an extent to prevent the mail being brought to this city on Tuesday and its departure yesterday morning. Travel is entirely suspended until repairs are made.

Quite a crowd were assembled in front of Nixon, Simmons & Manly's office yesterday morning who were being paid for services rendered the Midland Railway Co. Adjusting the affairs of that company so that these men could get the money they had worked for, was one among the many good things Maj. Gatlin accomplished as Receiver of the Midland property. He is winding up the affairs of the company in a very creditable manner and deserves the thanks of all interested.

Mail Washed Away.

We learn from Mr. H. Murdock, who arrived from Trenton on Wednesday evening, that Capt. E. R. Page's valuable mail at Trenton washed away yesterday morning. This is a heavy loss to both Capt. Page and the community.

Steamboat for Shenandoah.

Capt. A. Styron, of Washington, N. C., is in the city and tells us he is building a steamboat to put on Bogue sound and White Oak river, thus connecting the people of lower Onslow with the railroad at Morehead City by steam. If the A. & N. C. Railroad had been owned by a private corporation connecting lines by steam would have been established that would have developed many sections which are now just beginning to seek other means of transportation than horse flesh.

Greetings.

Mr. W. H. Oliver had many friends to shake his hand on yesterday and congratulate him on his escape from the watery grave which he with all the Shenandoah's crew so narrowly missed during his recent trip. To give one an idea how pleasant it was to be there and hear the howling winds and lashing waves, we will just tell how Mr. J. L. Bryan liked it. He says if Wm. H. Vanderbilt was to lay all that he possessed of this world's goods at his feet and offer it to him, as a consideration that he would take another such a trip he would decline the offer.

Died.

At the residence of her husband in Lenoir county, September 4th, 1883, Mrs. Mary E. Davis, wife of Jarmon Davis in the 51st year of her age.

Mrs. Davis was born and raised near Trenton, Jones county N. C., and was the daughter of John and Elizabeth Stanley, formerly of said county. Mrs. Davis was a member of the Free Will Baptist church for several years. She was an earnest Christian and died in great peace.

Died, at Ravenwood, Jones county, N. C. on Saturday, the 8th inst. at 4 o'clock p. m., Council Miller.

At same place on Tuesday 11th, at 10 a. m., Mrs. Hepsy Miller, relict of the above.

Davidson College.

An important meeting of the committees on Property improvement, and aggressive (or active) management of Davidson college was held in Charlotte last week. The meeting was composed of solid men (175 pounds about the average). Messrs. Rumpel, McKinnin, Holt, Allen, Wiley, Evins, Hepburn, Brown and March—all hard workers. After careful examination it was decided to employ Rev. I. B. Mack for one third of his time as a canvassing agent, for the purpose of increasing the endowment of the college and to increase the number of students. It was also decided to employ a Professor to teach education, and arrangements were made to commence work at once resending and painting the old chapel, all of which will be gratifying to the friends of education.

An Old News Paper.

A subscriber in Pitt county sends us a copy of the Noth State Whig of Jan. 19th, 1848, which was published at Washington N. C. by Henry Dimmock upon the accommodating terms of $2.50 if paid in two months, $3.00 if paid within the year, and $3.50 if not paid until the expiration of the year.

The paper seems to have been well edited, and as the name indicates, devoted to the interest of the whig party.

The announcement is made that a convention will be held in Raleigh on the 29th of February to nominate a candidate for Governor vice his excellency Gov. Graham. Lenoir county had recommended Judge Settle, John Kerr by Rutherford, while the Raleigh Standard said Mr. Stanley would certainly be the nominee. A writer in the Williamston Journal recommended Gen. J. J. McKay as the Locofoco candidate. A speech of Mr. Calhoun "By magnetic telegraph" to the N. Y. Herald of Jan. 4th occupies a space of over four columns; and editorial mention is made of Gen. Scott, Gen. Taylor, Henry Clay, and also of the speech of Mr. Calhoun which seemed not to be in accord with the administration in its war policy.

Five new papers are spoken of as making their appearance. The report of the court of inquiry in the difficulty between Gen. Scott and Gen. Worth is copied from the New York Commercial.

"Mr. John Selby killed the other day a hog weighing 602 pounds."

Among the advertisements John Myers & Son offer 3000 pounds of bacon, 20 barrels old apple brandy, 100 barrels old herring and 50 bales of hay. J. J. Havens invites the attention of his friends, customers and the public generally to his new and large assortment of fall and winter goods, under the head of "great bargains."

J. W. Doughty has a good assortment of buggy and sulky harness, cotton bating and a few pairs of gentlemen's fine French calf skin boots. J. M. Peal deals in valentines and fine watches. J. B. Williams has butter, cheese, sheetings and shirtings. While Henry A. Ellison, Sheriff, informs those who owe taxes for 1846 or 47 that they must pay them by July 1st, 1848, at the furthest.

Visit of F. M. Green of Ohio to North Carolina.

Bro. F. M. Green has concluded to spend three weeks in this State, closing with the Conference. I send herewith a list of appointments which I make for his trip.

H. C. DOWEN.

Pleasant Hill—Lord's day, September 23, 1883.

Union Chapel—Monday, Sept. 24.

Deep Spring—Tuesday, Sept. 25.

Kinston—Tuesday, (night) Sept. 25.

Wheat Swamp—Wednesday, Sept. 26.

Hookerton—Thursday, Sept. 27.

Salem—Friday, Sept. 28.

River Side—(Union) Sept. 29 and 30.

Old Ford—Monday, Oct. 1st.

Beaver Dam—(night) Oct. 1st.

Union Chapel—Tuesday, 2d.

Pantego—Wednesday, 3.

Long Acre—Thursday, 4.

Saints Delight—Friday, 5.

Jamesville—Saturday, 6.

Robersonville—Lord's day, 7.

Washington and Elsewhere.

Crops are damaged.
New goods begin to arrive.

Cotton picking has begun.

Fodder pulling nearly over.

Many people in town Saturday.

Ground is broken for a brick building adjoining A. W. Thomas.

T. H. B. Myers is putting up an engine for a cotton seed oil mill, expects to be at work by middle of October. Mr. Bonner is turning the main shaft, which is 91 feet long, by 6 inches in diameter.

Mr. A. W. Styron, the very enterprising steamboat man, has commenced to build a steamer for White Oak river trade, it is to be 80 feet long, 17 feet wide. Mr. Bonner is repairing the engine from the burnt steamer Enterprise for it.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

The complimentary notice of Prof. Joyner in a late number of the JOURNAL has aroused the spiritual indignation of "Justice," who loads heavily, and does nothing, except vent his ire and betray his ignorance. I must say that "Justice" can get as many errors into as small space as Injustice could, and must surely have been in a darker corner than I. Had he manifested as much common sense as zeal, he would have known that there was no reflection on the Superintendent, but strangers who do not know the Superintendent (as I do) to be a high-toned, earnest gentleman, might infer from "Justice's" misplaced or misguided zeal in his defence, that he might be charged with something, and hence, "Justice's" zeal to put us off the track; in so doing he does the Superintendent a great and manifest wrong. When I wrote the article complimenting Mr. Joyner's address but one other address had been delivered as I afterward learned. I am not deserving of censure because people did not think it merited compliments. "Justice" says that the average attendance was 25, but the Superintendent says that it was only 15 1/2 and that the largest number present on any day was 21. "Justice's" estimation of the number of visitors present was about as enormous as his statement in regard to the number of teachers. If the story of George Washington's hatchet ever made any impression on "Justice's" mind I fear it was erased ere he wrote his defence of the Institute, and the Superintendent against whom no charge had been made. I now turn "Justice" over to the Sunday School teachers of the town, hoping they may prove beneficial to them.

Catharine Lake Items.

Another picnic at Alum Spring last Wednesday.

Dr. Armstrong, of Tar Landing, is gone north after goods.

Mr. Smith and Mr. Dixon, Methodists, have held a meeting at Jacksonville. Four additions.

Mr. Jas. McGee takes his old position as clerk for Col. S. B. Taylor. Mr. H. D. Murrill expects to locate on a farm.

Mr. Geo. S. Best, Baptist, has just closed a meeting at Richlands and Adams' school house, resulting in nine accessions.

The Richlands burying grounds are much improved by cutting down trees, and beautified by the monument and stones to the memory of J. W. S and others.

Mr. H. C. Bowen has returned from Deep Spring, Jones county, where he has been assisting Mr. D. W. Davis in a meeting, which resulted in two additions to the church.

Messrs. Foy and Pearsall have visited our county in the interest of railroad matters. The people will give a hearty welcome and a free right of way to any company to build a road.

F. M. Green, Disciple, of Kent, Ohio