The tuition in the Graded School, for persons living outside the city, is about one-half the amount charged by other schools. A great many of the citizens of this and surrounding counties are taking advantage of this and sending their children to New Berne to the Graded School. In this way they receive the very best instruction possible, according to the best and most approved modern methods of teaching. We know of no better investment a man can make for his son or daughter than a first-class common school education, such as he can get get in the New Berne Graded School. Better give your children an education than gold or silver or lands. It seems a strange thing to us that a man can allow his children to grow up in ignorance and awkwardness. We hope to see the good farmers all over the country send their children to the Graded School. It is a sign of the general growth and improvement which is coming to us all over the State and the South.

Fire. The alarm of fire last evening was saused by the burning out of one of the portunity of seeing which could put on the first stream.

Literary Gossip.

Alliero Peto, by Lawrence Oliphant, is the first of the duodecimo edition of the Franklin Square Library, published by Harper & Brothers. The form is by far more convenient than the old square, or nearly square, books, and less liable to be torn in reading or have the outer leaves lost. The print and prices are the same as the first issue-10, 15 and 20 cents, according to size. But the present volume is far below the average Franklin Square novel. The heroine gives name to the book which is highly sensational-one of its heroes; for it has many-being blown up in his castle in Ireland by dynamite. Two of the leading characters are California girls who astonish French and English society by their independent outrage of the proprieties of polite life. Price 20 cents.

Dialect Tales is a collection of southern stories told by a Kentucky lady. They are all good, and give the real old-time darkey dialect in perfection, vibrating between, pathos and fun and always natural.

A Good Hull. The steamer Shenandoah although rocked in the gradle of the deep through a severe hurricane and blown ashere on an island in the sound still retains a bottom so tight that it has not been neceasary even to put the pump to work up to this time. This certainly speaks well for the hull and gives assurance that she is strongly built and well prepared for the work in which she is engaged.
