Cold Weather Shelter for Stock Profitable.

Not one farmer in a hundred un derstands the importance of shelter for stock. This has much to do with success or failure of tens of thousands of farmers. Animals fairly sheltered consume ten to forty per cent less food, increase more in weight, come out in spring far healthier; and working and milkproducing animals are much better able to render effective service. The loss of one or. more working horses or oxen, or of cows, or other farm stock, is often a staggering blow to those scarcely able to make the ends of the year meet, and the large majority of such losses of animals are traceable to diseases due, directly or indirectly, to improper protection in autumn, winter, or spring. Of the food eaten, all the animals use up a large percent-age in producing the natural heat of the body at all seasons, and heat enough to keep up ninety-eight degress all through the body is ab-solutely essential. Only what food remains after this heat is provided The Globe House. Shoes, Etc. in the system can go to increase No. 177 Main Street, . . Norfolk, Va. growth and strength and to the manufacture of milk in cows and of eggs in fowls. When heat escapes rapidly from the surface, as in cold Gail & Ax Smuff weather, more heat must be produced within, and more food be thus consumed. In nature this is partly guarded against by thicker hair or fur in winter. Any thinking man will see that an animal either requires less food, or has more left for other uses if it is protected artificially against winds that carry off heat rapidly, and against storms that promote the loss of heat by evaporation of moisture from the surface of the body. A dozen cows, for example, will consume from two to six tons more of hay if left exposed from October to April, than if warmly sheltered, and in the latter case they will be in much better health and vigor, and give much more milk. Other cattle, horses, sheep, and swine will be equally benefited by careful protection.—American Agriculturist.

Buckingham Whiskey

A Really Pure Stimulant.

This whiskey is controlled entirely by Venable & Heyman, N.Y. It is distilled in Maryland in the slate water regions of that State, from the small graingrown there. The distillation is superintended by a gentleman who understands his business thoroughly. Nothing deleterious is allowed to enter into its composition, and none of it is allowed to be sold until it is fully three years old in order that it may be entirely free by evaporation from the fusel oil. Venable & Heyman offer these goods as perfectly pure to fill a long felt want for medical purposes. It is their own brand and they stake their reputation on the truth of this assertion:
