Our old friend Cad Koonce, of Onslow, called to see us yesterday and renewed his allegiance to the Journal. He verifies the reports heretofore given that the cotton crop is at least one third short, but he was in a good humor, notwithstanding this fact. The only thing he has to complain of now is the action of the county commissioners of Jones in refusing to a tramway over the Quaker Bridge Road. He says the people in his section don't care who builds the road so they get it. They need transportation of some sort, and when their sister county of Jones refuses to give anybody the who will probably witness it by the right to build a tramway for them, thousands. they, the people of Onslow cannot but think hard of such conduct.

The county commissioners held their regular monthly meeting last Monday. Besides passing the usual pauper orders, they received and accepted the various official bonds, among them, that of Sheriff Jas. K. Davis for $37,000, Treas-urer Benj. Sutton for $32,000 and B. L. Taylor, Register of Deeds for $5,000. Superior Court Clerk Dunn did not present his Monday, but had it ready grant anyone the privilege of building for presentation the next day, to which the commissioners adjourned. An order was passed, authorizing and directing the sheriff to execute Guilford Ed.

School at Vanceboro.

Danger to the Forests Everywhere.

The Sun is giving a series of very able articles urging the preservation of our great forests, for several good reasons, but chiefly because of their value as water reservoirs. We do not think that the writer over estimates the dangers of drouth that attend the present suicidal policy. While the Sun is de-voting special attention to the Adirondack forests in this State, because legislative action is needed this winter, and we are particularly imperilled by reason of sweeping franchises that have been given to lumber companies, the arguments apply in many other parts of the Union.—Spirit of the Times.
