CARLISLE'S ELECTION.

What the Papers Say. In Mr. Carlisle the Democrats have an honorable, frank, manly, consistent Speaker. There will be no hedging and dodging under his leadership. Democrats will not be handicapped by a do-nothing policy.

Carlisle and Victory—that is the meaning of the nomination of Saturday night.—Wil. Star.

The caucus has done bravely and well. They have listened to no timid counsels, but have chosen a man who is the exponent of a straight, unflinching Democracy. On this line we march to victory, certain victory in the end, for come what may, at the last the truth will prevail.—Columbia (S. C.) Register, Dem.

It is unnecessary now to speak of the causes which brought about the result of last Saturday night's conference, or the disappointment which many Democrats all over the country will feel at Mr. Randall's defeat. These matters have their compensation in the facts that the nominee is a man of unusual ability, large experience and strict purity of personal and political character, and that his record as a Southern man of Union sentiments during the war will effectually deprive the Stalwart element of any sectional advantage which, under other conditions, might be manufactured from the nomination of a Southern man.—Petersburg Index-Appel, Randall Paper.

The issue on which he has been elected is familiar to our readers. In the last Congress when the tariff question was before the country he made an exhaustive speech on the proposed measure which elicited the highest encomiums and won for him the cordial endorsement of all who favored tariff reduction without unnecessarily destroying the business of the country. That speech is the platform on which he stands to-day, and his election as Speaker indicates that the Democratic House will undertake to pass a wise tariff bill which will receive the approbation of the American people.—Raleigh News-Observer.

The nomination of Mr. Carlisle is fortunate for the Democratic party. It is an authoritative announcement that the party is in favor of advancing in the work of reforming the tariff. There will now be a well defined issue with the Republican party. It will be an issue which, if properly presented and earnestly urged, will win the working and middle classes to the Democratic standard. Mr. Carlisle will make a good Speaker. He is a man of great ability and liberal views.—Savannah News, Dem.

The nomination of Mr. Carlisle shows that there is more life in the Democratic party than had been generally supposed, and of a healthier sort, which is a matter for congratulation all around. Mr. Carlisle is by far the best representative among the candidates for the nomination of those Democrats who have convictions and conscience, and it is a good thing for the country that they are found to be in the majority—and a considerable majority—at Washington. Mr. Carlisle has definite and intelligent policy, which he has plainly set forth and lived up to with unusual fidelity. His opponents were what the late M. Gambetta described as "the column organized for an assault upon the offices." The nomination of Mr. Carlisle, in itself, shows a public opinion throughout wide sections of the country strong enough to overcome completely the tactics of the mere politicians and to defy the influences exerted by the most highly protected industries. That opinion is not by any means confined to the Democrats. It is national.—N. Y. Times, Rep. Tariff Reform.

"There never was a more hotly-contested fight which ended so satisfactorily for principles against demagoguism, which ended so disastrously for the defeated. The result showed, what has already been indicated in these dispatches, that the Randall campaign was bluff, and that its chance of terminating successfully rested upon bull-dozing and terrorizing the timid by the sectional cry, and the threats of the protection monopolies. The Carlisle people are jubilant to-night. The principles of Democracy are vindicated, and class legislation, sustained by packed committees through two Democratic Congresses, must take a back seat for the next two years.—Washington Correspondent of the Charleston News and Courier, Dem.

At last there is a promise of a Democratic party. Mr. Carlisle was last night chosen Speaker by the Democratic caucus at Washington. That means a change, a very great and beneficent change, in Democratic policies. It means that the old fogies of the party, the men afraid of their principles, have lost their hold, and the young men of the party—the men to whom politics mean something more than mere office getting—have come to the front. If the Democratic party have energy and intelligence the caucus action of last evening means a sweeping Democratic victory next year.—New York Herald, Ind., Tariff Reform.

Hon. John G. Carlisle, of Kentucky, was yesterday elected Speaker of the forty-eighth Congress by the solid vote of Democratic Representatives, Keifer receiving the complimentary vote of the Republicans. As is known to the readers of The Observer we favored the election of Randall, because we feared that the election of Carlisle would result in radical tariff legislation which would alarm and disturb the business interests of the country, and react disastrously on the Democratic party in the coming presidential election. But if the conservative course is to be pursued which is outlined in the admirable speech of Mr. Carlisle on taking the chair, the country will have no cause to regret his election nor the Democratic party any reason to apprehend trouble from it.—Charlotte Observer.

Mr. Carlisle is to be Democratic Speaker of the next House. We are glad of it. His nomination, which means his election, is an approach toward a frank expression of feeling on the part of the Democrats. Their party has no excuse for existence if it is not for free trade, and unless it goes into the National canvass of 1884 on a free trade platform it will be trying to ride two horses at once. If Mr. Randall had been nominated that would have meant an effort to conceal his party's real purposes until after the next election. But now we know the canvass will be an honest one, conducted squarely on the issues of protection to American industry or a paring down of the tariff and an approach to free trade. For these reasons we think well of the nomination of Mr. Carlisle. It places his party on a platform on which we shall be glad to fight it.—New York Tribune.

The conservative element of the Democratic party lost a most important battle last evening in Washington, and it is a defeat that seems fearfully pregnant with Democratic disaster in 1884. Mr. Carlisle represented revenue reform, and what is practically free trade. Mr. Randall represented a tariff with discriminations in favor of our vast and varied industries. By the nomination of Mr. Carlisle the sentiment of the Democratic party is proclaimed as against even incidental protection, and this deliverance is made in face of the fact that the party is just on the threshold of a presidential battle. Unless all precedents and accepted rules of political construction must be at fault, the platform of the Democratic candidates for 1884 is now made, and, if so, Democratic defeat will be inevitable and overwhelming.—Philadelphia Times.

As this selection is one against which we have earnestly advised, we cannot regard it with any great satisfaction; but we sincerely hope that all gloomy anticipations connected with the subject may be dispelled by the moderation and wisdom with which the business of the House will be conducted under the direction of the new Speaker.—New York Sun.

The Iron Men on Carlisle's Election. PITTSBURGH, Dec. 2.—The news of the nomination of Mr. Carlisle for Speaker was received with surprise in this city. William Martin, Secretary of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers said: "I am sorry for Mr. Carlisle's nomination, as he is a pronounced free trader. I have no fear that his election will have an immediate effect upon our industries, but he may appoint a Ways and Means Committee that will affect us. We have ruined industries to-day, the result of want of protection. Take, for instance, the tin plate trade. There has not been a sheet of tin manufactured in this country for over four years. Why? Simply because our manufacturers cannot compete with foreign production in price. I cannot understand what the Democrats mean by this move. Had they chosen Randall they would have been sure of the Presidency in 1884—no doubt about that; but they have arrayed the workmen solidly against them by electing Carlisle. Free trade means pauper labor, and I see no other way than for the labor organizations of the country to combine against any further reduction of the tariff. I understood there was a quiet movement on foot before this nomination, which, beyond dispute, would have been successful to revise the tariff in favor of better protection, but I am afraid it is foiled now."

Isaac Cline, President of the National Association of Window Glass Blowers, said, "The election of Carlisle is a death blow to the Democratic party. There must be a new protective party formed, and it will command the support of every laboring man in the land."

"B. F. Jones, the head of the iron firm of Jones & Laughlin, said: "Following the election of Carlisle, a further depression on the iron trade will occur, but it will not be lasting. I think the iron trade is down to hard pan now almost, but the country is in good condition, which is a thing to be thankful for. This move of the Democrats will help the Republicans in 1884."

Max N. Moorhead of Moorhead, MacLean & Co., iron manufacturers, said: "The iron trade is down to such a basis now that I don't think the election of Carlisle will hurt it much. His election is a good thing for the Republican party, however."

Joshua Rhodes, President of the Pennsylvania Tube Works, said: "The election of Carlisle will work disaster to the iron interests of the country. It cannot be otherwise, for he is a free trader, and our industries demand ample protection. There will be a great deal of uncertainty and a generally unsettled condition in the trade until his policy is fully defined."

Other manufacturers expressed the same general views.—N. Y. Sun.
