There are three essentials to be observed FARM WORK .- Good resolutions to insure success, and they are: should be formed during this first month of the year. New books should be opened, at least two—a day-entry book or diary, with a cash account at the end, and an account book between the farmer and the farm. In the first, every day's work should be entered and state of weather, the money re-ceived and paid out with the names of those to whom paid or from whom received. The second book should charge the farm with in-terest on its entire cost, the amount of stock, implements, etc., and all the additions to the same during should be formed during this first judicious care, proper feeding, and the additions to the same during are desirous of making this importthe year, and also with every ex-pense incurred on its account; and a profitable success. We may add a credit account, showing the ac-taal value of advantages furnished by the farm, such as house-rent, fuel, milk, butter, vegetables, meats, fruits and keep of pleasure horses, etc., all at market prices, and also every cent of produce, etc., sold from the farm, and the balance be-winds, and it should have a sash or tween these debit and credit ac two on the east and south sides, counts will show whether the farm and ventilation should be had counts will show whether the farm is a paying institution or not. Stock.—See that stock of all kinds are well cared for, provide warm, clean quarters for each kind, with plenty of bedding. Have water in abundance, accessible at all times if possible, and as a con-comitant have the barn yard of aufficient size, and always well littered, both for the purpose of making manure and that the cattle and horses may always be dry and making manure and that the cattle and horses may always be dry and free from discomfiture of wet manure and filth. Plaster.—Use finely ground plas-ter freely by sowing over stable floors, manure heaps and barn yard of loors, manure heaps and barn yard at least twice a week. Ploving—Should be done on all stiff or turf land when the weather and state of the ground permits, made of cooked vegetables, turnips and state of the ground permits, such land can be at this season plowed when it is wetter than in spring time. The snows fertilize, and the frost will pulverize. Farm Implements.—Gather all these and have them cleaned, oiled, these and have them cleaned, oiled, painted, put in thorough repair and looked up in a dry place for use whenever hereafter wanted. Ics.—Gather this, and secure a full supply for next year, when any opportunity presents itself, never neglect a freeze until you have ob-tained your supply.
