Moon rises at 10:51 p. m.

The market dock was clear of boats yesterday.

The steamer Goldboro arrived yesterday morning from Baltimore.

The schooner Varina, Capt. Frank Bell, arrived from Sladesville yesterday evening with corn and rice.

Prof. Perry, of the Trenton school, called to see us yesterday. His school, we are glad to hear, is in a flourishing condition, having a good attendance for the short time it has been open.

We are reliably informed that five shares of A. & N. C. Railroad stock recently sold for fifty dollars cash. What per cent advance is this on the famous auction sale that occurred sometime ago?

Wm. Foy, Esq., tells us that the work on Claremont bridge is being pushed rapidly. He has ten hands on the frame work, and hopes to have it completed in a month and a half. He says it will be one of the best bridges in this section.

We fear we will have to raise our estimates for the pea crop in this section. A walk out to Mr. Dunn's farm yesterday evening proved to us that the peas on the light soils are improving very slowly. Our figures now are, half crop on the stiff lands, while no estimate can be made on the light lands.

Two freight trains went out on the A. & N. C. Railroad on Friday evening, carrying off thirty car loads of freight, and yet there is a large amount still at the warehouse. We see some of the Richmond & Danville cars on the road again—an indication, we hope, that an understanding has been arrived at which will lift the embargo off of our Eastern corn.

A Leap Year Call.

Major Credle appeared in our sanctum yesterday in company with a woman in search of a man to marry her. We pleaded that we were already in the bonds and had seven living witnesses of the fact, and referred her to our partner, Mr. Harper. She scanned him and pronounced him a good looking young man but said he was not the one that had promised to marry her—not the one she loved. She retired chaperoned by the Major and continued her pursuit of the recreant lover.

Improvements in the City.

Mr. Albert Patterson is building an addition to his residence on Johnson street.

Repairs are being made on the fencing and outbuildings of the Donald residence on Graves street. It is to be occupied soon by the Rector of Christ Church, Rev. Mr. Shields.

The colored Odd Fellows are erecting a two story building, to be used as a hall for holding their meetings, near the railroad shops.

The buggy factory on Broad street is nearing completion.

A new building has been erected on the corner of Broad and Middle streets.

The M. E. Church South in Mexico.

We publish below a list of appointments, handed us by Rev. Dr. Burkhead, that our people may see what the M. E. Church South is doing in Mexico. We imagine it will take sometime to become familiar with the names of the Mexican Missionaries and the places where they preach Christ to dying men:

CENTRAL MEXICAN MISSION.
February 18, 1884, Bishop J. C. Keener, presiding; W. M. Patterson, superintendent.

Milk in the Nutmeg.
Thos. Daniels, Esq., who threw down the challenge for a chequer player, in yesterday's issue, was met on yesterday by T. E. Mace and defeated.

Pennsylvania Visitors.
Mr. John F. Satterlie, of Bradford county, Penn., who was here last fall with a number of his fellow citizens in the city again and stopping at the Gaston House. He is accompanied this time by Messrs. I. A. Pearce and M. A. Rockwell, from the same county, who are on a prospecting tour. They "took in" the city yesterday and are well pleased with the situation of the old town. They will visit some of the farms in this section before returning and we hope they may find it to their interest to locate among us.

Church Services.
Methodist Church—Services at 11 o'clock a. m., by the Pastor, Rev. Dr. Burkhead. Subject: "The Church." Services also at 7:30 p. m. Sunday School at 3 p. m.

Baptist Church—Rev. C. A. Jenkins Pastor. Services at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. Morning subject: "Infant Baptism." Seats free and the public cordially invited to attend.

St. Patrick's Day.

To-morrow is known as St. Patrick's day and has the general reputation of being of a very fickle character as to weather. The March winds generally give an exhibition of power, while departing winter gives a "last tag" of snow, and approaching spring sends forward a small installment of April showers, and hail and sunshine put in an appearance as common to both.

The feast of St. Patrick, or St. Patrick's day, is observed with great reverence by the Irish people, he being the patron saint of the Emerald Isle, and the legendary accounts of the benefits bestowed on that land by him are interesting, and reverently cherished; among other good things done, he is credited with having banished snakes from that soil, and it is believed by some that Irish soil will prove fatal to the snake that may venture upon it even when brought across the water to snake productive America. And a story is told of a court of justice having submitted an important trial of ownership to an Island, in dispute between an Irish claimant and a Scotch or Englishman, to the arbitration of snakes. The difficulty of arriving at the fact as to whether the Island was Irish territory or not, was so great that a solution seemed improbable if not impossible. Finally the generous nature of the Irishman exhibited itself in a proposition to have a number of snakes placed on the Island and if they thrived and did well the land did not belong to Ireland and he would relinquish his claim. But if they sickened and died then his ownership was to be acknowledged.

The trial was made by consent of the court, the snakes, some three dozen in number, were placed on the Island and in a very short time were all dead, and the Irishman's claim never again disputed.

Another story is told that a ship crossing the ocean having on board a boa constrictor, with other reptiles and animals for a museum in this country, was blown near the Irish coast and the storm subsiding was left becalmed for some days before getting out to sea again. The huge snake became sick while there and by the time New York was reached, life was extinct and his appearance in the museum was only after the skin had received the careful touch of the taxidermist.

To-morrow the admirers of the patron saint will adorn themselves with the shamrock or sprig of three leaved clover, this has a beautiful legend connected with it. It is that when St. Patrick first visited the Island as a missionary, he found the doctrine of the Holy Trinity the most difficult to be comprehended of all the Christian belief, and after various attempts, he plucked a sprig of three leaved clover and by this simple means illustrated the idea of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, as three in one, by the three leaves joined in the stem of the branch of clover, and thus explained to them that doctrine now held in holy reverence by a large part of the Christian world and yet is confessedly one of the most difficult explanations.

Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla in the spring of the year to purify the blood, invigorate the system, excite the liver to action, and restore the healthy tone and vigor of the whole physical mechanism.

Narrow Escape.

Last night as the train on the A. & N. C. Railroad reached the depot, Mr. Fred. Boesser, who was returning from the burial of his son, at Baltimore, jumped off the cars while in motion and fell partially under them, and would have been crushed to death but for the timely aid of Mr. W. E. Patterson and some other person, who grasped him and by a vigorous effort wrenched him from the very jaws of death.

A Noble Gift.

West Bay City, in Michigan, has found in one of its former citizens a noble benefactor, who has erected for himself a monument that is most enduring. Mr. H. W. Sage, of New York, has presented to this town a public library, which in all its appointments is ornamental and complete, and cannot fail to be the centre of an influence that will prove most exalted and beneficent. The building is large and spacious, and is fitted up in a most admirable manner, with all the appliances necessary to carry out the design, and upon the shelves he has placed about twelve thousand volumes of carefully selected books, many of them rare gems of literature. The dedication of this building was a scene of great interest. The exercises were held in the Presbyterian church and witnessed by a crowded congregation, among whom were a number of prominent men from various parts of the State. Nothing could have been more graceful and modest than the address of Mr. Sage after presenting to Mr. Fisher, the Mayor of the city, a deed for the property, amounting to upwards of $50,000.

He spoke of the growth of this section of Michigan, known as the Saginaw Valley, which twenty years ago was practically a wilderness, but now numbered a population of over 90,000. Then there were only a few missionary stations among the small hamlets scattered through the forests, now there are over fifty churches of various denominations; while the wealth accumulated through the lumber and salt trade has made this one of the most noted centres in our country. Mr. Sage has for many years founded important industries, which had served to develop the resources of this region, and had been very liberal in aiding in the erection of churches, schools, and charitable institutions, and thus promoting the interests of the people while seeking his own advantage. But he said in his address of presentation, "My days are passing away, and I wish to leave something besides these industries as a memorial, and I have thought it wise and proper, among the last of my doings here, to leave for your future benefit something that shall graft new and higher impulses upon the character of the people. May the use of these books and this edifice be profitable in all things to the people, and blessed of God to the end of time." Careful provision is made to exclude all books of an unworthy character, and only such as are in harmony with the teachings of the Christian religion.

We clip from a late paper, the above notice of a noble and generous act performed by a merchant who is yet living.

What a noble monument to hand down to posterity! How we envy him his ability to give it, and his large hearted liberality which prompted the act. What more desirable monument could be erected to the memory of one of our public spirited business men, than to have a Free Library and Reading Room, bearing his name, and giving pleasure and profit to the present and to future generations of his fellow-citizens. The beautiful Academy square is large enough to accommodate all buildings for educational purposes, and we hope to see several valuable buildings on it before the year 1890.

Candidates.
EDITOR JOURNAL.—Not taking advantage of the columns of your paper, which is open to all, naming a person for a candidate for certain places, and as election time is nearly here, it would be a good idea for some one to suggest some person for candidate. I would like to ask the public in general who would make a good Mayor. Hoping some one will suggest a candidate in reply to this, I am, yours, Z.

The JOURNAL nominates our present worthy Mayor, Thos. S. Howard. We know of no man who would give more of his time to the duties of the office than he. He may have faults, but what man on the top side of the earth has no faults? Human perfection on earth has never been attained.

Notice to Mariners.
Notice is hereby given that, on or about April 1, 1884, a lighted gas buoy will be moored off Cape Charles, Virginia.

The approximate position, as taken from the charts of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, is as follows:
Latitude, 36° 59' 28" North.
Longitude, 75° 42' 57" West.
Magnetic bearings and distances of prominent objects are as follows:
Cape Charles Lighthouse, N. W., 1 1/2 nautical miles.
Cape Henry Lighthouse, W. S. W. 1/2 W., 1 1/2 nautical miles.
Also, about the same date, a similar lighted buoy will be moored off Cape Hatteras, North Carolina.

The approximate position, as taken from the charts of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, is as follows:
Latitude, 35° 05' 05" North.
Longitude, 75° 23' 15" West.
Magnetic bearings and distances of prominent objects are as follows:
Cape Hatteras Lighthouse, N. N. W. 1/2 W., 1 1/2 nautical miles.
Cape Hatteras Beacon Light, N. N. W. 1/2 W., 1 1/2 nautical miles.
By order of the Lighthouse Board:
STEPHEN C. ROWAN,
Vice-Admiral U. S. Navy.

La Grange Items.

Mrs. Gardner, of Pitt, is visiting Mrs. J. W. Sutton in this place, and other relatives near here.

Mrs. R. B. Kinsey returned home last week, to the extreme pleasure and gratification of "Old Man Bob."

W. N. Hadley, son of Dr. J. M. Hadley, of our place, has been quite sick for several days, but is now on the mend.

Lafayette Cris, colored, assaulted William Prigden, colored, in this township a few days ago, and inflicted severe wounds.

The "Wizzard Oil Company" arrived here yesterday and took out a town street vendors' license, which I take to signify that they will offer their wares for sale here.

I neglected to say in my last that Rev. Dr. Milburn, "The Blind Man Eloquent," will lecture at the Collegiate Institute in this place on Friday evening, 21st inst. Admission 25 cents.

Rev. Mr. Washburn, of the Goldsboro Circuit, is here assisting Mr. Carpenter in his labors. Rev. Mr. Butt, of Raleigh Mission, is here and has rendered material aid in the revival, which still continues with some interest.

Rev. Dr. Wills, who has been with us for several days and assisted in the revival services at the M. E. Church here, held worship at the Collegiate Institute building Thursday evening, as I learn, for the purpose of receiving members in the M. P. Church.

Thursday evening Rev. Mr. Butt gave a lecture on the "Royal Road to Happiness." By request nearly all business was suspended and many of the business men of the place attended. The lecture was instructive, especially so, to those just setting out in life.

For one to go to his turkey bait and wait all day without seeing a bird is trying to the patience, to go and find that the bait has been gobbled up by the gobbler just one-half hour before is disappointing, but to be there when they come, while away with an empty gun and not kill a turkey is provoking.

Two car loads of oyster shells were received from Morehead last Wednesday, for Noah Rouse and S. I. Wooten, to be burned and used on their peanut crop. By the way, this crop is having a boom about here, and many of our most successful planters will engage in their cultivation, which is said to be much more profitable than cotton.

M. H. Wooten, Esq., reports his wheat crop as being very fine, and this is especially so in regard to the new variety, "Georgia prolific." Mr. Wooten purchased four bushels of this wheat at our last State Fair, which was sown on about 4 1/2 acres of good land, two weeks after the other crop had been put in, and it now appears to be over two weeks ahead. Mr. Wooten will engage richly in the cultivation of rice the coming year, and thus it is our farmers are learning to diversify their crops—an important feature in farming.

Jones County Items.

Trent river is considerably swollen; so much so that the fishermen cannot spread their nets; the fish have got an open river and a fine swim.

Our farmers are getting in the back ground in farming; the weather is so bad, and it rains so much that they can neither plow nor clean out their ditches.

Corn is remarkably scarce in our county, and the merchants at Trenton are paying 65 cents per bushel for it. It would command higher figures, but the people have not got the money to buy it only by small lots.

Capt. McIver is pushing the new road ahead with a vim. He is rolling the dirt in Muscle Shell Branch and preparing to make it passable. If he could have good weather for only a few days the road would be trimmed out to Trenton.

Mr. William C. Pittman, a worthy old citizen of our county, died on Sunday evening, the 9th inst., at the residence of Mr. John P. Grays. Mr. Pittman has been afflicted with paralysis for the last year or more. He was an excellent mechanic and a good citizen.

Times are exceedingly dull with us all at this time, but the exciting times are just ahead. Let them get out their candidates and get to electioneering around, then what a self-sacrificing set of individuals we will have, and when the speaking commences how the crops will suffer for the help of such of both parties who are the listeners.

The Trenton town officer, Jas. M. Pollock, has resigned, and the town commissioners have elected Mr. Lafayette Dillahunty to succeed him. Mr. Dillahunty, I have been informed, says he won't have it. Well, ain't Trenton a kind of a curious place, have an officer resign and another elected, and he refuse it? Who ever heard tell, in this office-loving country, of an office of any kind being refused before?

I will say to the N. & T. Company that the farmers are complaining heavily against them. I heard them charging that the N. & T. R. Company charge the citizens of Kineston one dollar for freight on kaintit, and they charge the citizens of Trenton one dollar and fifty cents. Our farmers say they can't see why they should charge them a third more than the farmers at Kineston.

I heard an old colored man lamenting the high price of corn, but he remarked there is a bright lining to every dark cloud. "I've got a big size 'tater patch, and when dey come I'll be jest right and can say farewell to hard times." Then after a moment's reflection he said, "But what's my dog gwine to eat; he won't eat taters nary one." "Well," says his wife, "Ring's got a bright lining to his cloud, too; he can make all the eggs get, like he does every day."

Capt. McIver said on Sunday evening last that he had just meat enough for one meal for the men under his charge, that he had ordered some sometime since, and that the steamer on its last trip had not brought it. "Now," remarked the Captain, "this is quite a serious thing for us to be out here depending on our supplies from a company whose agents are so negligent of our wants. If I am treated in this way many times I shall have to look out for other means of transportation. I left some of the convicts' bedding at New Berne and it also has failed to come, and they are needing it."

Mr. H. C. Parrott has concluded that he has not found the good place for making lumber yet, and has advertised to sell out, not only lumber but hogs, mules, buggies, and houses already built, and has invited us all to come to the vendue, but be certain and put a little money in our pockets for if we don't pay for it as soon as it is knocked off it will be sold again, and if we don't want anything come and stay at the sale so we can tell our friends how extremely cheap everything was. His reasons for selling are, he is going to move his mill to White Oak, Jones county.

That Georgia gentleman who wrote to the Southern Cultivator about renting farms to negro tenants, certainly has studied the subject well, for he pictures the negro tenant all the way through from the planting time to the gathering of the whole crop. No less true is his picture of the practice that our farmers are nearly all doing, renting vacant houses to lazy, idle, thriftless negroes for the purpose of hiring them as day laborers. Every farmer that I have heard read it say every word of it is true, for they had a little experience in that line. I hope every paper in the State will publish his letter and call the attention of their readers to it.

None Saved.
POCAHONTAS, VA., March 14.—The coal mines are still on fire and the only means of extinguishing it is to close and seal them up. This is now being done, and the mines will remain sealed for probably two weeks. None of the bodies have been recovered.

The most fastidious smokers among all nations and all grades of men agree that the tobacco grown on the Golden Tobacco Belt of North Carolina is the most delicious and refined for pipe or cigarette use in the world. Lighter than Turkish, more fragrant than Havana, freer from nitrates and nicotine than any other, it is just what the connoisseur demands and the habitual smoker desires. The very choicest tobacco grown on this Belt is bought by Blackwell & Co., and appears in their celebrated Durham brand known the world over as Blackwell's Durham Long Cut.
