We had two excursions from Marines Store last week, Tuesday for the colored race, and on Wednesday for the whites. About 160 people, ladies and gents and lots of children, composed the numbers, and with the exception of the terrible gale of wind that day, all enjoyed themselves finely. About 105 got on at Marine's wharf, among them a few names I will mention: Dr. E. W. Ward and his entire family; Mr. A. J. Hunt and children, except Miss Narcie, who was down with the measles and couldn't go (we haven't got quite clear of the measles down here yet); Messrs. W. E. and E. B. Hurst, Annie Sammons, Agnes Guiett, Sallie Fonville and Lilly Ward, besides a host of others. Married and single among these were Bart Henderson and family, with Kit Kellam, the bashful lover, and Frank Provow the forlorn widower. Both of the two gents tried to show themselves to advantage while aboard, but all seemed to know them too well.
