

AYER'S Ague Cure

contains an antidote for all malarial disorders which, so far as known, is used in no other remedy. It contains no Quinine, nor any mineral or deleterious substance whatever, and consequently produces no injurious effect upon the constitution, but leaves the system as healthy as it was before the attack.

WE WARRANT AYER'S AGUE CURE to cure every case of Fever and Ague, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Bilious Fever, and Liver Complaint caused by malaria. In case of failure, after due trial, dealers are authorized, by our circular dated July 1st, 1882, to refund the money.

THE JOURNAL.

NEW BERNE, N. C., JUNE 29, 1884.

At the Supper Table.

"What, another cup of tea, Mr. Dumley?" exclaimed the landlady, as he passed his cup for the third time. "I am delighted to see that you are enjoying your supper."

"Yes," responded Dumley. "I was quite hungry to-night, and the tea tastes unusually good."

"Not very complimentary to me," went on the landlady, with a sort of second-class gentle little laugh. "I generally make the tea myself, but tonight I was busy about something else, and the cook made it. I wonder what she could have put in it."

"Well," responded Dumley, as he stirred it gently with his spoon, "I should judge from the taste that she must have put some tea in it."

The Real Good Man.

Whenever you hear of a sudden loss of public confidence and a run on the banks, you are certain to also hear of the man who waves $5,000 in his hand and forces his way through the anxious crowd to deposit it, and show the people a proof of his confidence in the soundness of the bank.

There was a run on a Green Bay bank the other day, and this real good man came to the front as usual. He had $7,000 in greenbacks, and he flourished, and smiled, and pushed and elbowed, and finally deposited it. At least twenty anxious depositors were reassured by his action and walked out without asking for their funds, but in the course of an hour the bank closed its doors—busted. The real good man lost his $7,000, and we are glad of it. We like an innovation now and then.

Which is the Healthier?
It has often been discussed by scientists as to which was the healthier, city or country life. Whether it has been finally settled or not still remains unknown. The argument upholding in the country is that the air is purer and more wholesome, thus giving good and substantial breathing organs, which is half the battle of life. The argument that favors city life is the well known fact that abundant pleasures in the way of theatres, concerts, societies etc., which here so profusively abound is conducive to health. At the same time the atmosphere cannot be so pure, and then there is more dissipation and irregular hours kept in the city that gives a backward tendency to longevity. The question is yet debatable.—E.

The student who captures ideas in a smoke wreath; the professional man who soothes his nerves with a pipe after a day's toil; the editor who draws inspiration from his meerschaum; the gentleman of leisure who 'drives dull care away' amid fragrant whiffs, these, and all who indulge in the luxury of a smoke, can make their enjoyment complete by capturing the exquisite flavors, the natural aromas of Blackwell's Durham Long Cut.
