made a short speech, not only signifying an acceptance of the nomination, but laying down some of the purposes of the campaign and showing the necessity for reform in the civil service of the government. As was most natural he alluded to the investigation of fraud in the mittee by Secretary Chandler himself. Nothing could be fairer than to give the administration the benefit of the sworn testimony of the head of the department in which the fraud had been committed. If anyone could paliate it, he certainly stand not. Perhaps the detective could, but Secretary CHANDLER thought it lacking in "decent fairness" and thrust a fulsome letter to Gov. HENDRICKS before the public by means of the Associated Press, to which Gov. HENDRICKS penned the following reply:
