LOCAL NEWS.

Journal Miniature Almanac.

Moon sets at 12:53 a. m.

Fleta Bray, daughter of Levi Bray, was badly scalded on the face and right arm by the upsetting of a kettle yesterday.

The first white shad of the season was brought in on Thanksgiving day by Albert Mitchell, colored, and, as usual, was captured by Mr. A. H. Holton.

R. B. Lehman, Esq., who was sworn in on Monday last as an attorney, had his first case in the Superior court yesterday. He made a good speech and secured a verdict for his client.

Mr. Thos. H. Cokely arrived on the Shenandoah yesterday morning with his force to begin operations for Messrs. Moore & Brady in packing oysters. He superintended the business here the two last seasons, and he evidently knows what he is about.

We learn that the railroad track put down on South Front street is to remain until a meeting of the Directors of the A. & N. C. Railroad. Then, if the citizens of the city desire it to remain permanently, the matter will be considered by the Board.

Winbury Oysters.

Mr. Sol. Gornito, whom we mentioned as being in the city last week and telling us of the New river oysters, brought us on Thanksgiving Day a bucket of the famous Winbury oysters, and now we have no longer to take his word for it but have tangible proof of their fine flavor. What a pity these people have not better means of getting these fine oysters to market.

Nearly a Fire.

There came near being a fire at the house of Mr. J. W. Morris, on Hancock street, just before the starting of the procession, caused from the upsetting of one of the lights used for illuminating. But little damage was done, owing to immediate service rendered by some ladies, who dashed through the crowded street of mounted horsemen to the nearest pump and brought buckets of water.

"Paint Her Red."

Individual enthusiasm was well displayed by Mr. Henry Ippok at the Jubilee on Thursday night. He was literally painted red. With a blood-red suit, bespangled with appropriate mottoes, and a helmet illuminated and labeled "paint her red," surmounted with a chandelier's torch in each hand, he made things lively as he paraded the streets. It was often remarked that he would make a notable light-house if placed at sufficient altitude on the beach.

Superior Court.

The following cases were disposed of in the Superior Court yesterday:

State vs. Virgil Crawford; affray and carrying concealed weapons. Judgment suspended on payment of cost.

State vs. C. T. Watson; affray. Jury empaneled. Simmons & Manly and L. J. Moore for the defendant, Solicitor Collins for the State. Verdict, not guilty.

State vs. Samuel J. Taylor; violating city ordinance. W. W. Clark for the defendant, Collins for the State. Verdict, guilty.

State vs. Isaac Forbes, violating stock law. Geo. H. White for defendant, Collins for the State. Verdict, not guilty.

State vs. W. F. Pell, A. and B. Simmons & Manly for the defendant, Collins for the State; Verdict, guilty. Judgment suspended on payment of cost.

State vs. John Pool; violating city ordinance. R. B. Lehman for the defendant, Collins for the State. Verdict, not guilty.

Personal.

Mr. Herbert Brimley, of Raleigh, the English Taxidermist, who put up the fish for the State Exhibit, arrived here on Wednesday last to take Mr. T. F. Clarke's place in the firm of Clarke & Morgan, during that gentleman's absence as State Naturalist at the New Orleans Exposition.

Mr. E. Street, Jr., and bride arrived last night, and received their friends at the League House.

Mr. Sam. E. Eaton left for New York yesterday to purchase his holiday goods in the jewelry line.

Capt. J. H. Melver, of the Quaker Shad, consigned fords, was in the city yesterday.

Mr. E. H. Franks and lady, of Onslow, are in the city.

Messrs. Fred Harpelt, J. W. Mills, and George J. B. Priddy, and Dr. J. L. Whelan of Onslow, are in the city.

Mr. J. D. Moore of Rockledge, is in the city.

NEW BERNE ILLUMINATED!

FIVE THOUSAND PEOPLE PRESENT

THE CITY ABLAZE WITH ENTHUSIASM.

We knew that New Berne would do the thing right when once her citizens had decided on having a grand celebration of the great victories won by the Democratic party on the 4th of November.

As early as Wednesday evening people began to arrive from the adjoining counties, and on Thursday morning many arrived on the mail train from below, and a special train that arrived from Morehead City in the evening was crowded. The freight from Goldsboro brought in quite a crowd in the evening, and the regular mail train swelled the number considerably. All through the day crowds were pouring in from the country around, Pamlico, Jones, Onslow, Carteret and Lenoir were largely represented, all enthusiastic and eager to join in this their first great victory, of which they expect to reap the full benefits, since the war.

THE SALUTE OF 100 GUNS.
At 7:30 p. m. the loud booming of the Cleveland and Scales gun, at the corner of Broad and Hancock street, under the charge of Capt. Joe Barker and a detachment from the Club gave notice to the people that New Berne's great celebration was about to begin.

Throughout the long hours of excitement and glare and glitter and enthusiasm, at stated intervals the old gun did her duty. As the grand procession of locomotives and decorated cars with their lovely and patriotic freight, embracing the fairest representatives of Craven and Jones and Carteret and Pamlico and Lenoir and other neighboring counties and many of the youth and chivalry and manhood of them all, passed up and down the track, salute after salute greeted them as they passed and repassed the battery. And as the closing hours of the celebration drew near the last of the 100 guns was fired which told the story of how nobly old Craven had done her duty and how New Berne had redeemed herself.

THE PROCESSION.
At 8 p. m. the great procession left the depot, and never to our knowledge has its like been seen before. A procession of locomotives and cars and splendidly decorated platforms, with all the arts of peace emblematically represented, and flowers and wreaths and banners and music and gay uniforms of men on horse and on foot, and fair women, and torches and fireworks and bonfires, with the streets thronged by multitudes, and every window along the route ablaze with an illumination such as New Berne had never witnessed before. As the procession moved, the six noble iron horses which drew the emblematic divisions of the great parade, sent forth their clarion notes of joy and greeting and good will, which, as they echoed through the crowded streets, were taken up and answered back by cannon and bells and steam whistles, and wild hurrahs all swelling in one grand pean of joy and hope and pride.

ORDER OF FORMATION.

The procession formed on Hancock street in the following order:
1st. W. N. Russ with a large banner, inscribed on one side the words "The Hope of the Union: Cleveland and Hendricks," on the other, "The Hope of the State: Scales and Stedman."
2nd. The Silver Cornet Band.
3rd. Men on horseback.
4th. The Star Band.
5th. Men on foot with torches and transparencies.
6th. Mayor Meadows in carriage with Senator Theo. W. Poole and Donnell Gilliam, Esq.
7th. Float No. 1, drawn by locomotive, representing the railroad shops. On this was the large bell of the shops, mounted, which was made, as the procession moved, to occasionally greet the crowd with its familiar sound. There was also an anvil and forge, at which several hands were at work, and several car wheels and other productions of the shops. On each side of this float were the words in large letters "Honest labor has its sure reward."
8th. Float No. 2, representing North Carolina. On this were seated fifty boys and girls of the Graded School, who sang the "Old North State," while seated on a dais in the center of the float were two young ladies representing the cost of arms, Miss Jones Whitford being the emblem of plenty and Miss Mattie Clark the goddess of liberty.

9th. Float No. 3 had mounted a full-sized model of the "Ship of State," built especially for the occasion by Capt. Thos. S. Howard, with engine and crew.

are their names and the States they represented:

Miss Emma Jordan, North Carolina.
Miss Leona Cox, Texas.
Miss Mamie Bryan, South Carolina.
Miss Katie Smaw, Delaware.
Miss Annie Lane, Missouri.
Miss Sallie Justice, Georgia.
Miss Lizale Hunter, Mississippi.
Miss Katie Daniels, Kentucky.
Miss Fannie Jones, Maryland.
Miss Nellie Walker, Alabama.
Miss Annie Barrington, New Jersey.
Miss Lizzie Barrington, New York.
Miss Victoria Dixon, Louisiana.
Miss Susie Clark, West Virginia.
Miss Mamie Meadows, Connecticut.
Miss May Richardson, Tennessee.
Miss Gertrude Bagby, Arkansas.
Miss Mary Howard, Indiana.
Miss Hattie Mitchell, Florida.
Miss Eula Nunn, Virginia.

11th. Float No. 5, with a pyramid of seats handsomely decorated, on which were seated thirty-eight little girls of the Graded School representing the thirty-eight States of the Union, each with a banner, and sash, on which was inscribed the name of the State she represented.

12th. Float No. 6, representing New Berne. On one end of this was an Indian hut, in front of which was a dinner pot suspended on forks. At the other end was a live-oak under which was N. S. Richardson's job press that issued the programme as the procession moved.

13th. Float No. 7, representing Craven county. On one end of this was a model farm house; in the center was a pine tree; at the other end was a job press of the JOURNAL from which was issued a "Special" welcoming the Democrats to the jubilee.

THE LINE OF MARCH.

The procession moved at 8 o'clock down Hancock street to South Front, down South Front to Union Point, countermarched to Craven, up Craven to Queen, down Queen to Middle, down Middle to Pollock, down Pollock to East Front, up East Front to Broad, up Broad to Fleet, down Fleet to Pollock, down Pollock to Middle, down Middle to South Front, countermarched up Middle to Broad street.

Excellent order was preserved all along the line, and in passing the residences of Maj. John Hughes, Col. John D. Whitford and Commodore Oaksmith the crowd gave rousing cheers.

GENERAL DETAILS.

When the five thousand visitors who thronged from the neighboring counties to New Berne are added to our own citizens who turned out en masse to participate in this proud celebration it will be seen that there was a sentiment of happiness and exultation aroused among us which many of our old citizens never expected to see again. Men with their little flocks of children about them, the girls and boys, big and little, with faces all aglow, stood on their sidewalks or at their front doors and discharged fire works and sent up rockets as the procession moved by. Fair women put flowers in their windows and as they tended the lights or looked out upon the brilliant scene, it seemed to those who saw them from the streets as if their cheeks were glowing with a fervor and their eyes lit with a fire born as it were of a new day and a new life to the Sunny South.

Looking from a house top the whole city seemed one blaze of glory. There was an aureole of gladness enrolling the very heavens above our beloved town. A crown of glory seemed set upon her brow. The very stars seemed dimmed above us by the pyrotechnic showers and sparks and balls and blazing rockets which shot through the air from every quarter and in every direction.

There was not a Democratic window in the whole city but had its illumination and decorations. Chinese and Japanese lanterns with their gay oriental colorings and brilliant tints were hung from every piazza in more or less profusion, according to the taste and ability of the occupants. Bonfires were blazing in every street. Guns were firing, blue lights burning, bells ringing, horns blowing, drums beating, trumpets pealing, and everything that could excite the gratitude and delight of a noble people on their deliverance from a long oppression was brought into play to add to the general acclaim.

THE ILLUMINATIONS.

While every citizen seemed to vie with his neighbor in doing honor to the occasion, there are some of the illuminations and decorations which, if space permitted, we should like to describe. Conspicuous among these were the houses of J. A. Meadows—which was brilliantly adorned—Col. John D. Whitford, J. J. Wolfenden, Thos. Daniels, Messrs. Smallwood, Washington Bryan, Maj. Hughes, F. M. Simmons, U. S. Maco, Dr. Duffy, Commodore Oaksmith, W. F. Rountree, Col. Jno. N. Whitford, Capt. Dugald, Wm. Colligan, Jr., E. H. Bryan, Geo. Bishop, the Messrs. Manly, Mr. Schwinn, Mayor Meadows, J. H. Mitchell, the Gaston House, E. H. Jones, Jas. A. Bryan, C. E. Fox, C. O. Clark, Wm. Cohen, Col. John S. Long, (whose windows were especially and appropriately decorated with flowers by the ladies of the city.) Captain Dugald's

THE ATLANTIC.

The house of the Atlantic Steam Fire Engine Company, and the engine, were beautifully decorated, and as the procession marched past they had steam on and rolled their engine out to the front and greeted the great parade with a stirring peal.

THE MERCHANTS AND TRADERS.

Every store, with a few exceptions, on the line of march was illuminated and decorated more or less with flags and lanterns and as every Democratic merchant in the city did his part, it would be invidious to mention any particular firm. New Berne has good reason to be proud of her merchants and one and all did their duty in helping in the great demonstration.

J. A. MEADOWS.

It is said that the largest number of lights and lanterns in any one house were used by Mr. J. A. Meadows in illuminating his on South Front street. It presented a brilliant appearance.

COMMODORE OAKSMITH'S HOUSE.

The largest drapery of flags and bunting, and one of the most noted and attractive displays, was made by Commodore Oaksmith at his house, corner of Pollock and East Front streets. A rope was stretched from a tree on the corner along the sidewalk edge on East Front street, a hundred feet in length and some thirty feet from the ground, to another tree. From this was displayed the long scroll bearing the inscription "North Carolina's Delegates to Chicago," which adorned the car that carried our delegation to the great convention which nominated Cleveland. The Commodore says he had it taken from the car as a trophy, and brought it home to grace the party's triumph when Cleveland was elected.

This scroll was flanked on either side by Union flags of large dimensions—while embraced between the ample folds of two of these a battle-torn flag of the dead Confederacy appeared as an emblem of the past and future—that the lesser had entered into the greater, and the days of sectionalism were over; while surmounting all was a magnificent "Stars and Stripes," emblematic of the Great Restored Union.

From another rope extending from the same tree at the same height down Pollock street over sixty feet (thus surrounding the house on two sides) a long array of storied flags were strung, among which could be seen the old torn British flag of the steamer "Carolina," the busy "Bee" of that once famous line, the flags of the "Augusta" and the "Helena," and the long Union Pennant binding them and their memories all together.

From the northwest corner of this house to the house of Mr. Scherwin another rope was stretched across the street at the same height from which depended a brilliant and large flag, some twenty feet long, in the center of which was a "castle"—emblematic that once more in this restored Union "Every man's house was his castle." This rope, some eighty feet long, was full of flags and pennants all having their appropriate signification. The whole house was brilliantly illuminated, and in the lower story centre window of the East Front street side an allegorical group of statuary paintings and flags had been formed which was artistic and suggestive. The back ground was a beautiful American flag, made by fair hands at Hollywood to grace the celebration of Mr. Tilden's election—and never displayed since. In front of this was a large oil painting of the "Ship of State;" in front of these on marble pedestals stood three figures, the rear and centre representing the shade of Washington greeting Cleveland as the President of the Restored Union and pointing to a scroll containing his last farewell address in which he warned his countrymen of the danger of Sectionalism. On either side of Washington's statue stood the figures of History and Poetry ready to write with glowing pens the story of the New Era which under Providence, has dawned upon our Country.

As the procession passed the house the display was largely cheered, and until a late hour people were continually going to see what had been noised about as one of the most extensive and appropriate exhibitions of this great celebration.

COL. JOHN D. WHITFORD.

Among the interesting features of the occasion the illumination and decoration of Col. Whitford's house deserves especial mention. The two windows on each side of the front portico were taken out and fitted up as alcoves and lined with crimson cloth in which were displayed a very charming tableaux representing General and Lady Washington in the costumes of their day. Master John D. Whitford personated the General and little Clementine Whitford, Lady Washington. They performed their parts most admirably and were warmly cheered as the procession passed the house.

SPEAKING AT THE GRAND STAND.

At 9:45 p. m. the head of the procession reached the end of its line of march at the grand stand, corner of Broad and Middle streets. At a little past ten the square and adjoining streets were densely packed. Bonfires and torches and blue lights and lanterns, with an occasional shower of Roman candles, gave brilliancy to the scene.

The band discoursing most excellent music, played "Home Again," "Auld Lang Syne," and a joyous melody of "Dixie and Hall Columbia." Happiness and hope as upon every brow.

M. DeW. Stevenson, Chairman of the Committee on Invitations, called the meeting to order and read the following letters:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, ALBANY,
Nov. 24, 1884.
M. DEW. STEVENSON, Esq.,
New Berne, N. C.
Dear Sir—Governor Cleveland has such that he is unable to accept your courtesy.

Very truly yours,
DANIEL S. LAMONT,
Private Secretary.

WILMINGTON, DEL. Nov. 22, 1884.
MESSRS. M. DEW. STEVENSON AND GENTLEMEN OF THE COMMITTEE,
New Berne, N. C.

Dear Sirs—With hearty thanks for your kind invitation to join you in our rejoicings on the 27th inst. over the victory at last achieved in the interest of peace, union and public prosperity, I am compelled to absent myself on that occasion. Congress meets on December 1st and I must be busy here until the day of my departure for the winter.

Respectfully and truly yours,
T. F. BAYARD.

GREENSBORO, N. C., Nov. 22, 1884.
M. DEW. STEVENSON AND OTHERS,
Gentlemen—Your invitation to be present with the people of New Berne at a grand celebration on the 27th inst. of the recent Democratic victories in State and Nation has just been received. I regret to say that I have an engagement for that day under a summons from court which cannot be disregarded. I thank old Craven for the noble aid she rendered in achieving these victories and though absent in person will be with you in spirit in all your rejoicing.

Yours very truly,
A. M. SCALES.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Nov. 22, 1884.
MESSRS. M. DEW. STEVENSON AND GENTLEMEN OF THE COMMITTEE,
New Berne, N. C.

Gentlemen—I thank you for your courteous invitation to attend our celebration on the 27th inst. It would afford me great pleasure to be with you but professional engagements I cannot control will prevent me.

Very truly yours,
CHAS. M. STEDMAN.

GREENSBORO, N. C., Nov. 14, 1884.
Gentlemen—I am in receipt of your very kind invitation to attend the Democratic celebration in New Berne the evening of the 27th inst., and address the people on that occasion.

I thank you most sincerely for the compliment, and regret that my professional engagements will deny me the pleasure of accepting.

I cannot forego the privilege, however, of rejoicing with you in spirit, that we have overcome the hosts of the enemy, and driven our chariots in triumph through their broken walls is cause for great joy and jubilation. That patriotism is higher than party, that principle is dearer than spoils, that nationalism is above sectionalism, are some of the lessons taught by the success of the Democratic party. Let us improve these lessons to the glory of a common country.

Let us improve the opportunity to disabuse the minds of the colored people of the absurd notion which has been planted there by bad, designing men, that we are their enemies, and prove to them that in National, as in State affairs, the Democratic party is their best friend.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen, your most obedient servant and fellow Democrat,

JOHN N. STAPLES,
Messrs. M. DEW. STEVENSON, and others,
Committee on Invitation, New Berne, N. C.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 27, 1884.
MESSRS. M. DEW. STEVENSON, E. H. MEADOWS AND OTHERS,
New Berne, N. C.

Gentlemen—I rejoice with you in the spirit though the unavoidable absence in the flesh. Freeman should rejoice, for our victory is new life to freedom. Craven and the East are great factors to the great victory. May the State and country grow great and happy under Democratic rule.

OCTAVIUS COKE.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 23d, 1884.
Mr. M. DEW. STEVENSON,
New Berne, N. C.

DEAR SIR—In the absence of the Governor I acknowledge the receipt of your kind invitation for the 27th inst., and assure you that it would give the Governor pleasure to be with you, could he do so, without neglecting official duties. The Board of State Canvassers will meet on the 27th inst., and he is chairman of the Board, so it will be impossible for him to accept.

Yours truly,
WM. BLACKMER, P. S.

The next best thing to having the distinguished gentlemen present, seemed to be the reception of such encouraging assurances of their appreciation of New Berne and her people's demonstration.

Hon. John S. Long then proceeded to introduce the speakers of the occasion, while the band broke in between the scenes with appropriate melodies.

HON. DONNELL GILLIAM, of Edgecombe, Presidential Elector 2nd District, made an earnest, appropriate and beautiful speech. He thought if any people in the United States should rejoice over this victory, it is those who live in Eastern North Carolina. He declared, however, that it was not a partisan victory, but a victory for the Constitution and pure government over fraud and corruption.

HON. THEO. W. POOLE, of Martin, Senator 2nd District, was then introduced. He congratulated the people on the achievement of the great victory. He sympathized with the Democracy of Craven county, and earnestly requested, that as he is the representative of an adjoining Senatorial district, the people of that district should consider him their representative.

F. M. SIMMONS, Esq., of Craven, was loudly called for. He made a good speech. He would not rejoice at the downfall of an enemy, but at the triumph of the people, and that the people should be the victors.

defeat fell upon Jas. G. Blaine, the very embodiment of sectional hatred.

CLEMENT MANLY spoke of the grandness of the demonstration, and extended greetings to the large delegations from the adjoining counties.

APPLETON OAKSMITH, of Carteret, being called for, made a brief, earnest, practical speech. His allusion to the kindly relations which would exist in the future between the two races was well received. The speaker paid a glowing tribute to the Democracy of Carteret county which, in spite of local differences, when the hour of trial came, went into the fight shoulder to shoulder and rolled up a majority for Cleveland and Scales and Skinner which did honor to the noble old banner county.

HENRY IPOCK, who appeared in the costume of an aborigine of '76, very redly pictured, with an illuminated hat, was introduced by Mr. Simmons as the janitor of the Cleveland and Scales Club and one of the greatest orators of the age. It may be so.

J. H. FOY, of Onslow, was called for and responded in a speech in praise of the grand old Democratic party and the constitution as it was made by the fathers.

J. C. KENNEDY, of Lenoir, the last speaker spoke in vindication of the colored race. He wished the party to know that colored votes gave his county to the Democracy. During the speaking the Democratic rooster from Trent township, Lenoir county, added great zest to the rounded sentences of the different speakers, by his frequent interpolations of chancier's shrill clarion notes of victory.

At the conclusion of Mr. Kennedy's speech three rousing cheers were given for the Party's respective candidates, the band struck up "Farewell" and "Home, Sweet Home," and marched away, while the great crowd dispersed, and the bell tolled midnight—as amid the last farewell notes and a blaze of pyrotechnics, New Berne's grand celebration of the Democracy's great victory, and the dawning of a new era of peace and good-will, was brought to its close.

MARRIED.

In Danville, Va., at the residence of J. L. Tyack, Esq., by the Rev. Dr. Martin, of the Presbyterian Church, Mr. Sam'l R. Street, jr., of New Berne, N. C., to Miss Kate P. Doe, of Danville, Va. The bride and groom arrived yesterday evening accompanied by Mr. Alpheus W. Wood and Miss George Street.

We extend our congratulations to the happy couple and wish them a pleasant journey through life.
