Some years since an old colored woman about 70 years old stepped in to a store in Trenton and enquired of the her burial clothes. The clerk enquired of her if she was dead. "No. Mars John, but if it pleases the good Maker to let me live until I die, I shant have any clothes to be buried in unless I get them." The clerk, to have some fun, handed her down some black calico. 'Now, Mars John, why you put that up; don't you know that thar ar nuffin black in heaven?"

In the year 1834 there resided where E. M. Foscue now does an old respectable gentleman named Samuel Davis, a quiet, harmless man and a soldier of the war of 1812. This old gentleman on Christmas eve of that year gathered up his leather saddlebags and placed in them a couple of little brown jugs and started for Trenton to get his Christmas drams. While there he met some of his old friends and as eggnog and old Jamaica rum was plenty, the old man got a little too much and when he arrived at the Jumping Run branch, which at that day was considered and firmly believed to be a haunted spot, as venient to the rivers and creeks. Huntmany terrible sights had been seen there by negroes and others. Some had seen at a late hour of the night a man with saddlebags with no head on his body. But old man Davis did not fear ghosts, but had discovered that if he proceeded any further on the footway that he would tumble in the branch, so he sat down to sober up. In a few moments one of his neighbors stepped on the footway and came walking towards him and did not see him until he was in a in, and only need the energetic push of few feet of him, stopped suddenly, looked at the saddlebags and soon fancied that it was the great ghost that olunged into the bitter cold water and bounded across it. #### A Good Opportunity to Visit New Berne.

[Bradford Republican.]

Through the efforts of some of our friends in Bradford county in connection with others in New Berne, N. C., the fellowing arrangements have been made for persons living in this section or adjacent hereto who may wish to take a pleasant trip to the sunny South during the winter months, viz.: Tickets are now on sale at the office of W. H. Fitzgerald, No. 157 West Baltimore St., Baltimore, Md., of the Baltimore Steam Packet Co., (Old Bay Line), good from Baltimore to New Berne and return at the low price of $9.00. Of course while on the boat state room and meals are extra, but they can be taken as desired. Persons living in Elmira, N. Y., or in this vicinity, or at any points south of Elmira on the Northern Central Railway, can leave home Wednesday morning and arrive in Baltimore in time to get a ticket, take the steamer down the Chesapeake, spending Wednesday night | 137 bales at 9 to 10 1-8. in refreshing sleep on one of the elegant floating palaces of the Old Bay Line, arriving at Norfolk, Virginia, Thursday clerk if he had nothing suitable to make morning, and having ample time for a transfer from the Bay boat to the Norfolk Southern Railway, which is a short but pleasant run of about forty miles to Elizabeth City, N. C. Here the cars run right down near the bank of the Pasquotank river, where lies the large and comfortable steamer Shenandoah, of the Old Dominion Line. Passengers will have about two hours' time at Elizabeth, when all go on board the Shenandoah and have a delightful sail down the Pasquotank river and into the North Carolina sounds. Thursday night we spend on the waters of eastern North Carolina; Friday morning we awake in sight of the city of New Berne on the placid waters of the river Neuse. New Berne is situated at the junction of the Neuse and Trent rivers, with a water view of the Neuse Bay below, of at least twenty miles. The natural resources of the back country is rich and is capable of producing full crops of all kinds of food products. It has fine timbers of various kinds which are coning, fishing, driving, rowing and steamboat riding are perfectly practicable. Shell rock for making lime abounds in an unlimited supply on the Trent river: a fine opportunity for an enterprise in lime manufacturing. The winters are mild, and this section is specially adapted for raising early spring lambs for Northern markets. Fruit growing, Northern markets.
