Lowest tide yesterday for many years.
The steamer Elm City left for Hyde county last night.

Three trifling cases were before the Mayor yesterday.

The wires were down yesterday, and the cotton reports did not get in until night.

The mail train was considerably behind last night awaiting connections at Goldsboro.

Two marriage licenses were issued during the past week, one to a white and one to a colored couple.

The Pamlico Enterprise comes to us again after a rest of two weeks. Hope to see it regularly henceforth.

Mr. Hardy B. Lane and Capt. C. K. Hancock went out on a bird hunt yesterday. Rather a windy day for the business.

Judge Shipp will hold the special term of the Superior Court of this county which convenes on the 1st Monday in February.

The revenue cutter Stevens arrived in port yesterday from a trip down the sound. She reports the Melvin at Piney Point in two feet of water.

Rev. Mr. Jenkins has moved into the new Baptist parsonage. It is a neat, commodious building and adds much to the appearance of things in that neighborhood.

The annual sermon before the Female Benevolent Society will be preached in the Baptist church to-night by Rev. Mr. Jenkins. A collection will then be taken up for the benefit of the Society.

The strong westward wind drove the tide out on Friday night leaving nearly every boat in the docks aground. At the old fish wharf at the foot of Middle street a crowd of negro boys were scratching for the lost pennies that have been slipping through the cracks for many years. We dare say enough was not found to pay for the scratching.

Some one writes us that we were mistaken in reporting John Slade as a colored man in the Mayor's Court proceedings of Thursday, and asks us to correct, which we do cheerfully. Our reporter was not present while the court was in session, but as there were several of the parties present when he called at the station, and all colored, he presumed that Mr. Slade was too. There was no intention to mislead the public or to cast any reflection upon any one.

Henry B. Bryan, Esq., President of the Board of the Academy Trustees, has presented the school library a valuable lot of books. We hope others will follow and donate such good books as they can spare. The library now numbers about twelve hundred volumes of well selected books which are eagerly sought by the reading public. Prof. Thomas has had a table placed in the room for pamphlets and magazines which persons can read without taking out.

Personal.
Mr. A. W. Wood has returned from Raleigh.

O. H. Guion, Esq., left for Hyde county last night on professional business.

Important to Pupils of the Graded School.

Professor Thomas has received from the Trustees of the Peabody fund a large, elegant and beautifully engraved gold medal which will be presented to the pupil of the Graded School of this city who shows, at the end of the present school year, the best record in scholarship, deportment and attendance. This is a prize worth working for, and it is one for which all can compete as deportment and attendance are as essential to success as scholarship. So then every one can enter the race.

THE JEWELS.

The Panel has been arrested in its National operations for a brief period by State matters. The increase of salaries was advocated by the members, but when the constitutional provisions were out, it seems that these patriots must try and get along on Graham bread.

The Legislature, however, acted with laudable promptness in instructing Congress to abolish the internal revenue system immediately. When you can't increase a fellow's salary, the next best thing to do for him is to reduce his expenses. The marriage license law should be upon the sliding scale of the tariff and an ad valorem duty levied. It is neither proper nor pretty to have an heiress pass off at the same price as a hired girl; nor will they consent to it. Age should also be properly considered, for it is a scientific fact that women, as well as wine, improve by age. It might be well to divide the expense between the suitor and suited upon an equitable basis.

Dogs are also agitating the public mind, and some want them shut up so that sheep may have the run, but that is unjust and against the spirit of our institution. Majorities should rule, and as the dogs are in a large majority in the State, shut up the sheep and "turn loose the dogs." It advises the introduction of shepherd dogs as an improvement in the dog growing industry.

President Arthur's consolidation move in reference to the collectors' districts in this State would be approved but for the obliterative features in the matter of salary, and then Salt river is not wide enough to be navigated by a side-wheeler.

The question of attending the inauguration at Raleigh is now on the tapis and negotiations have been opened with Mr. Pate for transportation on his line. Besides the difficulty of transportation the members are undecided whether to go as anybody, or each as himself. Some think it would be the thing to attend like President Arthur did the Exposition—by telegraph.

The admittance to the Panel of women is ratified by the constitutional number and will be at once communicated to Governor Taylor, of Utah, and his advice as to the best mode of governing the race will be sought.

Inauguration of Gov. Seates.

On Wednesday, January 21st, 1885, a special excursion train leaves Morehead City at 8 a. m., passing New Berne at 5 a. m., Kinston at 6:30, and arriving at Raleigh at 10:30 a. m.

Cars will go through without change at Goldsboro and return same evening.

The following rates will be charged: From Morehead City and return, $5.00; New Berne, $4.50; Kinston, $3.15; La Grange, $2.70, which are one-half the regular rates.

The train returning will leave Raleigh at 5:40 p. m., and arrive at New Berne at 10:30.

Church Services To-Day.

M. E. Church, South—Services in this Church at 11 a. m., conducted by the Pastor, Dr. Burkhead, Sunday School at 3 p. m. All cordially invited.

Presbyterian Church—Services at 11 a. m. Sermon by Rev. T. G. Wall, of New York City. Sabbath School at 9 a. m. In view of the Annual Sermon in behalf of the New Berne Female Benevolent Society, in the Baptist Church to-night, there will be no afternoon service to-day.

Christ Church—V. W. Shields, Rector. 2nd Sunday after Epiphany. 8 a. m., Holy Communion. 11 a. m., Morning Prayer and Sermon. 3 p. m., Sunday School. 7 p. m., Evening Prayer and Lecture. All are cordially invited to attend the services of this Church.

Baptist Church—Rev. C. A. Jenkins, Pastor. Services at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. At night, the regular Annual Sermon for the Female Benevolent Society will be preached by the Pastor, after which the usual collection will be taken up for the Society. Seats free, and the public are cordially invited to attend all these services.

The North American Review.

Whether we agree with Mr. Beecher or not, few men can speak or write on any subject of public interest with so great a certainty that everybody will want to know what they say. In discussing the question as to how far ministers may properly go in politics,—which he does in the North American Review for February,—the great preacher shows himself to advantage perhaps all the more because it is a matter that touches him personally as well as professionally. In the same number of the Review, the question, "How shall the President be Elected?" is ably treated by five happily chosen writers, viz., two United States Senators, Dawes and Vance; a college president, F. A. P. Barnard, of Columbia; a New York lawyer, Roger A. Pryor; and a well-known journalist, William Purcell. The substantial agreement of four of them on the same point is significant. Another notable article in this unusually strong number is a review of "Holmes's Life of Emerson," by the veteran historian George Bancroft; and still another is an essay by Prof. C. A. Young on "Theories regarding the Sun's Corona," which he skillfully brings within popular comprehension. The Rev. Dr. W. G. T. Shield defends the dogma "Eternal Punishment," and Prof. G. Stanley Hall writes on "New Departures in Education."

A PLEA FOR WOMAN.

One of the strangest things of this nineteenth century, indeed of any century, is the self-conceited manner in which men arrogate to themselves superior attainments and privileges, that they will not for a moment think of conceding to woman.
The question naturally arises in the unbiased mind: "Is man, either by nature or by attainments, entitled to these privileges, which he so persistently arrogates to himself? Let us divest the 'Lord of Creation' of some of his self-conceit, and see if he is not as weak and as culpable as woman."
First, Man was created by God from the dust of the earth. Was woman's creation essentially different? Man was created first, but does priority of birth confer special privileges? We think not. Second, Man from time immemorial has held woman to be an inferior being and has used her as a tool to promote his selfish pleasures. Does it necessarily follow that because this point has the sanction of ages, it is valid or just? We shall see.
Third, Man has the ruling power as ordained by God himself.
Does that signify that he is licensed to oppress the "weaker vessel?" God forbid.

Though man was created first; though he has a precedent of six thousand years to testify to his superiority; though God himself has said "the woman shall be subject to the man," still we defy the world to show wherein lies man's right to the privileges which he so religiously observes, just because he is a man, and which he will not agree to vouchsafe to woman.
There are many who claim that man is woman's superior intellectually; that she is not capable of attaining such mental heights as he; but experience, that dear old school master of Websterian fame, has shown that woman can stand head and shoulders with the best material that the masculine race can produce.

Perhaps man has up to this time thought that woman ought to be imposed upon because she brought sin into the world. But what a cowardly wretch he has been, thus to take advantage of woman's innate propensity, curiosity, and try all these centuries to get "even" with her on so trifling an account.
Take the two, the world over, and almost everything is in favor of the woman. In love and gentleness; in truth and honesty; in pity and sympathy; in purity and innocence,—in all the nobler attributes of the heart, she is by far man's superior. Notwithstanding these things are admitted to be so, even by men themselves, still at every turn we see the plainest principles of social and moral ethics disregarded, yea even outraged, every day of our lives, and the "Lords of Creation" ride rampant and roughshod over their unfortunate kinswoman, who, ninety-nine times out of a hundred, is not half so blameworthy as they have shown themselves to be.

"Shall the woman be stoned and the man go free?" It would seem that the majority of the masculine tribe and all of the feminine race think it is just and proper that such should be the case. Is it not strange that such a premium is put on masculine vice and so little bonus on many virtues.
Again: Is it not passing strange that masculine vice should be "winked" at and feminine indiscretions cried down and condemned?
To illustrate: A certain young man begins a career of vice; he revels in every species of moral wickedness, scruples at nothing that ministers to his unbridled passions and appetites; and what is the result? Is he ostracized and "cut" by his friends? Nay, they say, "Well, young Jones is just sowing a few 'wild oats,' and there the matter rests."

The filthy debauchee is received with open arms, and no door is closed against him, notwithstanding his moral degradation is patent to all; for verily these things are not done in a corner. Indeed the elite of the land seem to vie with each other to see who shall do this lecherous creature most honor; but on the other hand, let the young woman, no matter how great her social and intellectual attainments, depart one step from the narrow path of virtue, even under the most mitigating and excusable circumstances, and see the result. How soon the icy finger of scorn is pointed at her. How soon the cruel shaft of disdain is launched at her already broken and contrite heart! She is ruined, eye already damned, without any hope of salvation, by the decree of a senseless custom, that sanctions the most hideous moral depravity on the part of man, and hounds to the death the slightest discrepancy on the part of woman. Is this just? Is it in accordance with the teachings of our holy religion, that says "Do unto others as you would that they should do unto you?" Ah! how few stop to think of justice, when prejudice and precedent are involved. How many poor women are driven down to a living death, because, having taken one false step, they find no place for repentance, though they seek it carefully and with tears—and all this under the light of that Word, which teaches, "Though your sins be as scarlet, yet shall you be whiter than snow."
But the man, he is secure from condemnation, and so long as the "Lamp holds out to burn" he can return, and the fatted calf be killed to celebrate his infamy and degradation.

It is a crying shame on our boasted civilization that such a state of affairs exists. What shall be done to remedy the matter? There is a remedy. It is this: Disabuse the public mind of the idea that man is superior to woman; bring up the daughters of the land to despise every young man who goes astray, in the same proportion as they scorn their erring sisters. Then and not till then will woman receive her dues and the two sexes stand on the same moral plane.

It is high time that woman begins to see the influence that she exerts for good or evil; and to use that power for the amelioration of the condition of manhood. It rests with her to say whether the state of affairs spoken of above shall continue to exist, or whether she shall put a decisive and final veto upon the whole matter, and thus end it.
This she can do, this she must do, or her race is doomed to the same injustice and barbarous treatment that has obtained since the time of Adam and Eve.
The writer knows these things to be true, and though a representative of the "sterner sex," desires to have justice done, and to see that man, as well as woman, receives the penalty for his transgressions.
FAIR PLAY.

Kinston Items.
Mr. Jacky Bryan has been visiting friends in Kinston.
There are nine colored merchants in our town, all doing good business.
We regret very much to learn of the illness of Mr. W. C. Moore, one of our most valuable citizens.
Quite a number of people attended the Inferior Court this week. Barbecue was in demand. The pickle oyster man was also on hand.
Our town time seems to be out of joint. It is now as much too fast as it used to be too slow. The cooks grumble at being compelled to get up so soon.
Our town is filled with odors, but not those wafted from the fields of "Araby the best;" but from the piles of Acid Phosphate and Soluble Pacific stored on the wharf.
Considerable interest is manifested in the meeting now going on in the Baptist church. Rev. Dr. Theo. Whitfield of Goldsboro is preaching some excellent sermons.
The very day after reporting that our town was enjoying good health, over one hundred cases of colds, coughs, rheumatisms and neuralgias occurred. No serious case reported yet.
We sympathize much with the Professor who lost his teeth last week. He ought to keep a cat or get some "Rough on Rats." If the Prof. could find that rat he would chase him from Dan to Beersheba.
Plunket said to his friend Buncombe the other day: "Well, Buncombe, I have moved into another state since I saw you." "What state?" said B. "State of matrimony," replied P. "Who is the governor of your state?" asked B. "Mrs. Plunket," said P. "but I have applied for the position of assistant doorkeeper."

In digging holes for the posts to Parrott's bridge, some time ago, an old army musket was found, evidently thrown in the river in 1863 or '64 by some tired Confederate. It is in a pretty fair state of preservation, and is now the property of Master Harold Stanley.

La Grange Items.
Court at Kinston, Grand Lodge at Raleigh, etc., have silenced your itemizer for a week.
Dr. Kirkpatrick's barn and stables were burned in our place Wednesday night, with several barrels of corn and several hundred pounds of fodder.
Prof. McIver, of our Collegiate Institute, took leave of the school and our place last Monday. The school will continue under the management of Prof. White, assisted by Miss Bettie Kinsey.
We are glad to hear that our farmers are moving in their work for the next crop. There is no more noble calling than that of farming, and our best citizens are of this class. The idea of a farmer boy fresh from the field and clothed in his simple labor garments, being hooted at and insulted by a city swell is too supremely ridiculous to speak of. The farmer boy should know that his calling is of the highest, and that no one has higher claims than he in the minds of the good.

While in Raleigh we visited the Legislature now in session. The senators and representatives are a fine body of citizens, and it appears that they have got down to work. Petitions for and against public measures, and for office, are coming in from every section of the State, and one of the difficulties of our law makers will be to know just what is right and the will of the people. Petitions are not always for wholesome laws, and do not at all times express the will of the people. A petition for the repeal of almost any law in our statute books would find some signers. So in regard to removal of office holders and petitions for appointments. One of the questions now exciting much interest in our section is the repeal of the stock law. Petitions are being circulated and largely signed by many of our best citizens—good Democrats—asking for the repeal of said law, while on the other hand petitions will be presented signed largely by our most influential and best citizens—life-long Democrats—asking that the law be not repealed. Without condemning one or the other of these petitioners, we have thought, and still think, that the evils of the present law are more imaginary than real, and while some are apt to inconvenience, all who have tried are prepared for the present state of things, while a repeal would be next to ruinous to some of our largest farmers. We dialize to connect politics with so important a question, but merely call attention to a few facts. In the last election this, Lenoir county, was Democratic throughout to the astonishment of all. Some party has an axe to grind, and a division or lukewarmness among us would prevent our success two years hence. If the agitation of this question should create division or indifference, then the axe will be sharpened. One point we wish to call to the attention of our people: Who are busying themselves mostly in this matter? We believe that if it had been left solely to the Democrats of this section, that no petition would have been sent from here. We believe that our senator, Dr. Rountree, and our representative, Mr. Grainger, will do their duty in the interest and for the good of our people; they should, however, be on their guard lest they be slipped up on.

To any body who has disease of throat or lungs, we will send proof that Piso's Cure for Consumption has cured the same complaints in other cases. Address,
E. T. HAZELINE,
Warren, Pa.
