City Council Proceedings.

NEW BERNE, N. C., Feb. 3, 1885.
The regular meeting of the Board was held this evening, Mayor E. H. Meadows in the chair. Present: Councilmen Gray, Gates, Hackburn, Simpson, Street, Wood, Crawford and Styron.

Councilman Wood, as chairman of the Fire Department Committee, reported that he had only been offered fifteen dollars for the old hose carriage of the Atlantic Co., and desired instructions from the Board as to the disposal of same.

On motion, the Fire Department Committee was instructed to advertise it for sale in the New Berne Daily Journal.

Councilman Gates called attention to the bad condition of the aqueduct in front of the Baptist parsonage on Johnson street.

A demand was made on the Board by the county commissioners for possession of the property now used by the city, on or before the 1st of March, 1885. Referred to Police Committee, with instructions to look out for suitable quarters and to report at a special meeting.

On motion, the Police Committee was instructed to find out how they could dispose of the buildings now occupied by the city clerk and the Mechanics Hook and Ladder Company to best advantage and report at a special meeting.

Councilman Wood stated that he had interviewed Messrs. Moore and Brady in reference to the purchase of the city water front at Union Point, and, on motion, a committee consisting of Councilmen Gray, Street and Simpson was appointed to confer with Messrs. Moore & Brady and receive offers and submit the same to a call meeting of the Board.

On motion, Councilman Wood was added to the committee.
The marshal's report was read and received, showing twenty-nine arrests during month of January. Fines, fourteen dollars, and costs fifty dollars collected. The fines and one-half costs turned over to the city.

The regular monthly bills were allowed by a unanimous vote of the Board.

On motion, the question of using gas was referred to Councilmen Gray and Gates, with instructions to wait on the managers of the Gas company and try to get a reasonable reduction on the price of gas, and if no reasonable terms could be made, then to cut the gas off entirely and use oil instead.

The minutes were read and adopted. On motion, the Board adjourned.

JOHN H. BELL, City Clerk.

Railroad Wanted.

EDITOR JOURNAL.—I am not accustomed to writing newspaper articles, but with your permission I would like to say a few words to your readers in some other sections where I know your paper has a large circulation. The question of building a railroad from Goldsboro, by way of Whitehall, Pink Hill and Richlands, to Jacksonville has been under discussion in some localities for two or three years. As to the need of a railroad through the section named above I will simply say that there is a very large section of country on either side of the route named that has no means of transportation whatever (except private conveyance) to any market, and their nearest markets are from fifteen to forty miles distant. If local freight will pay on any railroad in the State we think it would pay on this one if it was built. It would pass through the finest turpentine section in eastern North Carolina, and there would be an immense traffic of naval stores on this road, as now it has to be hauled twenty or twenty-five miles to the W. & W. R. R., or stand six or twelve months for a freshet in the North East river to raft it to Wilmington, and a large portion of our turpentine lands are so far from any market that they are at present worthless. There would be thrice the amount of cotton made in this section of country that now is if we only had any means of transportation, but that cause alone deters large numbers of our farmers from making but very little, and others from making any at all. It would open our timber lands to the markets of the outside world, while at present and for all time to come until a railroad is built through these immense pine forests, that great industry will remain dormant; in short, all our section of country buys and all that we have to sell would seek that channel of transportation.

And now a word to the friends of this enterprise: To be successful will require united and energetic action on the part of those interested. We would suggest as a starting point the holding of public meetings, as soon as possible, at Goldsboro, Whitehall, Pink Hill and Richlands, each of said meetings to appoint a committee of seven or nine good energetic business men; these committees all meet together and appoint a sub-committee to go to Raleigh and procure the necessary legislation, and also to formulate some definite plan of action.

We are not versed as to the usual plan of starting up internal improvements, and if the above is not the proper one we hope some friend of this enterprise will mark out the way, and let's put the ball in motion, for words without action will not do much towards building a railroad.

WASHINGTON NEWS AND NOTES.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2, 1885.
In Congress the Nicaraguan treaty has been rejected; resolutions against dynamite have passed the Senate; the electoral count matter has been up; the River and Harbor bill, Pacific railways, Inter-State Commerce, and private bills have had attention. On several successive days the galleries of the House have been crowded with visitors who expected a dynamite debate in that end of the Capitol. The audience was composed chiefly of men, a large number of whom were Irishmen. But the debate did not come off. The so-called "abhorrent resolutions" have not been reported from committee. The Irish sympathizers in the House are anxious to be heard on the subject. They say they want to warn the new administration that it will not be safe to assume an attitude of opposition to the Irish. When the subject comes up a lively time is expected.

The indications are that the Democratic side of the House will adjourn to New York this week when Mr. Cleveland opens his office there. It is understood he goes there for the purpose of being easy of access to the party leaders and advisers, and the latter are getting ready for pilgrimage. Some are going in delegations and others will go quietly and alone. It is understood that Mr. Cleveland will only extend special invitations to those of whom he is thinking in connection with the Cabinet; but others will visit him under a general invitation to all Democrats who wish to give him their advice.

There has been much gossip and speculation here during the last few days, relative to Speaker Carlisle's and Mr. Randall's conference with the President-elect. Both gentlemen are mute and refuse to divulge anything of importance relating to their interviews.

A busy scene is now presented in the vicinity of the new pension building. A force of carpenters are putting in windows and doors, workmen are getting the cables for the roof in place, and men in charge of the heating apparatus are at work. Still, there is so much to be done in order to get the building ready by the fourth of March, that people are wondering if the inaugural executive committee feels the extent and weight of its responsibility. A stranger walking inside of the structure now, on being told that in five weeks the largest ball ever held in the United States will be given there, would think his informant a crank. The ground (for there is no floor to the ball room yet), is heaped with dirt, bricks and rubbish. The ball has to be given there though, and everything will be in perfect shape at the appointed time.

An effort will be made to obtain the use of the building for about three hours on the 21st of February, the day of the dedication of the Washington Monument. The House of Representatives, in which the proceedings have been arranged to take place on that day, will hold only 2,000 persons. All the space will be occupied by Congress, the Courts, the Diplomatic corps, and specially invited guests. Hence there will not be room for the general public, and the affair will be more in the nature of a "private entertainment" than a people's demonstration. In view of this it is suggested that the Pension building be utilized. The proceedings can then be heard by ten thousand people.

When President-elect Cleveland arrives in Washington, he will go at once to the Arlington hotel, where he will remain until he moves over to the White House. This programme has been definitely arranged, although several other large hotels have claimed his patronage for that occasion. Three of his sisters will accompany him. As soon as President Arthur gives up the White House on the fourth of March, he will be entertained by the Secretary of State while he remains in the city, just as General Grant was by Secretary Fish at the close of his career.

There is at present a larger number of guests at the White House than at any time during the present administration. Both the President and his sister, Mrs. McElroy, the hostess of the Mansion, are entertaining some of their intimate friends. It costs a good deal to occupy the White House in the manner that President Arthur has done. He has the best of everything, and it is estimated that at his private dinners each plate costs five dollars.

Firemen's Notice.

On and after 8 o'clock, p. m., of the 2nd day of February, both steamers will proceed to the fire immediately on the alarm being given.

The Atlantic Engine will begin the work of extinguishing the fire as soon as possible. The New Bern Engine will wait for orders before going to work. This arrangement to hold good for the month of February, unless countermanded, of which proper notice will be given.

CLIPPINGS.

There are now twenty-three cities in Massachusetts. The most recently incorporated is Waltham.

A prohibitory law is tersely characterized by a Philadelphia opponent as "an attempt to protect drunkards against themselves at the expense of sober people."

It is said that the originator of the Concord grape has raised over 20,000 seedlings in the past thirty-five years without finding his ideal grape, and only twenty-one had desirable qualities.

It is a curious fact that of the 188 members of the English Privy Council, 99, or rather more than one-half, are peers. As there are 513 peers, it would seem that about one in every five is a Privy Councillor.

To a Philadelphia note of rejoicing that "the Liberty bell's trip is through the States whereas slaves no longer serve," a Southern paper retorts: "The old bell would toll if it had to pass through Fall river or the Hocking Valley."

The Palatka (Fla.) Herald says: "A man and family arrived here one day last week; the next morning he paid $450 for a lot, and that evening he had a shanty erected, a stove put up, and he and family slept in it that night. This man was from Maine."

In Des Moines the number of saloons has increased from 60 to 102 since the so-called "prohibition" went into effect. As these sellers have no license to pay, they can stand an occasional confiscation of stock, which is kept low in expectation of such emergencies.

Divorces are becoming fashionable in Scotland. Last year eighty-nine petitions were granted, being the largest number on record. The highest number of decrees in any previous year was eighty-one in 1880. The average number for the ten years before 1876 was only thirty-five.

A lady whose husband had contracted a club fever hit upon a brilliant scheme recently. She procured a party-worn gentleman's glove and left it on the parlor sofa when she retired, after sitting up until 12 o'clock for her absent lord. He does not go out in the evenings now.

Twenty Parisian duellists are organizing a club under the name of La Flamberge, whose members must all have fought at least one duel. The headquarters of the club is at the Cafe Riche, and, considering the large number of combatants in the field of private honor, no doubt the association will not want for recruits.

During the seasons when game may be killed, the markets of Cheyenne have for sale elk, venison, antelope, bear, mountain sheep, grouse, ducks, rabbits, and other game killed in Wyoming. The game laws are rigid, however, and the seasons are short when it is lawful to kill game for any purpose except the individual use of the hunter.

That was a chivalrous idea advanced by a speaker in a Boston woman's suffrage meeting—that women should receive no wages, "because men were created to take care of the women; but an opponent retorted that it would be "a dreadfully cold day" for a good many thousand men in Massachusetts, not to mention their wives and daughters, if wages earning by women should suddenly cease.

Hezekiah Williams, colored, was exhibited at a Philadelphia museum as "the wild man from the jungles of Africa." He was chained to the floor, and the police interfered on the supposition that he was a maltreated idiot. The removal of his false hair and beard revealed a perfectly sane negro. The magistrate said that Williams could exhibit himself as a wild man or any other kind of a man as long as hurt no one.

The boundaries of the region known as the West have been perpetually shifting. Within the lifetime of old folks it commenced along the foot hills of the Alleghanies. A few years later the limit stood for a while on the banks of the Mississippi. To-day the boundary lies on the bluffs of the Missouri, in the neighborhood of Kansas City. Beyond that point lies the region of tradition, prophecy, adventure, discovery, enterprise, heroism—the West.

A model of the Brooklyn Bridge, the making of which required the labor of Alf. Prater of Gainesville, Ga., for about three months, is now on exhibition in Atlanta. The bridge is four feet wide, thirty feet long, and weighs 750 pounds. Three hundred and fifty figures are kept moving on it, representing men, women, drays, carriages, cars, etc., and under the bridge are boats in real water, making a scene wonderfully like the real bridge.

Wealthy lumbermen are engaged in a scramble for the good pine that yet remains in northeastern Wisconsin and the northern peninsula of Michigan. There is plenty of money to be made in cutting the better quality, and a large amount of it is left in that region. With moderate and discriminating sawing it might last for a long time, but as these men prosecute the work the end is not far off. "What has posterity done for us?" is imputed to them as their motto.

NORTHFIELD, Vt., Feb. 3.—The thermometer was 40° below zero this morning, the lowest temperature ever registered here.

MIDDLESEX, Vt., Feb. 3.—The thermometer was 40° below zero here, and also in several adjacent towns. At Marshfield it was 40° below zero, and at Moretown 40° below. At Hanover, N. H., it was 84° below this morning, and 40° below at Norwich, Vt. It was 45° below zero at sunrise at Bridgeton.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The headquarters of O'Donovan Rossa's paper have been temporarily removed to Chamber street hospital, where its editor-in-chief lies to-day with a bullet from Mrs. Dudley's pistol still embedded in his back. Rossa's office in Centre street was closed to-day. The physicians at the hospital thought that Rossa had improved in condition during the night.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—J. Pierrepont Edwards, the British consul, was asked to-day if the British representatives would take any action whatever relative to Mrs. Dudley's case. He replied that he did not know why the British authorities should act voluntarily in the matter. If Mrs. Dudley claimed British protection, it would be given her. The consulate would advise Mrs. Dudley, if she asked their aid as a British subject.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—When Mrs. Yscult Dudley turned to leave the court room a smile played upon her face. She drew her cloak about her and walked calmly out of the room behind the officer.

The house surgeon of the Chambers street hospital sent a communication to the court, stating that on an examination of Rossa's wound he found that the ball entered over the centre of the left scapula, taking an upward and inward course, passing beneath the skin for four inches. This morning he was in good condition, having passed a comfortable night. He was suffering no pain, and no unfavorable symptoms had developed.

Mrs. Dudley was locked up in a cell at the Tombs. She refused to say anything to the reporters, writing to them that she had been so advised by her counsel. Mr. Butts, her counsel, was special judge and surrogate in Sullivan county, N. Y., from 1872 to 1875.

LONDON, February 3.—Extra editions of the newspapers containing the cable dispatches from New York giving details of the shooting of O'Donovan Rossa are selling like wild fire on the streets in every city and town throughout Great Britain. Nearly every person seems jubilant over the announcement that the alleged chief of the dynamiters has had some of his own medicine given him.

It has been made public that Mrs. Dudley was regarded here as eccentric, if not actually insane. She attempted suicide on a railroad train on one occasion, by taking poison. After her imprisonment for this, she was released through executive clemency.
