A warm advocate of the continuation of the coinage of silver took water yesterday when ten dollars in dimes were shoved at him as change for a ten dollar bank note.

We should have given "Ackler's" letter a different heading for this issue. He has been engaged to write us notes on the New Orleans Exposition, but if there is anything in this last letter about the Exposition we fail to discover it. However, it is good reading, and a little digression in writing a continued story is allowable.

We intended to lay before our readers this morning President Cleveland's inaugural address, but could not perfect arrangements with the telegraph company. We give, however, a portion of one delivered eighty-four years ago, and if our readers will peruse it carefully and compare it with Mr. Cleveland's, they can see how near he is to Jeffersonian principles.

Personal.

Mr. Charley Ricinstin and wife, of New York City, are in the city. Mrs. Ricinstin is a daughter of Mr. A. Hahn.

Jeffersonian Democracy.

"We are all Republicans, we are all Federalists," said Mr. Jefferson. That no one may mistake the true principles of Jeffersonian Democracy, we here present Mr. Jefferson's own interpretation as given in his inaugural address, March 4, 1801:

"About to enter, fellow-citizens, on the exercise of duties which comprehend everything dear and valuable to you, it is proper that you should understand what I deem the essential principles of our Government, and consequently those which ought to shape its administration. I will compress them within the narrowest compass they will bear, stating the general principle but not all its limitations. Equal and exact protection to all men, of whatever State or persuasion, religious or political; peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none; the support of the State governments in all their rights, as the most competent administrations of our domestic concerns and the surest bulwarks against anti-republican tendencies; the preservation of the General Government in its whole constitutional vigor as the anchor of our peace at home and safety abroad; a jealous care of the right of election by the people—a mild and safe restrictive of abuses which are lopped by the sword of revolution where reasonable remedies are unprovided; absolute acquiescence in the decisions of the majority—the vital principle of republicanism, from which there is no appeal but to force, from the vital principle and immediate resort of despotism; a well-regulated militia—our best reliance in peace and for the first moments of war, till regulars may relieve them; the supremacy of the civil over the military authority; economy in the public expense, that labor may be lightly burdened; the honest payment of our debts and sacred preservation of the public faith; encouragement of agriculture, and of commerce as its handmaid; the diffusion of information and the arraignment of all abuses at the bar of public reason; freedom of religion; freedom of the press; freedom of person under the protection of the habeas corpus; and trial by juries impartially selected—these principles form the bright constellation which has gone before us, and guided our steps through an age of revolution and reformation. The wisdom of our sages and the blood of our heroes have been devoted to their attainment. They should be the creed of our political faith—the text of civil instruction—the touchstone by which to try the services of those we trust; and should we wander from them in moments of error or alarm, let us hasten to retrace our steps and to regain the road which alone leads to peace, liberty and safety."

A TRIP TO NEW BERNE.

EDITOR JOURNAL.—Having visited your city recently I desire to tell you many readers, some of whom have never visited the "Elm City," what I think of the old town and the many curiosities I saw while there.

After a ride of twenty-four hours on the cars we landed, and after a good night's rest a friend took me through the city. We visited many places of interest to me, as I was an up-country "tar-beel," from among the hills and hollows of Western North Carolina. Here I find a marked difference between the up country and the low country. From Goldsboro down not a hill or hollow was to be seen; even the streams we crossed appeared to be perfectly eddy. We visited the business part of the city, where we found trade quite brisk in the various departments. From thence we went down South Front street; from there we entered the wharf and took a general view of the steamers and sail-boats anchored in the docks. We entered the Old Dominion dock. Here we found the Shenandoah steamer which had just landed. We went aboard and took a general view. We found her to be a very nice and comfortable boat. We were informed she was the largest vessel that came to New Berne. Being informed she would leave at 4 p. m. that day we made it convenient to return and see her crack and take her exit.

During our stay we met with some few friends whom we had seen before. Among them we will mention Mr. Billie Watson, an insurance agent, auctioneer, etc., a business man. Mr. Geo. Allen we found in his old stand, where he carries on a very extensive hardware store, which is a great convenience to the farmer. He is also a trustee of Davidson College, and takes a deep interest in its welfare. Here I will say that Dr. Hepburn, President of Davidson College, having resigned, the trustees met in Charlotte on Wednesday, Feb. 14th, and elected Rev. T. D. Witherspoon, D.D. LL.D., of Louisville, Ky.

In our round we visited the oyster cannery factory, where we found over two hundred hands at work preparing the oysters for market. It was worth going to see, and we would advise all who never saw an oyster factory to visit one, and be satisfied that there and there alone each and every one will get his quota of his peck of dirt.

During our sojourn in your city we formed a great many acquaintances, among them Prof. Thomas, principal of the graded school, who very kindly asked us to visit his school, which we did. We found the new building a very substantial one, and well arranged in the different departments. School going on during our visit. Prof. T. carried us in his library room, where he showed us a choice selection of about two thousand books which he had collected for the benefit of his school. He then took us through the different grades of his school, telling us as we passed through what grade it was. Everything had the appearance of being very neatly arranged.

We also called round and took a view of the new court house, now nearing completion, and when completed will not only be an ornament to New Berne, but the State ought to feel proud to know she will soon have one of the best and most substantial buildings in the country.

I find the place a very pleasant retreat for strangers to spend a few days, and they will find the citizens to be very kind and hospitable. Besides, they will find it a very quiet place. During my stay I did not see but one case of intoxication among so many bar-rooms.

I took dinner at the Central Hotel, kept by Mr. W. E. Patterson, during my stay. I found it quite a pleasant place to stop at, and the weary traveler will find the substantial life in abundance, and all other accommodations. Mr. P. I understand, has been running a hotel for many years, and by his long experience, knows how to accommodate strangers in a strange place and make them feel like they were at home.

I spent Sunday in the city and attended the Presbyterian Sunday School at 9:30 a. m., conducted by Mr. Hollister, who took a great interest in the Sunday School. I did not find as large attendance as I had anticipated. I also attended services at the Presbyterian Church at 11 a. m., and heard an excellent sermon from the Rev. Mr. Vass (an accomplished gentleman). Before I left, he came around to make me a call. During his stay he spoke of his trip to Europe, which was very entertaining. I also went around to the M. E. Sunday School, conducted by Mr. J. H. Bell, that evening at 3 p. m., and found there a goodly number in attendance. I did not make Mr. Bell's acquaintance, but he seemed to be the right man in the right place, from what I saw of him.

From there we visited the cemetery, where we found some very handsome monuments, which had been erected by friends at a great cost. The evening being a little cool, and our overcoats not being along, we did not tarry a great while. That night we returned to the M. E. Church and heard Rev. Dr. Mann deliver a good sermon to a well-filled house. I was very much pleased to see the improvement inside the Church, both in beauty and comfort. I was informed afterwards that the ladies' society intends having the seats all cushioned, which will add much to the comfort of them.

We will now wind up on the stock law. The day we left for Western N. C. we found the train very much crowded with passengers from Greene and Lenoir counties on their way to Raleigh. Seeing there was some excitement existing among the passengers, we were anxious to find out the cause of the excitement. It seems from what we could learn, that those two counties had been under the stock law for sometime, and a few weeks ago there was a petition sent up to the Legislature, by a certain class, to have the stock law abolished. This delegation (of 65 men) were in favor of sustaining it. Finding the writer of this article on the train, and being from a stock law country, I was interviewed by nearly every man in the train in regard to my opinion. I finally agreed to go with the delegation up to the Capitol and introduce them to some of our country boys, who were fence-law-abiding men. After performing this duty, I bade them adieu and returned to the depot for the 4:40 train.

Since my return, I received the following card:

"Our delegation came out O. K. with flying colors. Much elated over their victory. Many thanks to you for services rendered."

Stonewall Items.

Jas. W. Dawson has purchased the farm near Stonewall of H. W. and Jas. M. Lane.

There is not a single Jew that lives or does business in this county, save an itinerant peddler once in awhile.

F. F. Cherry has returned from his trip and reports his success gratifying and says all who saw his planter were well pleased with it.

Judge Sheppard has appointed C. M. Babbitt to fill the vacancy of the Superior Court Clerkship declined by F. P. Gatlin, of this county. A good appointment.

Capt. S. H. Gibbs, late commander of the steamer Elm City, has bought W. H. Gatlin's entire interests in real and personal property in Bayboro and has embarked in the business of selling the wherewith to raise steam instead of commanding one run by it. All who call on him will be politely attend to.

An amusing circumstance of house-keeping happened to an excellent lady in Bayboro a few days since. She had been considerably worried with her help who would get her meal done and set it on the stove, sit down and wait for the housewife to find out the state of affairs. Finally, the lady gave positive orders that when the victuals was ready for the table, that the help should notify her without fail. The next morning, the gentleman of the house, while passing out, met the help and she told him that breakfast was done. He soon returned, went to the table and commenced eating. After a short while he called to his wife in the other room and asked if she wanted any breakfast. Her reply was that P. had not notified her, and as she had positive orders to that effect, she was waiting orders, and for P. to put her breakfast in the stove and keep it warm until she (P.) saw fit to perform that order. The gentleman of the house said that P. coolly placed the lady's breakfast in the stove, and up to this report did not know whether the notification had been received or not. He finished his breakfast and left.
