The Future of Medicine.

Those who profess to know claim that therapeutics, the science of cure, has really made no progress. Galen and Hippocrates, it is believed, were quite as successful in dealing with ordinary complaints as the most advanced physicians of our own day; yet medical science has made marvelous advances in every other department, especially in surgery and the knowledge of diseases; yet with all this it is suspected that the old women of former generations with their "yarb" teas and simple medicines were quite as successful in treating common ailments—colds and the like—as are the usual run of physicians with their powerful mineral drugs and bookish learning. All are agreed that more dependence is to be placed on sanitation and hygiene than on medicines. Diseases can be prevented, but if serious are a puzzle to the doctors of any school. There are some specifics that are known to be useful, but no drug is infallible, and each individual system is a new test even to the best-known medicines. The problem, after all, is not so much how to cure disease as how to avoid being sick—Demorest's.

A Chief Justice Edited.

The late Chief Justice Bigelow, of Massachusetts, who was, in his way, a little overbearing and assertive of his dignity, was on one occasion brought to his bearing in a way as effective as it was amusing. He was riding in a car which did not stop at Quincy, where he resided, and as it was passing by he pulled the rope and the train was brought to a sudden stop. The conductor rushed into the car and demanded:

"Who rung that bell?"

"I did," said the Chief Justice.

"Why?"

"Because I wanted to get off."

At which the railroad official indulged in some remarks which were not complimentary and hardly respectful. The Judge afterward complained to the President of the road, who promised to look into the matter. But he found that although the conductor might have used hot language the Chief Justice was not without fault, and said nothing about it. When they next met, by chance, the latter demanded of the President whether he had reprimanded the conductor.

"I spoke to him," was the reply.

"Well, what did he say?"

"He said he was coming up some day to adjourn your court."

The irate magistrate saw the point and did not pursue the investigation.

AN IMPRESSIVE FACT.—A believer in the Simian origin of man was listening to the remarks of a French lady who had recently returned from England. She related with vivacity the different objects she had seen, and during one of her pauses to take breath he ventured to say, "May I ask what impressed you most during your stay in London?" "Certainly," she answered, without changing her expression, "the solemnity of the monkeys at the Zoological Gardens on the day of Darwin's funeral."

To any body who has disease of throat or lungs, we will send proof that Piso's Cure for Consumption has cured the same complaints in other cases. Address, E. T. HAZELTINE, Warren, Pa.

MY DEAR HUSBAND:—

You no doubt are delighted to hear from me, as I have been away from you so long. Don't be angry, for really I have been dying to write you, but have been so very busy buying bargains I have not had a moment to spare. I have found the Cheapest Store here; they sell nice goods for the least money ever known. Only think of it! I bought a love of a worsted dress for only 15c. per yard. I have also purchased a fine double-fold Cashmere dress, your favorite color, for only 35c.; it sells everywhere for 50c. I got the children several pairs full regular made Hose, both solid and striped, for only 15c. and 25c. per pair, this half price. They sell good Calico for 4c. Heavy brown Domestic for 4c.; yard wide for 5c. I bought lots of Hamburg very, very cheap. Also Laces and Linen Edgings. They sell beautiful white Plaid Nainsooks for 10c. I saw them sell Ladies' Rubber Shoes for 35c., and Children's Rubber Shoes for 25c.; Rubber Gossamers for 90c. A lady friend of mine showed me towels, nice ones, she bought for 5c., all linen for 10c. Linen Napkins for 48c. a dozen. I got a lovely Jersey black all wool for $1.25—everybody wears a Jersey—they sell in other places for $1.75.

Really I think they must lose money on some of their goods, they are so cheap. Their store is always full of customers.

Now haven't I written my dear Hub a nice, long letter. You must send me by return mail money to buy a few things, they are so very cheap. I am determined to buy me a Black Silk Dress. I saw lovely Silk, very heavy, for only $1.00 per yard; 'tis as good as any one sells for $1.50. I want to buy you six shirts—the Diamond Shirt. This house has just taken the agency for them. They sell a fine Reinforced Shirt for 60c. At the bottom of this letter I send you a picture of the shirt and a part of a conversation I heard.

Be sure to write to your wife, who is dying to hear from you, by return mail, and be sure to send the money for me to finish my trade.

MARIAH.

P. S.—I came very near forgetting to tell you that A. M. BAKER'S is the CHEAP STORE I was referring to.

THE PROPOSAL.

He.—My darling, you look irresistibly lovely to-night!

She.—Do I? Thanks very much! you are handsome as a Prince, Charley, in your dress suit.

He.—Give the credit to the DIAMOND Shirt, my love, which I wear for the first time to-night; it is that which gives tone to my toilette. Here is its prototype (slipping the Diamond engagement ring on her finger).

She.—May our love be as enduring as the fame of "The DIAMOND Shirt."
