The Military in The City.

On Tuesday morning the steamer Newberne arrived from Washington, bringing the Washington Light Infantry with thirty-two men rank and file They are a well dressed, active set of men, and look as though they could endure service something like that of the Maryland and Pennsylvania campaigns during the late war. They were commanded by Capt. Chas. F. Warren, with Lieutenants Corrowan, Tayloe and Ellison. They were met at the Old Dominion wharf at 54 o'clock by the New berne Steam Fire Engine Company and the Mechanics Hook and Ladder Co., all in full uniform, preceded by the Silver Cornet Band, and escorted to the Central Hotel.

The Shenandoah hove in about 6 o'clock, having on board the Pasquotank Rifles, Capt. J. E. Wood, 1st Lieut. W. J. Griffin, 2d Lieut. A. S. Wadsworth, and fifty-three men including their band of fifteen pieces. Our firemen met them at the wharf and escorted them up Craven street to Pollock, up Pollock to Middle, down Middle to South Front, down South Front to the Gaston House, where they were served with breakfast.

After breakfast the firemen and the Silver Cornet Band assembled at the Gaston. House and escorted the two companies to the depot, where they took the train for Asheville.

The officers, rank and file of these two companies are fine looking men, and their deportment while in the city im- cyclone. pressed us with their true soldierly and tin cups reminded one very much of Confederate times. We trust they are fair specimens of the entire State Guard.

Our firemen not only escorted them from the wharf to the depot, but footed the bills at the hotels, showing the same generous spirit that was so characteristic of the people throughout the land in 1861. For genuine hospitality, patriotism, courage and enthusiasm, give us the boys of the New Berne Steam Fire of croquet was broken up. As friend Engine Company. Changes on the A. & N. C. Railroad.

We have not noticed the changes made on the A. & N. C. Railroad since the beginning of the new administration, not knowing whether or not they were permanent. Indeed but few changes have been made, nor was it necessary to make any material changes. Capt. C. K. Hancock, freight conductor, takes the place of the old war horse John A. Richardson as a conductor on the passenger train and the mantle could not have fallen on more worthy shoulders.

Mr. Joe Wagner takes Capt. Hancock's place on the freight train, and, ham. cheanest of the season. Our Pamlico having had some experience in the friends who wish to take advantage of work, will make a very efficient conductor.
