It is amusing to see how tender-footed certain blood remedy proprietors have become of late. They make much ado about "apes and imitators" when none are in sight.

The proprietors of B. B. B. would say most emphatically that their remedy stands upon its own merit. Should we attempt to imitate, it would not be those who do not understand the modus operandi of that which they offer. Our own long experience in the profession pre-cludes such an idea. The field for blood remedies is large and broad, affording ample room for all present aspirants. We do not desire to close our door against others, neither shall it be closes against us. B. B. B. is the quickes remedy, does not contain mineral or vegetable poison, does not imitate, and is in the field as an honorable competitor for public favor, and its succe vithout a parallel.
