THE JOURNAL.
NEW BERNE, N. C., JAN. 30, 1886.

A Cure for Blizzards.
"Yes, I am on my way to Washington," replied a man with a buffalo overcoat and a beaver cap who was held up for an interview at one of the hotels the other day.
"It is hinted that you have made an important discovery."
"So I have. I am Capt. John White, of Montana, the man who first discovered the birthplace of blizzards, and who invented a cure for them.
"Tell me about it!"
"Well, I have nothing to conceal in the matter. For five winters past I have been in the Far West watching cold waves or blizzards.
Nineteen out of every twenty start on a line drawn from Fort Union, in the northern part of Montana, to Fort Laramie, in Southern Wyoming. There are mountains, rivers, valleys and plains on that line, and these bring about the conditions required for a radical atmospheric change."
"Did you ever see a blizzard born?"
"A hundred of them."
"What is the operation?"
"Well for instance, one day last winter I was in camp on the Powder river, in Wyoming and directly west of the Black Hills. It was a pleasant, sunny day, and during the forenoon the wind blew smartly from the Hills. Just about noon, while I was preparing my dinner, a puff of wind from the Laramie Mountains, to the south, hit me.
On the plains, a mile to the south of me, and just where two valleys brought these two different winds to a focus point, a cloud of snow was lifted high in air, and the wind began to circle. In ten minutes the cloud began moving toward me, and the mercury soon went down eleven degrees. The cloud bore to the northeast, struck the north fork of the Big Chyenne river, and followed it east to Fort Sully, spreading its flanks as it went. At Sully it ran down the Missouri to the Iowa State line. Here the wave was a hundred miles long. When it got down to Omaha it was 200 miles. It left the river there and went east, and by the time the center reached Des Moines one wing was at Minneapolis, due north, and the other at Sedalia, due south.
From wing to wing was 500 miles.
That wave took in Wisconsin, Illinois, and Indiana, and was kept from Michigan by lake influences, and later on all the Atlantic coast, from Maine to Virginia was over-spread by it. That was only one out of the many I have seen born."
"Could it have been stopped?"
"Certainly. It was no larger than a barrel when it started."
"What is your cure for these cold waves?"
"Well, I've been experimenting.
You must warm the air as the first step. In that case you kill the germ and the blizzard falls flat. On this line of the birthplace of blizzards, a distance of 500 miles, base-burner coal stoves should be set about six feet apart. Ten thousand stoves might do it, but the government might as well add 5,000 more and make a sure thing of it. Each stove would burn, say, nine tons of coal during the winter. One man, as I figure it, could attend to five stoves.
As all the stoves would be out of doors, only one length of pipe to a stove would be required. I figure on saving 78,000 joints of stove-pipe. This item alone would pay for most of the coal. Every blizzard costs the country $3,000,000. We have an average of ten per season.
I figure that I can stop every one for $100,000 each. This saves the country $20,000,000 per season. The government puts $20,000,000 in its pocket and hands me the other nine."
"And you have an idea that your scheme will be adopted?"
"Certainly. The only fear I have is that the government may want to put plain stoves off on me, while I shall stick for the nickel-plated affairs. There's no use in going into this thing with anything cheap.
I shall return in about a week, and as I will then know exactly how much I can save on stove-pipe I hope you will come and see me.
This afternoon I shall try and figure on using one leg to a stove, thus saving 30,000 stove-legs. This would pay for the coal for 367 stoves. Don't forget to come and see me."—Detroit Free Press

The Doctor's Secret.
Probably no new development will more surprise the public than to learn the secret of success of certain leading physicians. When they have a difficult case of throat or lung disease that baffles their scientific skill, they prescribe Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, having it disguised in a prescription bottle, with their own direction and name attached.
The patient is cured, and they get the credit.—Tribune. Sold by all druggists.

Better than Real Estate

There are very few investments better than real estate, but we know of one that is, and that one is a policy in

THE FIDELITY MUTUAL LIFE ASSOC'N OF PHILADELPHIA.

The policy can be bought at the rate of $25.00 for $500.00.
It needs no enticement or repairs, and the yearly tax on it, levied tri-annually, is not as much as the tax on real estate of like value.
Upon the death of the owner, the policy does not require appraisers, administrators and lawyers to diminish the value, but is PAID IN FULL AND AT ONCE without expense to the beneficiary named therein.
The payment of each policy is guaranteed by nearly $10,000,000 assessable insurance with a reserve indemnity of $30,000, and cash assets of nearly $50,000.
The Association owns its own building, and rents enough offices to have the rent free, its expenses are limited to fixed annual dues.
