Job-work executed with neatness and dispatch at the JOURNAL office.

Low tide yesterday.

The wood yards are well supplied with wood.

Lewis Washington had an old house marching up Craven street yesterday.

Mr. John Humphrey of Tuscarora reports that peas are coming up. Rather a chilly time on them.

T. W. Watson, contractor and builder, gives notice of readiness to contract for buildings on reasonable terms.

Tomorrow is the 153d anniversary of George Washington's birth day. It has, by act of Congress, been made a national holiday.

The Y. M. C. A. has been invited by the ladies of the Benevolent Society to attend and hear the annual sermon at the M. E. Church tonight.

The Annual Sermon for the benefit of the Female Benevolent Society will be preached in the Methodist church on Sunday night by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Crawford. A collection will be taken up for the poor.

The Elm City arrived yesterday morning from Norfolk with a full cargo of general merchandise. She will enter upon her regular schedule tomorrow which we publish in this issue. The management has secured the services of that experienced navigator, Capt. David Roberts with Jas. Salter as mate, Augustus Willis, engineer, Bradstreet, assistant engineer, and promises to make quick delivery of freights from all points North, making connection at Norfolk with the fast freight on the Norfolk, Philadelphia and New York railroad.

Personal.
Mr. J. B. Tree, Manager of the Southern department of the Western Union Telegraph Co., of Richmond, is in the city.

Business.
The Postoffice, Custom House, Cotton Exchange, the National Bank and Orange, Fox & Co.'s Bank will close tomorrow. The Postoffice will be open until 12 m.

Diversifying Crops.

Our old friend, Cad Koonce, of Onslow county, while in to see us last week stated that the people around Richlands were inclined to diversify their crops in view of the extremely low price of cotton. But, "What shall we raise for a money crop?" is the all-absorbing question. Some speak of trying tobacco, others of rice. The first will be an experiment, and will cost considerable in preparing for curing and marketing. The second, unless grown on low lands with facilities for flooding, is rather a risky crop as it cannot stand drought.

If an experiment is to be tried, why not try something new? We call attention to a communication in this issue from Col. Benj. S. Pardee, who is attending the Exposition at New Orleans and speaks of matters that may be of considerable interest to all Eastern Carolinians. When Col. Pardee was in this section we believe he was of the opinion that our lands were well adapted to the growth of hops. It is evident that our farmers cannot grow cotton extensively at the present prices. The cotton belt proper can grow it much cheaper than North Carolina farmers, and as Texas is annually increasing her acreage, it must necessarily keep the price down and drive the Northern borders of the cotton-producing belt into some other vocation. We commend, therefore, the subject matter of Col. Pardee's letter to the farmers of Eastern Carolina.

List of Letters
Remaining in the Postoffice at New Berne, Craven county, N. C., Feb. 21st, 1886.

Government Building for New Berne.

Capt. John A. Richardson has just returned from a visit to Washington City, and he informs us that Congressmen Skinner and O'Hara are doing their level best to secure an appropriation for a Government building in this city. Many towns of much smaller importance, and where less Government business is transacted have had their hundreds of thousands appropriated while New Berne has been overlooked. It seems to us that our member, O'Hara, ought to be able to command the aid of his Republican friends in the House on this measure, and surely no Democratic member from North Carolina can afford to slight the "black district." In the Senate Ransom and Vance both are bound to help us. It strikes us that O'Hara has the key to the situation if he will only use it aright.

Capt. Richardson appeared before the sub-committee on public buildings and briefly and pointedly told them of the necessities of a building in New Berne, and he has strong hopes that the committee will report favorably on a bill appropriating sixty or seventy-five thousand dollars. He speaks in high terms of the manner in which he was received by our members of Congress, especially Messrs. Skinner and O'Hara, and says that Washington is right where it is when he received his appointment, and that money melts like snow while one is there.

Church Services To-Day.

Methodist Church—Services at 11 a. m., conducted by the Pastor, Rev. L. W. Crawford. The annual meeting of the Female Benevolent Society of New Berne will be held at 7:30 p. m. Sermon by Rev. L. W. Crawford. A cordial invitation is extended to all persons to be present.

Young Men's Christian Association—Devotional exercises at their rooms this evening at 5 o'clock. Subject, "Tekel, Thou art Weighed in the Balances, and art Found Wanting." Daniel 5:27. J. D. Clark, Leader.

Baptist Church—Rev. C. A. Jenkins, pastor, services at 11 a. m. No services at night on account of the annual services of the Female Benevolent Society at the Methodist church. Sunday-school at 3 p. m. Seats free and the public cordially invited to attend these services.

Christ Church—V. W. Shields, Rector. Septuagesima Sunday. Services at 8 a. m.—Holy Communion at 11 a. m.—and 7:30 p. m. Sunday-school at 4 p. m. The public is always invited to attend the services of this church. Ushers always at the doors to provide seats.

Entertainment at the Graded School.

One of the most pleasant entertainments which has taken place in New-Berne for some time past was the one at the Graded School building Friday evening.

For several days a committee consisting of Mrs. E. K. Bryan, Mrs. W. G. Brinson, Mrs. E. H. Meadows, Mrs. L. H. Cutler, Mrs. J. A. Meadows, Mrs. J. Schwertin, (with the assistance of a number of the young ladies connected with the school) had been preparing for it, and certainly their efforts were crowned with success. The sliding doors of the upper rooms were thrown open and the entire upper floor of the building was virtually thrown into one large room which furnished ample room for the large crowd which had assembled.

For a half an hour the audience were entertained with some very amusing exhibitions of Phantom Shadows.

This over, the selling of the substantial and delicacies commenced.

There was an abundant supply of the finest oysters, the nicest salads, ice cream, plain and fancy cakes, etc., which were served by the young ladies who had been selected for that purpose.

Usually on such occasions extravagant prices are charged which often deter many from attending, but on this occasion directly the reverse was the case. Everything was prepared in the nicest style and the prices charged were really less than the articles were worth.

For instance, a dish of oysters or salad and a cup of coffee for 15 cts., a saucer of ice cream for 10 cts., and a plate of cake for 10 cts.

Mrs. E. B. Roberts presided at the table where the substantial were sold, and Miss Georgie Street and Miss Carrie Hancock had charge of the ice cream.

Mrs. L. H. Cutler, assisted by a number of the children, were very active in selling tickets for a handsome silver card receiver, which was to be awarded to the lady who received the largest number of votes. In counting the ballots it fell to Miss Myra Burras, and to no one could it have fallen with more propriety.

Miss Lala Roberts and Miss Laura Hughes had charge of the fish pond, and here every one seemed to get a prize fully worth the money paid for the privilege of fishing.

Miss Maud Moore and Miss Etta Nunn were engaged in selling handsome bouquets.

It was certainly a pleasant entertainment; and to the young ladies, Misses Burras, Jones, Nunn, Meadows, Bryan, Eaton, Berry and Walker, who so gracefully acted as waiters, whose presence are certainly under obligations.

We learn from Prof. Thomas that about $70 were realized, which amount is to be expended in the purchase of books for the school library.

BRIEFS.

The volcano of Colima, Mexico, is in a state of eruption.

Count Von Moltke, the great German General is seriously ill.

The ice harvest on the Hudson is estimated at 300,000 tons this year.

It is said that not less than 150 houses in Chicago are tenantless because of ghost stories about them.

Moody and Sankey are creating the greatest interest in religious circles at New Orleans that was ever before known in that city.

The match between Sullivan and Ryan is about to be abandoned. Sullivan seems more anxious to try Jem Smith, the champion of England.

This is from Kansas: In Clark county, during a recent snow storm a large flock of sheep crowded close together, and the snow, melting for a while and then freezing, fastened the entire flock together.

A passenger train in Maryland while running at a high rate of speed, jumped the track and ran two hundred yards on the cross-ties before it could be stopped. The engineer stuck to his post and no injuries were sustained save the wrecking of the track and slight damages to the engine.

John B. Gough, the famous temperance lecturer, is dead. He died at Frankford, Pa., aged 69 years. Mr. Gough was a native of England, emigrating to this country when a small boy. He was an incessant worker for the cause of temperance, and is credited with having faced 8,567 audiences with a fair estimate of having spoken to 9,000,000 people.

Congressional Work.

SENATE.—Feb. 18.—Among the petitions presented to the Senate and appropriately referred was one by Mr. Hoar, from "Citizens of the United States"—citizens whose names, Mr. Hoar said, seemed to indicate that they were of foreign birth, praying for the submission by Congress to the several States of a proposed constitutional amendment abolishing the Presidency. The Educational bill was then taken up and its consideration proceeded with. Mr. Plumb offered an amendment providing that as to the territories, not the Secretary of the Interior, but the legislatures of the several territories shall have administration of the money. Agreed to.

Mr. Ingalls said the North, Northwest and West did not want this bill. On the contrary, they spurned it. The people of Kansas indignantly spurned the assumption that they desired a donation from the national treasury to sustain their common schools. Mr. Ingalls was "fatigued" with the presumption he had heard that Northern and Western people wanted this money. "Let us drop disguises and come down to common sense. Do not insult the people of the Northern and Western States by declaring that they want any portion of this donation bill." The bill, Mr. Ingalls said, "was essentially dishonest; and States that would take money under it were actuated precisely the same spirit that would pick a pocket or rob a grave yard." [Laughter.] "It was an act of grand larceny on the treasury. When the States of the South asked for this money on the basis of the whole number of its illiterates above ten years old, they knew, and the whole country knew, that they were obtaining money under false pretences."

Mr. Maxey emphatically denied that Texas asked for the bill.

Mr. Morgan read a telegram from the Governor of Alabama (Gov. O'Neill), saying he saw no constitutional authority for the bill, and endorsing his (Morgan's) position on it.

Mr. Riddleberger said some States might not need the money. "On behalf of as good people as those of Kansas or Texas," continued Mr. Riddleberger, "I am not ashamed to say that we do want it. We think it is due to us. I am glad the slave is free; but I ask the gentlemen who considered it their duty under the higher law to free him, whether it is not their duty to come to the rescue of an impoverished people, who accept the situation and who ask that the freedmen may be educated?" [Applause in the galleries, which was suppressed by the Chair.]

Mr. Coke addressed the Senate in opposition to the bill. He entered an earnest protest against its passage, declaring it to be the most pernicious measure introduced into either house of Congress since the war. Mr. Coke quoted from the writings of Jefferson, Madison and other early authorities on the constitution to maintain his position, and argued at some length that the passage of the pending bill would make Congress a body of unlimited and despotic power, and would be subversive of all the rights of the States. It would result, he said, in stirring up endless strife between the North and South.

A number of amendments having been submitted in order that they may be printed, Mr. Everts took the floor. He remarked that he was heartily in favor of the bill, but would not speak on it if the Senate desired to come to a vote.

Mr. Blair said that if Mr. Everts was going to make a speech somebody would be sure to move an adjournment. This remark was greeted with loud laughter, in which Mr. Everts himself heartily joined, and the Senate went at once into executive session. After a few minutes the Senate at 5:40 p. m. adjourned till tomorrow.

HOUSE.—The Speaker announced the appointment of Mr. Findlay, of Maryland, as a member of the committee on banking and currency, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Mr. Curtin.

In the morning hour the House resumed consideration of the bill forfeiting the Atlantic & Pacific Railroad land grant.

The bill was discussed, without any result being reached, until the expiration of the morning hour; and then the House went into committee of the whole on the Fitz John Porter bill.

Mr. Phelps, of N. J., said he had believed for twenty years that Porter was a traitor and deserved to be hanged. This was the popular opinion of the loyal North, and his heart had been with it. He had changed his opinion and believed that Porter was an honest man and loyal soldier, when, as his representative, he had been obliged to examine the evidence and learn the facts. In conclusion, he said: "It is an old story; it is a wearisome one to us; but to him, it is the story of a life. Let us today as courageous friends of justice determine that we will make what reparation we can and that we will end now and forever, so far as this House is concerned, the strangest and saddest story in American history."

Mr. Warner, of O., expressed his belief that Fitz John Porter had done his whole duty at the battle of Bull Run, but he also believed that if the original court martial could assemble again and have additional evidence before it, it would be compelled to reverse the verdict. For this reason he would vote for the bill.

Mr. Bragg, of Wis., closed the debate. He stood here, he said, representing the Fifteenth Army Corps, wearing on his breast the badge of the old army of the Potomac that loved McClellan and Porter well; that fought the battles of their country despite Congressional interference.

The committee then rose and reported the bill to the House. Two attempts to recommit the bill with instructions failed, by a vote of 112 to 173. Mr. Bragg, of Wisconsin, who had demanded the previous question, withdrew the demand and again took the floor. He sharply criticized the personnel of the court which convicted Porter, and the one-sided course in the trial, and accused McDowell of falsification in representing the report of Stonewall Jackson of the battle of August 30th to apply to Porter's movement of the 29th. Mr. Bragg said, "the gentleman from Michigan (Cutcheon) had taken the report of the second battle of Bull Run and read the number of killed and wounded on the 29th of August, for the purpose of showing that there had been a general battle. If the gentleman had been disposed to be ingenious he would have stated that the heading of these reports was casualties between August 16th and September 2nd."

Mr. Cutcheon declared that he had so stated in his speech.

Mr. Bragg—You took a table of figures from the heading that covered almost the month, and you have published it in your speech as evidence of losses on August 29, but your Republican constituents, who do not read anything but your speech in a Republican newspaper, will think that a historical evidence of the war.

Mr. Cutcheon declared that the heading of the table showed precisely what it was.

Mr. Bragg declined to yield, and Mr. Cutcheon asserted his right to reply, as he had been misquoted.

Mr. Bragg (advancing to the bar of the House)—I state what you said. I state what the figures are.

"Now," exclaimed Mr. Cutcheon, also advancing into the space in front of the Speaker's desk, "you are trying to ram a falsehood down the throat of the House." [Applause on the Republican side.]

"I draw my own inferences as to your purpose," cried Mr. Bragg, and, defiantly, "I will repeat them, if you desire." [Applause on the Democratic side.]

At this time there was a good deal of confusion and excitement in the House, and it was with difficulty that the voice of either gentleman could be heard, but as the Speaker rapped the House to order, and stated to Mr. Cutcheon that he must not interrupt Mr. Bragg without permission, the former indignantly exclaimed, "then the gentleman must not falsify the facts."

Mr. Bragg's retort was, "I am glad I have driven that Radical from under Stanton's petcoats so that he has come to the front." Mr. Bragg continued in this vein, declining to yield to interruptions, his manner being at times that of personal defiance towards opponents of the bill.

A vote was finally reached and the bill passed—yeas 171, nays 113. The House, then at 5:15 adjourned.

New York Cotton Futures.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—C. L. Green & Co., in their report on cotton futures today, say: A confirmation of a heavy interior movement, with absolutely nothing encouraging from abroad, have simply increased the weight of offerings and the movement shows another general and decided break. Everybody appeared to be selling today, including some of the "bills" who have been persistently "bearing" the market down, and the main idea was evidently to spill the load as closely as possible without creating a greater demoralization. The average decline was about ten points, with a small reaction at the close, manipulated by the "bears" as a vantage ground for the renewal of an attack.

Beware of Them.

A good article that has achieved success, and attained a world-wide reputation by its true merits and wonderful results, is always imitated. Such is the case with Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Al ready unprincipled parties are endeavoring to delude an unsuspecting public, by offering imitations of this most fortunate discovery. Do not be deceived, but insist on having the true remedy, and take no other. For sale by all reliable druggists everywhere.

Nearly Equals the Standard Coin.

LACROSSE, Wis., Feb. 19.—Teller Henderson, of the LaCrosse national bank, has discovered a counterfeit silver dollar that is pronounced by all bank people in this city absolutely the most dangerous ever seen. It is the standard silver dollar of 1881. The outside is silver, and the die in every substantial particular as clear as the original. It stands all microscopical tests. The only possible means of detection is by the weight, it being exactly 47 grains short of the standard, and estimated at about 43 grains short of the average.

He had just returned from his summer vacation, and describing of mountain scenery to a lady friend, he asked: "Have you ever seen the Cats-kill-mountains?" and she answered: "No! but I have seen the Bulls-cough-syrup!"
