Proceedings of the Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association of the United States.

The Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association of the United States met at the Neil House, Columbus, Ohio, June 17, 1886. The meeting was one of unusual interest. The various papers read all embodied deep thought and research. The most interesting discussions were on the value and use of fruit, and regarding the best methods of preparing fruit for market and preserving it for family use. The opinion seemed prevalent that evaporated fruit was bound to obtain and hold the highest position in public favor. Not only is evaporated fruit superior in appearance, in flavor, in healthfulness and in keeping properties, but it commands a much higher price. Ordinary dried apples are worth from two to two and a half cents per pound, evaporated apples from eight to ten cents. Common dried peaches are worth from three to five cents, evaporated from eighteen to twenty-two cents. Ezra Arnold, the Illinois fruit grower, presented drawing and specifications of a cheap evaporator made and used by himself, with which he has had better success than with the more expensive dry houses and evaporators. He evaporated apples in two hours, strawberries in three hours, peaches in two hours, cherries in two hours, corn in two hours and all kinds of fruits proportionately quick. The evaporator is a marvel of simplicity and excellence, and can be made by any one at a very trifling cost. By its use millions of dollars can be saved the producer and consumer each year. There are thousands of families that dry large quantities of fruit annually in the old fashioned slow way, and sell it at the old fashioned low price, when they could with but little expense make an evaporator and evaporate five times as much fruit and sell it for five times as much per pound. There are thousands of families in the cities that can at times, when the market is glutted, buy fruit for less than the cost of production, and with an evaporator can prepare in a few days sufficient fruit for a year's consumption, and at one-tenth the usual expenditure. Mr. Arnold said he did not intend to make or sell evaporators and would consign to the Association his right and title to his evaporators provided the Association would procure cuts to illustrate the different parts and distribute gratuitously among the farmers, fruit raisers and consumers of the United States complete illustrated directions for making and using this evaporator. On motion, Mr. Arnold's proposition was accepted, and the following resolution adopted:

Resolved, That the secretary of the Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association be authorized to inform the people through the leading newspapers in each State, that illustrated directions for making and using Arnold's fruit evaporator can be obtained by addressing our secretary, W. Orlando Smith, P. O. box 104, Alliance, Ohio, enclosing stamps for return postage, and that the secretary draw on the treasurer for the necessary amount to defray expense of wood cuts, printing, etc. On motion a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Arnold for his valuable gift to the Association. On motion, a vote of thanks was tendered the press throughout the country at large for the courtesies extended to us in publishing the call for the meeting of our Association, and for publishing the proceedings of our previous meetings. On motion the Association adjourned to meet at the Southern Hotel, St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 3, 1886, at 10 a. m.

W. O. SMITH, Secy.

The address of the farmers of Georgia is T. H. Kibbrough, the efficient master of the State Grange, in full of vigor and timely counsel. After reviewing the work accomplished by the Patrons of Husbandry in the past, he closes with this stirring appeal: The time has arrived in which we should be fully united and well organized, and prepare our people for making such demands as will secure to us our industrial recognition of our rights and privileges. The increasing requirements of rural facilities prove that the efforts of the Grange in attempting to educate our people have been appreciated. The ministry agree that there is a general improvement of their flock. Society attracts the benefit of the Grange in every section. Our society was the first to relieve suffering humanity in the remote parts of Georgia, over-flowed sections of Mississippi and the grasshopper regions of the Northwest. In the Grange we have a brotherly sympathy for each other that brings relief and is well calculated to comfort when finances are hard, clouds overhang our future and depression fills our bosom. Since God has said no man should live unto himself, it behooves us to be ever ready to extend to each other a cordial help that can be secured through co-operation that is honorable. Many in our State, of their own free will and accord, promised to abide rules and regulations, observe the precepts and obey the injunctions of our Order. Your Grange may be dormant, the copartnership may be dissolved, yet there is no way to rid yourself of the obligation and responsibility but in the discharge of duty! Does this apply to you or your Grange? The State Grange of Georgia makes an appeal to you for help in this great struggle in which you are deeply and equally interested. Can we expect a hearty response from you? I acknowledge many failures, but we have not time to recount or quibble about them; the emergency of a near future calls on you now to act. The demand is upon us and has never been of more importance. We meet with discouragements in all avocations of life. In the Christian career, we fall into the slough of despond, clouds overhang us, often almost despairing! What do we do? We can't afford to turn back, hence we consider our church row, look to "Star of Bethlehem." View the cross, behold a bleeding Savior! Take fresh courage and renew our efforts. So with the Grange; we are not able to neglect its opportunities or reject its benefits. I would urge a revival in the farmer's organization, rally around the flag, unfurl its banners to the breeze. Make the small sacrifice of time, meet promptly the small dues, hold occasional open meetings, and let the farmers know the true objects and principles of our Order, and determine if the effort is a failure it shall not be my fault. Be prompt, be true and faithful, and the great God will not suffer a failure, but will grant a glorious success. Let me urge you while living to do act that when death calls you hence, you will be entitled to the memory given to the faithful "husbandman." Your wife will find true and tried friends among the brotherhood to console, counsel and advise. As your body is being deposited in the grave, may it be handled tenderly by the brethren, and have inscribed as an epitaph upon your tombstone, "here lies a true and faithful Patron of Husbandry." If information is needed, I cheerfully refer you to the worthy secretary at Southern Challenger.

A Requested Address.

iron cover. In that jar I found $50 in greenbacks, $175 in gold and silver, and silverware and jewelry which I sold for $600. On the morning of the third day after my lack I stood at the door and saw two men drive up to a point in the road opposite the trap. They hitched the horse, shouldered a satchel and made for the spot where I had lifted out the jar. When they reached it they seemed paralyzed. I walked down to them and pleasantly observed: "Mr. Yankee, you are just two days too late. Much obliged for your contribution to a poor old Granger." They made no reply. They gave me one with look of disgust and walked off with out a word. I picked up the jar and carried it home. I have never seen them since. I have never seen them since. I have never seen them since.
