Persons having library books will please return them on Friday at 9 o'clock a.m. at the school.

City Officers.
The Mayor of the City of New Berne, N. C., has received a telegram from Mr. W. A. Conway, Mayor of Charleston, S. C., containing the receipt of a draft for $1,000 from the citizens of Wilmington. The draft for this amount was sent by the relief committee Monday night, and the $1,000 was previously made the total contributions from this city for $9,300.

We clip the above from the Wilmington Star. Our worthy neighbors have done nobly and as North Carolinians we feel proud of the course they have pursued. We believe Mayor Hall and his committee were the first to cheer the suffering people of Charleston with their generous and the first to tender relief in all the way of a contribution. All honor to Wilmington.

In the old story, Love at first sight. A walk in the beautiful moonlight, both catch a dreadful cold and are up all night. Finally find in a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Cure, and are at last cured.

How to Vote the Coalition Ticket.

We have been asked by a Democrat, "How can a good Democrat vote the coalition ticket, knowing Clark to be opposed to the present county government?" We told him we did not take much stock in the politics of the present day, and respectfully referred him to our friend Mann, of the JOURNAL, for further information.

We clip the above from the Free Will Baptist, a religious journal published in this city.

If we understand what constitutes a "good Democrat," it is not a difficult matter to answer the question propounded above.

We take it that a "good Democrat" is one that will abide by the action of the party in convention assembled, and not put his individual opinion against the representative men of his party. If the proper representatives of the party decide upon a line of action in local matters that in no way affect the fundamental principles of the party, a good Democrat will yield his individual opinions and go with his party. It is the same in State and National politics. Whatever the State convention, or National convention, decides as best for the party, the "good Democrat" will fall in line and support it, no matter what his individual opinion.

Now this "good Democrat" ought to know something of the condition of the political parties in this county. He ought to know that the Republicans have an overwhelming majority, and if he has kept posted he ought to know that there are internal dissensions in this party, brought about, it is charged, by bribing and corrupting delegates to their conventions, and that these dissensions have grown into two distinct factions. One of these factions, the conservative element, we believe, offers to unite with the Democrats in electing members of the General Assembly and county officers. The case stands thus: The radical element of the Republican party say to the Democrats, "we intend to rule this county; we will nominate just such men as we want for county officers and send Green and Husey to the General Assembly and we don't care whether you like it or not; in fact, the more you dislike our ticket, the harder we will work to elect it; we hate Democrats and hate everything that they like."

The conservative element of the Republican party say to the Democrats: "We have a 'rule or ruin' element in our party; we can not hold a convention with them without a row; they will not consent to a fair convention, but bribe the delegates so as to defeat the will of the people. We will join you in a ticket; we will nominate candidates for county officers, and you may nominate candidates for the General Assembly and we will meet in mass convention and endorse the ticket."

Now, we suppose this "good Democrat," being a good deal like the radical element of the Republican party, would have rejected and treated such a proposition with contempt. He would have replied, "No, give us all or we will have nothing."

But such wise, conservative, staunch and sound Democrats as Maj. John Hughes, H. R. Bryan, Clement Manly, E. H. Meadows, S. W. Latham, M. DoW, Stevenson, John S. Long, James A. Bryan, and numerous others whom we could mention, said after consultation, that for the good of this community the party ought to accept the proposition, and it was agreed to submit it to the county executive committee, who, in full meeting assembled, unanimously endorsed it. It was also agreed that they should name the candidates for the General Assembly to go on the ticket and after fully discussing the matter the names of C. C. Clark for the Senate, and W. B. Lane for the House were suggested and there was but one dissenting voice. This action of the executive committee was unanimously endorsed by the regular Democratic county convention which assembled at the theatre in this city August 18th. This would seem to be enough for a good Democrat.

But it seems that this particular Democrat is solicitous about Mr. Clark's position on county government. If so, was it not just as easy to find Mr. Clark's office as that of the Free Will Baptist? We have not interviewed Mr. Clark on this matter, but we know the fact that his fitness for the position was thoroughly discussed by the executive committee, and that Mr. James A. Bryan, chairman of the board of county commissioners, and a man whose position on county government is well known in this county, warmly advocated Mr. Clark as the proper man to put upon this ticket for the Senate.

Now the way for this Democrat to vote the coalition ticket, is to see that his name is on the registration book and go to the polls on the 1st Tuesday in November and deposit his ballot. When he has done this he will have done a good thing for his county and country, and will be none the less a true Democrat. Indeed, can he really be a "good Democrat" unless he abides the action of the executive committee and the party in convention assembled?

The Ruins of Charleston.

Mr. E. M. Pate returned from Charleston yesterday evening, and his story of the ruins of that unfortunate city is sad and interesting. Mr. Pate is an architect and builder and can form a pretty good idea about the extent of damages to a building. He remained in the city four days, arriving Saturday night and leaving last Wednesday night. We have space only in this issue for a condensed statement of what he says and will endeavor to give it in his own words.

"In the first place," said he, "it is almost impossible to describe the real state of things in Charleston. To appreciate the extent of the damages one must go and see for himself. The papers have not only not exaggerated the extent of its destruction but none of them in any account I have seen have told half. I don't believe there is a chimney standing whole, and I hardly think there is a building but what is more or less damaged. I and two other gentlemen, the Messrs. Marks, walked ten or eleven miles each day while I was there, besides going in a carriage part of the time, and going along the streets we would see buildings that appeared to be uninjured, but upon going into them were surprised to find the plastering all down and great cracks in the walls. Down at the Battery those elegant buildings are all in ruins. The walls are split from top to bottom, and what I mean by a split is a crack that you can run your hand in and move it up and down touching the brick. At least two-thirds of the brick buildings are unsafe. There is not a church that can be used for holding services, all the various halls of secret societies are unsafe; the public halls are also unfit for use; not a single fire company, and I think there are ten, has a place to put its engine. At Magnolia cemetery many of the fine monuments and tombstones have been thrown down and broken to pieces, in fact the destruction is almost complete."

Are the people in need of help?
"There is no immediate suffering so far as food is concerned. The city authorities are issuing rations, and water are continually arriving, and many people have left and are continually leaving the city. If it should set in raining there is bound to be much suffering, because the buildings are unsafe."

We could write columns of the story as told by Mr. Pate, but our space is up. To sum up, he says the city must virtually be rebuilt before it is a safe habitation for man.

Mayor's Court.

On Wednesday night four colored girls were walking down Queen street imitating, in derision, the services at one of the churches by shouting and clapping hands. Their noise attracted the attention of the police. Yesterday morning they were before the Mayor and were adjudged guilty of disorderly conduct. Upon a promise of future good behavior, judgment was suspended on payment of cost.

One case for trading (without license) was adjudged guilty, fined $1.00 and cost and required to get out license.

The First of the Earthquake.

The shock of the earthquake was felt first at Charleston on Friday, August 27th. It was slight in that city and other points; but at Summerville, the following from the News and Courier of the next day gives this information. The reader will notice that this was on Friday preceding the fearful shock of the Tuesday night following:

"It was about half past 8 o'clock in the morning, the weather being fair and with not the slightest indication of what was in a few minutes about to transpire. All of a sudden and without the slightest premonition of disturbance or danger, the shock of an earthquake was distinctly felt. It produced, of course, the utmost consternation, as it lasted for several seconds. People left their houses and ran out into the streets to avoid the imminent crash of a falling house or a roof tumbling in on the inmates. The shock was particularly severe down by the depot, where, in some of the stores, Lowery's, Emanuel's and others, the articles were shaken from the shelves of the store to the floor. The shock affected a very large territory, inasmuch as every house within the town was shaken, and reports have been received, covering a radius of at least four miles, from Summerville which state that the shock was everywhere felt within that limit."

"Some of the people from Summerville who talked on the subject yesterday, said that a rumbling sound was first heard in a northeasterly direction from the town, and that that sound was followed by an explosion resembling that of cannon at a distance. From this circumstance it is said by some of the people of the town that the shaking up of the houses was caused by the explosion of a meteor in the neighborhood of the town. This, however, would have been accompanied momentarily by a sudden blaze of light which, according to trustworthy authorities, did not take place. The prevailing opinion is that yesterday's disturbance was a genuine earthquake."

Salvation Oil, the greatest cure on earth for pain, may be relied on to effect a cure wherever an external application can be used. Price only 25 cts. a bottle.

BRIEFS.

Secretary Manning will soon return to Washington to resume his duties at the Treasury Department.

In four of the six districts of Maryland the prohibition party has made nominations for Congress.

It is charged that 2,000,000 gallons of Brooklyn water have been stolen daily for years and sold to Coney Island hotels.

A great religious awakening is in progress at Wilmington. Sixty-five persons have connected themselves with the Mt. Zion A. M. E. Church there within the past week.

Comptroller of the Currency Trenchard has issued an order enforcing the law requiring National banks to make reports of their condition to the Treasury. The price is $100 for every day the reports are withheld.

The Old Bay line, plying between Norfolk and Baltimore, is arranging for the construction of another new steamship, to cost a quarter of a million dollars. It is to be 200 feet long, 40 feet beam, and 17 feet depth of hold, and will be fitted with the most improved features in steamship equipments.

In the defeat of the Galates by the Mayflower, the Britishers are once more compelled to return without the cup, but they are plucky and are not likely to become discouraged. As to powerful iron clads and magnificent ocean steamships, the United States can make no comparison with England, but for small swift sailers, American skill and Yankee ingenuity are way ahead.

The story of a strange incident comes from Savannah, Ga. A young lady who had been speechless since childhood, caused, from a severe attack of meningitis, was made to speak when the heavy shock of earthquake took place on the 21st ultimo. She was so much frightened that she screamed aloud and her voice has been gradually returning ever since, until now she converses quite intelligently.

The people of Charleston are as noble as their fair city by the sea is beautiful. Time and again has she been visited by destructive fires, cyclones, and tidal waves, and when aid was offered she courteously refused. But alas! she is in ruins, three-fourths of her buildings are wrecked and her people are without shelter. Never before was public sympathy so thoroughly aroused for these brave Carolinians in their hour of need. Visitors to the city report that affairs are in a much more deplorable condition than the inhabitants have made known. Offers of relief have extended as far as London where the Lord Mayor has opened a fund.

WOMEN'S COLUMN.

Often neglect and delay in giving proper attention to their children who have become unhealthy. Place your sickly daughter upon the use of B. B. B. as a tonic and general regulator, give it to your weak and feeble children; prescribe it to your husband and soon as a general tonic and appetizer before breakfast and they will never have any use for whisky bitters.

Kinston Items.

Kinston College had 71 pupils on the second day of its fall session.

The cotton pickers are in the cotton fields after the new crop. In some parts of the county this work is very brisk. The crop will be an average of 2,000.

The "old campaigner" is now receiving at his pavilion a full supply of country produce as well as a good stock of tropical fruits and Northern apples. The public, however, have their eyes on his immense lot of bottles.

Mrs. Cummings has recently dressed up her Variety Store with a fresh coat of paint, neatly put on, which gave it a very nice appearance; but it looks much nicer inside when you can see all that is good to eat and to wear.

Many of the cities and towns of the State are sending material help to stricken Charleston. Kinston has not yet moved in the matter, expecting, perhaps, a similar visitation and therefore husbanding her resources for any fate. Our city fathers have the bump of foresight largely developed.

The bachelors and widowers are moving hurriedly in hymeneal matters, believing it is not good for man to sleep alone in earthquake times. In this view the recent disturbance of affairs below may prove a godsend to many anxious females who dread old maidism more than earthquake. They beat leopards as helps to marrying.

Many of the merchants and business men of Kinston last Monday availed themselves of the invitation of the A. & N. C. Railroad management to take a pleasure trip to the sea. Such courtesies cultivate the social side of life and bring about an era of good feeling. Let them be repeated. Our thanks for an invitation.

We had another slight shock of an earthquake here about 9 o'clock last Monday morning. The colored people are becoming very much excited and alarmed, and we may look out for an exodus in some direction. They are having prayer-meetings every night, which are kept up till 12 o'clock at night.

From the Lone Star State.
HITCHENS, Tex., Feb. 1885.
For many years my wife has been afflicted with a large eating ulcer of the leg, which has had the attention of several doctors, and the use of all kinds of medicine, without benefit.

She was told that B. B. B. would cure her. She has used two bottles, and the ulcers improved rapidly until entirely cured.

It was the first and only medicine that ever did any good.
