THE JOURNAL

NEW BERNE, N. O., OCT, 1, 1886.

Spiking a Candidate's Guns.

The brothers Robert and Alfred Taylor are opposing candidates for Governor of Tennessee, the first named being a Democrat, the other a Republican. They belong to one of the best families in Tennessee, and both have a natural gift of contour. During the last few days oratory. During the last few days Alf.'s voice has failed him, and realizing that Bob was gaining realizing that Bob was gaining ground on the stump in consequence, he hit upon a plan to checkmate him. The idea was suggested by an experience of Col. Dick Menefee, of Kentucky, in a Congressional race many years ago. Col. Menefee had served one term in Congress, and having had a faste of Washington political life his heart craved for more. He was a very popular man in his district, a very popular man in his district, a part of which lay in the mountain part of which lay in the mountain regions, and was confident of success. His rival, Judge Hogan, was a shrewd man, however, and, when early in the last days of the canvass, Menefee visited the mountains on horseback, he found that all of his old friends in that region were pledged to vote for Hogan. He could not understand it, but he saw that unless he could do something to stem the tide his defeat was certain. He soon learned that the secret of Judge Hogan's popularity was that he played the violin at parties. Menefee was for a time at his wit's end, but one night he found a large party gathered in a country school house with his rival playing away as hard as he knew how. Calling one of the most influential men in the room to one side, Menefee said quietly: "Judge Hogan plays very well." "Yes," was the reply, "we like a man who is not above coming around and furnishing music for us." "I notice that the Judge plays with his left hand up here," said Menefee. | Hogan was left-handed. "Why," said the influential citizen, "what do you mean?"

"Nothing much," replied Menefee, indifferently, "only he always uses his right hand when in Lexington."

This story went over the district very rapidly. The well-known jealousy existing between the city and county helped it along, and Judge Hogan was overwhelmingly defeated.—Cincinnati Times Star.
