THE JOURNAL.

NEW BERN, N. C., OCT. 19, 1886.

Onslow Items.

Very dry in our county; no rain for six weeks.

Mr. E. W. Mattocks has returned to Florida to stay.

Gathering corn and deer hunting are the chief occupations of the people now.

Miss Minnie Ward, of Swansboro, has returned to Richlands to teach school again at Mr. C. Stephens'.

Revs. Paris and Dixon held a protracted meeting at Jacksonville last week, with five accessions to their church, among them Mrs. L. L. Hoyt, of Jacksonville.

Rev. Mr. Cashwell preached his last sermon at Richlands last Sunday to a large audience. One admission to his church that day, Miss Bettie Williams, daughter of Fountain Williams, Esq.

Mr. J. H. Aman was one we forgot to mention last week in our items concerning the prominent ones in Richlands village. He certainly is one of the prominent ones because he is one of the best wheelwrights and blacksmiths, besides buggy makers, in this county and does his work cheap and good.

It seems that there is more sickness in Swansboro now than for years past. Little Willie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wooten, died this week near Coburn creek, and Mrs. Capt. Joe Bell died at her home in Swansboro last Monday, aged about 50 years. She leaves a husband and several children to mourn her death. Several others are sick.

We were at Jacksonville last Monday and after seeing and hearing what we could, came off very near sober. One of the best things we heard was the speech of Dr. J. W. Sanders, the regular Democratic nominee for Senator for this district, the 9th. We do hope that dissatisfaction in regard to Col. Whitford's candidacy will terminate fairly by Col. Whitford's not attempting to run, as he would get no votes, or very few, in this county.

Mr. G. W. Ward's school closed last Saturday. Will give you report of examination next week. A large crowd came out to hear his scholars and were well pleased with their recitations, compositions, reviews, etc. Mr. Ward says he is now ready for the next chance to take another school, but don't want all to speak at once and say "we want you." We don't profess to be a high graduate but we can spell Florida and don't pronounce it "Florida," either, as some say we do.

Ned Merrill went hunting again yesterday, for the fiftieth time, and shot a big buck, as usual, and as usual, didn't get him. But Frank Melton says "run, Ned, run! you have crippled him!" and Ned did run his loyal best, diverting himself of all things contrary to his impediment, but he didn't "catch 'em, then;" and on returning, blowing and puffing like a "porpoise," found he had lost his "Sunday-go-to-meetin'" coat, a pair of $2.50 "specks," all his ammunition, and Bryan Hargett said, three or four dollars in specie, and the fanniest part was like to have lost himself, as it was in the poosin, and had not Andrew Marshburn heard some one halloo and went to the rescue, Ned would probably have been one of the lost people. Next day a party went to hunt for the dead deer and lost coat, etc. They found the dead deer and the ashes of the coat and other articles, Ned having set the woods afire to make the deer get out, but this he didn't tell until it was found out on him, and now he lays it on Bryan Hargett. Now Ned says he is done driving forever.
