Farmers' Movement in South Carolina.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 10 - The farmers of South Carolina, under the leadership of Capt. R. B. Tillman, met in convention in this city yesterday and have continued in session during today. This convention has met for the purpose of 'instructing the Legislature," which the gift the Comte said he took the convenes in a few weeks, to pass such greatest interest in everything contribulaws as the convention deems suitable to the farmers. There are two hundred delegates in the convention, representing twenty-six counties of the State. The farmers claim to hold the balance of power in the State and purpose to run things to suit themselves. Capt. Tillman, Enniss, Publisher, Raleigh, Turner's the originator of the movement, charges the minds of some of the farmers t such an extent that they believe that are being robbed of all they have, and blame the State administration for short crops. The constitution which the farmers have adopted terms them "The Farmers' Association of South Carolina." They propose to take part in politics and have a hand in the Legislature whenever it effects their interests. They claim that they have been a long time without their rights, but propose to have them now. Resolutions instructing the Legislature to place the management of the department of agriculture in their hands has been adopted. The result of this farmers' movement will very probably be the making of an independent party in 1888.

> Senator Wallace on Cleveland and the Democrats.

> NEW YORK, Nov. 7 .- "Do you think that Cleveland is going to be the next candidate for President?"

"That is very far off," said Mr. Wallace. "I think this election ought to have a tendency to bring him to some revision of his policy and methods. He professes to be elevating the Democratic party, but he cannot elevate it by instituting a comparison advantageous to himself and to the disparagement of the party. When we hear that the Presi-dent is desparately opposed to the office-holders controlling the conventions, and then see before our faces that they are in the conventions making the nominations, we wonder if this elevating standard does not exist everywhere but at home. The Democratic party is not opposed to a civil service re-form which shall be something else than a compromise with the Republican party. We want officeholders who have neither in the past nor the present have neither in the past nor the present interfered with the free exercise of their political rights by the people. Mr. Cleveland has not made any impression on the affections of the great mass of the Democratic party, which is a warmhearted party, and desires to consider its chieftain as its friend. The party has been patronized for sometime past without having received its due, and the late election in Pennsylvania is a warning to this Administration to have fewer favorities to keep their hands off the conventions."—Cincinnati Enquirer.
