The colored graded school will close for the holidays tomorrow evening and open again on the first Monday in January.

The Bingham-Turlington affair is still the sensation in Raleigh. The girl had not been found up to last reports which we get from the News and Observer. Bingham has been heard from in New York and is said to be insane.

It is a pleasure to see so many of our merchants so busy. The holidays are rapidly approaching, almost here, and the people are coming from every direction to lay in their supplies. They could not come to a better place to get much with a little money.

The seats for Howorth's Hibernica went off right rapidly yesterday. Today is the last chance, as the board will not be opened after tonight. The performance will be on Saturday night and everybody that attends will be merry whether they want to or not.

Fire Cotton.
Col. J. N. Whitford, of Jones county, was at the cotton exchange yesterday with a lot of cotton which brought nine cents per pound. The Colonel always leads the market, and it is because he has his cotton picked out and ginned with care. It is only occasionally that a bale or two of such cotton is put upon the market here, but his entire crop is marketed in this condition. Hence, the extra price.

The Whistles of the Season.
Everybody whose employment takes them over the wharves on the Trent river side of the town is aware of the delightful sensation produced by the whistle of any one of the river steamers. And any one whose sleeping apartments are in that portion of the city can also give evidence to the pleasure of an awakening by one of these resonant notes in the night time. But Capt. Dave Roberts thinks that the steamer Trent gave, on Tuesday night, the grand whistle of the season. She began her after passing Clermonts bridge and kept on an unbroken scream until the railroad bridge was reached, and finding the draw not raised, she gently roused her crew against the bridge and whistled for nearly thirty minutes. Capt. Roberts says that she whistled every body in town but Jack Dismway and the bridge keeper.

Fire.

Yesterday evening about 5 o'clock a lamp exploded in a small grocery store at Five Points, just across the street from Hackburn Bros., occupied by Daniel Moseley, col. The explosion of the lamp was quickly followed by the explosion of the can which contained kerosene oil. Instantly the whole street round about was lighted up by the blaze and the building with three others adjoining were almost consumed before the fire department could get there.

Moseley and wife were both seriously burned. The next building on the west side was occupied by Benj. Burres, col., as a store and residence, the next by — Wilson. The building on the east side was occupied by Mrs. Tilling.

The buildings all belonged to R. G. Moseley, col., and were partially insured. The fire department rushed to the scene promptly and kept the fire confined to those buildings. The loss is estimated at about $1,000.

Personal.
Mr. J. M. Wiggins, of Dudley, Wayne county, was in the city yesterday on his way to Mr. T. H. Mallison where he will spend the holidays in sporting.

Dr. F. P. Gates and Mr. J. F. Cowell, of Bayboro, arrived yesterday. Dr. Gates is on his way to his old home in Lenoir county to spend Christmas.

Master J. L. Rhein has returned from Bingham's school for the holidays.

Dr. C. J. Matlock, of Jones county, called to see us yesterday. He reports the health of his system remarkably good.

Messrs. E. H. Ross, J. E. Blakes, S. W. Venters, of Onslow, and Joseph Maids, Cyrus Lowman and Frank Loy, of Jones, were among the many arrivals yesterday evening.

Messrs. Benj. Hooker, May Cain, of Pamlico, and Miss Gertrude Bagby, of this city, arrived from Kinsey's School at La Grange last night and will remain home for the holidays. They are highly pleased with the school and look as bright and rosy as if they were just from the mountains.

Lieut. F. D. Koonce, jr., of the Davis School at La Grange, arrived last night on his way home for the holidays.

How Wonderful Stories are Manufactured.
Mr. Amos Cook is boring a well just across the street from the JOURNAL office, and the curiosity hunters are to be seen there at all times of the day to find out if possible what is hidden in the bowels of the earth. When the well had been sunk some thirty feet below the surface, our friend C. E. Slover conceived the mischievous idea of finding something remarkable in the sand, marl and rock that was being bored out. Shanks' teeth and things of that sort had become too common and were not attracting much attention so he took a piece of cut glass, which he brought from the mountains early in the fall, and went down to the well and slipped into Mr. Cook's hand, who readily understood what to do with it.

When the slush pump was drawn the next time Mr. Cook went to where it was emptied, and after scratching about in it, picked up a piece of "crystallized quartz." It was critically examined and again by the curiosity hunters and the wonder was, how did it get there?

The City Marshal took charge of it as one of the curiosities of the nineteenth century, and various scientists and philosophers in the city have advanced different theories as to how it got there. Cook and Slover had the most plausible one of all, but they kept it to themselves and enjoyed the arguments advanced by others. Had it been brought at once to the JOURNAL office it would have furnished material for a half column article which would have gone the rounds of the press.

That fat man, who the ladies declare is the handsomest man in Washington, used to be an invalid, but he took to hard drinking, not of whiskey, but of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, and now he walks right over the very slenderest dudes, and don't care at all.

The Advent Church.
EDITOR JOURNAL.—Perhaps it will be interesting to your readers to know that a congregation of the Church of the Second Advent faith has been organized in this city and is progressing finely. At the meeting last Sunday Elder Eugene Scott, Adventist, preached a very interesting sermon from John 11th chapter and 24th verse. "Martha saith unto him I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day." The subject was the unconscious state of the dead. He brought up the case of Samuel speaking to Saul, and made a beautiful picture; also the rich man and Lazarus, the thief on the cross and numbers of other passages to destroy the doctrine of phlogology. This church seems to be alive in its working interest.

I have always been much annoyed by neuralgia and headache and finally determined to try Salvation Oil. I am glad to recommend it as it made a perfect cure in my case.

Forty-Ninth Congress—Second Session. SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Mr. Pugh, from the Committee on Judiciary, reported a bill providing that United States circuit and district judges shall reduce to writing instructions to juries, where State judges are required to do so.

Mr. Aldrich offered a concurrent resolution, which was laid on the table, requesting the President to enter into negotiations with the governments of the principal sugar-producing countries of the world with a view of securing mutual agreement by which the United States shall agree to admit free of duty sugar and molasses of such countries, when transported in vessels under the flag of either contracting party, provided such countries admit free of duty into their countries mineral, agricultural and manufactured products of the United States.

The vacancies on the standing committees were filled by the president pro tem, and the Senate bill to incorporate the Windsor Hotel Company, of the District of Columbia, was then taken up, discussed at length and passed.

The Senate then passed bills granting the right of way through the Gila River Indian reservation to the Maricopa and Phoenix Railroad Company, and for the construction of a road to the National Cemetery at Cornith, Miss.

At 3:30 the Senate went into second session, and shortly afterwards adjourned.

HOUSE REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Wilkins, of Ohio, reported back, and the House adopted the Weaver resolution calling upon the Secretary of the Treasury for information respecting expenditures in issuing or concealing Treasury notes.

The following resolutions and bills, under call of States, were introduced:

By Mr. Tallice (Ky.)—A resolution reciting that it is stated in the newspapers that the Secretary of the Treasury has paid the interest on certain bonded indebtedness of the United States before said interest was due and without rebate; that said advance of interest was made for the purpose of affecting certain stocks in Wall street, and requesting the Secretary to inform the House if such interest has been so paid, and if so why and by what authority.

Mr. Cox (N. Y.) offered a joint resolution directing the House Committee on Appropriations to present to the House a suitable plan of coast defense.

By Mr. Wilkins (Ohio)—A bill to reduce the amount of United States bonds to be required of the national banks.

By Mr. Cox (N. Y.)—A resolution calling upon the President for information regarding the expulsion from Russia of S. Michelbacher, an American citizen, on account of his being a Hebrew.

By Mr. Johnston (N. C.)—A resolution instructing the Committee on Ways and Means to report a bill repealing the internal revenue laws.

Mr. Morrison introduced a resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means, providing for a holiday recess from Wednesday next until January 4.

Mr. Hiscock called up his motion to suspend the rules and pass the bill increasing the duties on Sumatra tobacco.

Mr. Morrison opposed the bill. He said on Saturday last the House, with concurrence of the gentleman from New York (Mr. Hiscock), decided not to have any revenue legislation, neither to increase nor diminish the revenues, and indeed not to consider the question.

After further debate Mr. Hiscock's motion was defeated—yeas, 90; nays, 165.

On motion of Mr. Forney, of Alabama, from the Committee on Militia, the rules were suspended and the Senate bill passed increasing the annual appropriation for the militia from $200,000 to $400,000.

The Speaker laid before the House a message from the President transmitting a report from the Secretary of State in relation to the invitation from Her Britannic Majesty to participate in an international exhibition to be held at Adelaide, Australia, in 1887. Referred.

Mr. Townshend (Ill.) moved to suspend the rules and pass a bill limiting the jurisdiction of United States Courts in patent cases, and to protect persons who, without notice, are bona fide manufacturers, purchasers, vendors and users of patents.

Messrs. Townshend, Henderson

(Iowa), Morgan (Ala.) and O'Donnell (Mich.) spoke in favor of the bill, and Messrs. Hammond (Ga.) and Butterworth (Ohio) opposed it.

Mr. Mills, in order to prevent a vote on it, moved to adjourn, which motion was agreed to, and at 4:30 the House adjourned.

In Memory of Dr. W. H. Barker.

In the city of New Berne, on the 10th day of December, 1886, at half-past nine o'clock p. m., of heart disease, died Dr. W. H. Barker at the age of fifty-nine years.

Dr. Barker was born on the 13th day of February, 1827, in a small village in the northern part of England, that part of England which is truly the lowlands of Scotland, where Fox and Burns are friends and Burns are friends and companions.

Going at an early age to Edinburgh and living there until manhood, he was a Scot in education, sympathies and feelings. In this great city of philosophers he began the study of philosophy and studied from the schools the views of philosophy which guided him through a greater part of his life.

When at twenty-four years old he came to America as a lecturer on phrenology, first going to Tennessee, from thence to Georgia, and coming to North Carolina in 1852. As a professional lecturer he visited almost all the Southern States, but having married in North Carolina in 1851 he passed most of his time in this State, and the name of Dr. Barker soon became a household word. His wife having died in November of the same year, he married Miss Mary W. S. in 1853, and with five children he left for his home in England in 1854.

The death of the good man, who was born and starting to the city of New Berne during the day and up to the moment of death he seemed to the usual server in full health and to all who were uncomplaining. Yet his death was not a surprise to a few friends to whom he had frankly told his condition. His own accurate knowledge of the human organization had not deceived him in his own case. An organic disarrangement of the heart, with its sudden mortal effect, he had quickly discovered and appreciated. The knowledge seemed to cause him no perceptible alarm, and those to whom he disclosed his fatal trouble well remember his resignation; his calm preparation for the inevitable hour. Noble, true, steadfast in this great trial as in all actions of life. But to the general public to whom he belonged for nearly thirty years, the news of Dr. Barker's death was a startling announcement, carrying universal sorrow and sympathy. Together with his wife he had gone on a visit to the home of Mr. Thomas Daniels, a friend, with whom in latter years he passed most of his time, and was while away a spare winter evening playing the game of draughts. Both were intent on the game, and in the pause of the play his adversary said to him, "Move, it is your time." The hand was still. The friend looked up. Dr. Barker was dead. His last move was made, the game was ended. So passed the noble old man.

A varied life with manifold and strange experiences, a mind stored with extensive and rare learning, ripened and enriched by years of accurate and unceasing observation, a character most ingenious, a heart kind and tender, without one selfish or selfish purpose, a strong man, full of human strength, yet bowed in humility to the teachings of the Carpenter of Nazareth. He had seen and felt the world, had endured its hardships, and rejoiced in its pleasures, had trod its rough roads, and walked in its joyous paths. The journey now was ended.

From a natural independence of thought and from education Dr. Barker found himself, at an early age, aloft in the mighty current of the world, without religious convictions, save such as reason and the power of logic could enforce upon him. So he remained until the summer of 1857, happening at this time in Swansboro, where a revival was being held in the Methodist church under the direction of Dr. L. S. Burkhead. Dr. Barker attended the services to see how the arguments in behalf of Christian doctrine stood in the crucible of reason. The spirit of the Master fell upon him. A true mind and ever honest, he welcomed the grace of God, and up to the hour of his death was a strong and steadfast member of the Methodist Church.

Dr. Barker was sincere and true in everything. His faith was the faith of the child, and confident of the saving grace he passed away.

How many will remember him with love and affection, how many will miss the loved friend—his genial humor, his sparkling wit, his charming dissertations on the mind and on human kind, wherein his marvelous practical study of men made him the sage and philosopher. The rarest of companions—how many, how very many, will miss him. Those who knew him and loved him will keep fresh through time the memory of him passed to mother earth. No tribute need be thus offered. In the silent sorrow of many hearts, each pays in fond remembrance his individual tribute of love and admiration.

Stonewall Items.

The young folks anticipate having a tournament at this place on the 6th of January next.

Sid Lane has on hand a lot of Christmas tricks, and will be pleased to see all in need of such.

S. H. Harris left here on the 21st for Swift creek, where he expects to be hitched in double harness with Miss Dinkins for a life voyage through this world. May their days be many and happy in the land.

William Gibb's horse fell down and broke his leg Tuesday evening in Bayboro. Andrew Flowers lost his horse at the tournament at Aurora. A. H. Hamlin and George Bright have each lost a valuable farm horse with staggers within the past few days.

Dr. Attmore had the bad luck to get one of his buggy wheels smashed to atoms on Tuesday near Alligator creek, below the village. Bradford Gatin's horse balked and just as the Doctor passed him he started with a rush and struck the Doctor's wheel, which caused the smash up.

Kinston Items.

Much nothing going on now.

Mrs. Prof. Geo. D. Meares went up to Raleigh to visit her mother last Saturday.

Mr. H. S. Lewis, of Davie county, is here to spend the holidays with his parents.

Miss Eliza Ward of Shawboro, a former pupil of Kinston College, was in town Saturday, and had just come from Raleigh.

A crowd of colored carpenters, who came from Georgia, arrived last night by train. A considerable amount of work was done.

The Messrs. Pittman, who have been spending some time here on a visit to the family of Mr. J. A. Bragg, returned to Raleigh last night.

When the dark clouds of a storm were all about us, a light shone in the sky, and a voice was heard saying, "The light is coming." The light was a ray of hope, and the voice was the voice of God.

Mr. Frank Sutton, a resident of the county, will move into town about the second week in January next. He will occupy the house where Mr. W. W. Dunn now resides. We will welcome Mr. Sutton as a citizen of Kinston, and in this welcome we will be most heartily joined by the beaux of our town. There are young ladies in the case.
