Ve publish is another column a communication from a farmer of Onslow county concerning a railroad from New river to Trent river. It is in accord with an enterprise that the JOURNAL has often urged. We believe our business men fully concur with the sentiments expressed in the communication and we believe they will give the matter their attention. We would like to hear from more of the farmers of C low and Jones on the subject.

From New River to Trent River.

ONSLOW COUNTY, Feb. 7, 1887.

EDITOR JOURNAL:- 1 am pleased $ earn that a bill has been introduced in the present session of our General As sembly and favorably reported upon by appropriate committees from both branches of the same, which looks some thing like imprevement for Eastern North Carolina, as I understand the so fine that he found a ready market for substance of this bill is this: It transfers it in New York. It was necessary to $25 convicts to be employed in cutting send the separagus packed in crates by certain canals and public roads through express, so that it might arrive fresh the State's lands in several sections of and in good condition. The expressage Eastern North Carolina. This is a good was $3 per crate, and after this and the move and this bill ought to pass without the slightest objections. While it and a half sores netted him $300. If will be some help to our county, it will not begin to accomplish the object that and a half acres of land, then I do not our people so much desire, and for understand anything about gardening. our people so much desire, and for which every industry with us is almost paralyzed for the want of. We wants refired into Onslow county; that will refired into Orslow county; that will more rapidly develop our resources than anything else that can be done for it.

Mr. Editor, did it ever occur to you etables and that which is brought from Mr. Editor, did it ever occur to you how easily and quickly this would be done and at once open up the grand old county of Onslow to the entside world? It is only about twenty infles from the navigable waters of New giver, in Onslow county, to the navigable waters of the Trent river, in Jones county. The United States Government has greatly improved the navigation of the Trent river by appropriations which have been wisely and carely expended under the guidance and direction of Gen. Report during the past year, and the total respectations of his amount of money expended for the relative transportations and this is saying much as the lief of the poor was $850.

The society is doing a nobla work, but it must rely upon the generouse of the ite of steamers on the New river, but a line of steamers on the New river, but a line of steamers on the New river, and you will have immediately opened to the contribution to the read of the first rections of North Carolina, and will benefit this whole State from the seasone to the mountains. New river is noted for the finest fish and oysters in North Carolina Yes, I believe I can safely venture the assertion that they are equal in flavor nent. Our agricultural and timber in terest and other natural resources are not surpassed by any eastern county. tory at our place, but for some reason in olden times, before railroad and or other it was only run on a small steamboat transportation. Onslow sode. Some parties, a few years ago, county had some as wealthy men as adallished a cotton factory, but they county had some as wealthy men as were to be found in this part of the State. We have the natural resources here to do that again, but all of our industries are dormant. We have not the steam transportation to compete with the outside world. Some of our folks argue that one of these days we will have a through line from Wilmington to New Berne and Norfolk via Wallington, Edenton and Elizabeth City.

Well, I don't knew about that: it may to New Berne and Norfolk via Washington, Edenton and Elizabeth City, Well, I don't knew about that; it may come. I hope that it will, and I do know that auch a line as that, while greatly desired, it is cut of the reversion of the cotton was somewhat rough on us, but we can yell through sil right. The cash system of deing business is gradually saining a stronger hold upon the twenty miles that I have outlined to to you, and with the proper efforts on the part of the pople of Cafeley and Jones counties and of your city it could be done. The State has aided and encouraged the building of valiroads in other sections of North Carolina, and now while there seems to be some display which unimates them in selecting the goods which they sell affects their position in our present Legislature to improve Eastern North Carolina, why I don't your merchants, your board of trade and cotton exchange prepare to charter with the necessary provisions looking to this matter. Our Representative will be a supported by the county of the cotton was somewhat rough on us, but we can yet it the cotton was somewhat rough on us, but we can yet it is constituted and it is possible and provided and the constitute of the part of the cotton was somewhat rough on us, but we can yet it took and yet in the possible and the provide and the possible and the provided and constitute of the part of the cotton was somewhat rough on us, but we can yet it took and yet in the possible and the possible and the constitution of the cotton was somewhat rough on us, but we can yet it took and yet in the cotton was somewhat rough on us, but we can yet it the cotton was somewhat rough on us, but we can yet it the cotton was somewhat rough on us, but we can yet it took and the possible and the count of the cotton was somewhat rough on us, but we can yet it the cotton was somewhat rough on us, but we can yet it the cotton was somewhat rough on us, but we can yet it the cotton was somewhat rough on us, but we can yet it the cotton was somewhat rough on the provide

North Carolina Notes.

Mr. E. B. Hackburn, of New Barne, R. C., was in this city last week, and we had the pleasure of a long conversa-tion with him, and found him a very wide-awake and interesting gentleman. Mr. Hackburn and his brother started several years ago in a small way at New Berne, and by steady application, constant attention to business and a capacity for knowing how to do the right thing at the right time, have built for themselves a business which has placed them among the first merchants of the Old North State. Mr. Hackburn has just dissolved partnership with his brother and starts in for himself, believing that there is room for both of them in a town like New Berne, which is one of the old towns of North Carolina. It is situated at the junction of the Neuse and Trent rivers, and has a population of 10,000 peoples in a Western mind this would convey the idea of an active, enterprising population, but so much can hardly be said of New Berne. Not that its merchants are less active or enterprising, but of the 10,000 people probably 6,000 are ne groes, to whom enterprise in its business sense is an unknown quantity.

In snewer to the question as to business prosperity in his section of the State Mr. Hackburn said that, while business might be a great deal better still it ran along steadily and smoothly and the prospects for great improve-ment in that respect were very bright. The country around New Berne descript. He read a speech which was full of bombastic phrases, and which made him again the laughing stock of the house.

The following hills passed. To see the hore are classified under the one general name of "truck." said Mr. Hackbarn, "I believe to be the future industry of this part of our State, and the possibilities in this lineare very great. If we only had a few canning factories in our section I bemost profitable undertaking, for our soil yields abundantly all kinds of gar
