NEW BERNE, N. C., MARCH 2 1887.

Entered at the Post office at New Berne, N. C. as second-class matter.

THE prospects for an extra session of the Forty-ninth Congress are very good. The forty-ninth Congress expires on Friday and the appropriations bills have not passed. It is the old story of putting off till tomorrow what ought to be done today.

THE West Virginia Legislature has adjourned without electing a U. S. Senator to succeed CAMDEN, whose term expires March 4th. CAMDEN was the regular caucus nominee of the Democratic party, but a few Democrats kicked and turned the joint assembly into a dead lock. The Governor will now appoint a successor to CAMDEN.

SENATOR VANCE TACKLES THE UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD AND CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS.

SENATOR VANCE is now the acknowledged champion of the people's rights as against oppressive railroad corporations. He is ever ready to unsheath his keen blade of wit and sarcasm and turn it against those who endeavor to uphold these corporations in their oppressive and unjust schemes. On Friday night last when the Senate was discussing the proposition to investigate the Pacific railroads he went for the Union Pacific and its President, CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, in the following style:

"The history of this railroad corporation may be said to have been conceived in sin and brought forth in iniquity. One of the most enormous public scandals connected with the financial history of this country clusters around the beginning of that incorporation; and after it had flourished and stunk in the nostrils of all honest men for a great number of years, they resorted to a modern method to restore it to credit. They chose a new president whose name itself should be synonymous with all that was purity and should remove all cloud of suspicion from any of its transactions thereafter. They sought for that name in the mugwumpian ranks of the Mugwumps. George William Curtis and Mr. Carl Schurz are supposed to be riding sideways, because there is not one among them masculine enough to ride astraddle, upon a golden cloud with harps in their hands and singing songs of the purity of the new political Zion.

"Charles Francis Adams became the president of that company, and thenceforward everything that was supposed to be crooked or infested with a tortuous quality was to be banished forever from its transactions."

He then gave an account from the Chicago Times of a discrimination in the matter of freight charges, which was practically prohibitory in the interest of the Colorado Transit Association as against all customers not in accord with it, and which, according to the statement, Mr. Adams refused to rectify. Senator Vance then said:

"All these things are charged, and I have not seen them denied anywhere. Let that be a warning to all those who trust too much in those men who make high professions of their superior honesty and integrity. Let me commend to all such the homely wisdom of the negro of my country, expressed in the song which I have often heard them sing:

'De bigger dat you see de smoke
De less de fire will be.

And de leanest kind of possum
Climbs de biggest kind o' tree.

De darkey at de camp-ground
Who kin loudest sing and shout,
Is agwine to rob some hen-roost
Afore de week is out.'"

[Laughter.]

Jones County Items.

Mr. I. T. Wilson is improving; hopes are entertained that he will again recover.

We see that eggs are advancing in New Berne. Just as we expected as our good wives are utilizing them for setting purposes.

We are somewhat of the opinion that our farmers will not this season use half as much of commercial fertilizers as they have formerly.

Pork is advancing and the farmers say they intend to use as little of it as they possibly can. Several say that little of it must serve them, as they have no money to buy and that they are determined not to buy it on time.

Mr. C. C. Green has radishes in his garden, of the turnip variety, as large as marbles; also cabbage large enough to transplant. Some scamp made a raid on his winter supply of collards a few nights since and carried away about thirty of them.

There is a real timber boom in our county; every man wants a timber carriage; can see lots of money in timber. I can't see any money there, but I suppose it never was intended for all of us to see alike. All may cut saw logs that wish, but me and my house will try to raise all the corn and pork we possibly can, for a barrel of corn in your own crib is worth two in another man's.

Your Kinston itemizer chronicles lots of whiskey drinking in his town. Well, don't this appear strange that Kinston, which is a prohibition town, should have these drunken brawls while our little town has three bar-rooms in full running order and is as calm and quiet a town as there is in the State. Why, I have not seen a man drunk in Trenton for months. Now let me whisper to your itemizer that we had prohibition in Trenton awhile, and at the same time we had a town full of drunks, lots of fights and brawls. You might turn up a goods box in any of our lots and find any amount of jugs and bottles of all sizes and dimensions, some with cork and some with corn cob stoppers, some filled, some empty. We banished this pretended prohibition and see what a change for the better! I am certain that every citizen of Trenton is perfectly satisfied with our present condition. We consider it impossible to force a community to keep sober and abstain from their dram drinking by enacting laws as a means of prevention. Persuade and educate them by good moral means; don't force, and all will be well in the end.

Many of our farmers are busily engaged ditching and clearing off swamp lands, which makes a busy, merry time for the average log roller nearly every Saturday. The greatest man there on these occasions is he who can carry his dram without fail every time. Yes, and you may bet your last dollar that at dinner he can eat his full share of big hominy, 'tater tarts and chicken fixens. While all this is passing the old grey headed men who have been invited over by the proprietor just to look on and enjoy the fun, are letting their thoughts travel back to the old time scenes of their younger days, and often they will let slip the remark that the young men of to-day are not to be compared with the men of their day. Yes, another to prove this position will add "that's so; every age is degenerating, for I have heard my daddy say that we were nothing in comparison to his time." Now if their degeneration theory is correct, that is the reason why we have no Samsons in this our age to pull out pillars and overturn houses. But if we have lost physical power we have gained in mental power. There is nothing like knowledge, as I learn an old gentleman of Trenton remark when I was a boy as he applied a handful of tobacco snuff to a dog's nostrils which made him loose his hold from a favorite dog which had baffled the strength of a whole crowd, who were twisting and choking him.

Fish as Food and Fertilizer.

The average annual catch of mackerel by our fishermen, for five years ending in 1885, was 301,000 barrels. In 1886 the catch was 82,000 barrels. This diminution caused an advance in prices, which in time was followed by a reduced consumption. The cost of Nos. 1, Boston, last year, varied from $12 to $20. The catch of cod last year was 823,000 quintals (112 pounds), as against an average of 668,000 for the five previous years. There was no marked advance in prices. The Pacific Coast pack of salmon was, in 1886, 721,000 cases, as against an average of 616,000 for the three preceding years. Salted fish are a prominent feature in the food supply in all parts of the United States and any change in the cost, and the cause of such change, are of interest to farmers. On the seaboard fish is used both as food and as a fertilizer. The experiment with menhaden, mossbunkers or bony fish, as they are variously called, first attracted attention on Long Island, in the early part of this century. These fish are now used as manure to the extent of tens, perhaps thousands, of millions, to the great improvement of agriculture. The fishery industry is very large and important, and the supply appears to be inexhaustible, often 100 tons in a single draft. A wise distribution of fish as manure, in the spring, will enlarge the product of corn and ensure a crop of winter wheat after the corn.—American Agriculturist.
