Our esteemed co-laborer, Mcseryer's La Grange Liemizer, gives newspapers and correspondents a hit for "depre-ciating the sale of guano to farmers," cisting the sale of guano to farmers," and says, "thisse festifizers ninet possess some merits, else the farmers who repeatedly my them would discomtinue their use." The facts are, that the winter is let to pass, by most farmers, without preparing any homemade manare, and when spring opens something must bu had to make the cotton "boll well," and testilizer being the easiest got at is the thing selected.
All fertilizers, the unfried as well as the tried, possess' some hierit' about this time of the year, judging from their sale, but how about the merit in the fall? Many of our farmers, and we are gind to say the number is inoresing, do not rety on these mantires for a crop, but make their manure at home, using but fittle if any fertilizers, and these are they who streesed. Mr. D. I.
