The Important Question at the May

Election. In the struggle to elect a board of council on the first Monday in May, our important question will be submitted to them; that of deciding whether or not our graded schools shall be placed upon a solid basis or whether education play of millinery goods which she de-sires to exhibit to customers if they will shall be confined to those who are able to pay for it.

The work done by our graded schools during the four years they were maintened by taxation and the voluntary donations of our citizens, has been felt in all this section. The influence for good has permeated every neighbor. green appearance. hood; the young ladies and boys gradpile driver at foot of Craven street nated there have taken the highest sprung from its guards yesterday after- stand at the colleges and seminaries of noon, dropping in several feet of water, the State; the teachers sent out rank and there was quite a diving frolic to among the best; and further, during hands and feet were tied; supposed to and pumps for the month of March. recover R. stitute one of the necessary elements and no town or city will long prosper without them.

We are prepared to hear objections. The main one and the most 'plausible is that offered by the property holder, that it is not right to tax one man for the education of quother's children. Why is it not right? Are not the children of today to be the men of the future, and are they not citizens of one great commonwealth? When Governor Ellis issued his proclamation in 1861 calling for volunteers to repel invasion, did the non-property holder stand back and say, "I have no property to fight for, why should one man endanger his life to protect another's property?" If the fisheries dispute or other international trouble was to bring the "British Lion" growling at our doors and an invading army should threaten to lay New Berne in ashee, would the non-property holders stand off and see their neighbor's property destroyed without lifting their hands to help him? Oh, no. Not if they are good citizens. And will the well to do citizens of New Berne withhold the small tax of one-fifth of one par cant of their taxable property to help to educate their neighbor's children in grier to make them butter fitted for the duties of citizenship, and better prepared to fight life's battles? This is the question. Will they do it?
