Dr. Sanders reviews farmer Ferrell's reply in today's issue and makes some good suggestions on growing melons. We join the Doctor in his request to Mr. Ferrell to write again and give us more of his practical experience, and above all, if farming does pay, let the world know it, and know how it is done.

There is talk of a candidate in the third ward against Mr. Thos. Daniels. No one doubts that he was fairly nominated by the Democratic ward meeting, and that he has made a good member of the board no one will deny. But the Republicans are splitting and running two candidates in each of their wards, and we suppose the Democrats want to keep up with them in all matters of devilsry and disorganization.

The Raven and Its Master.

A good audience greeted Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., at the theatre last night and gave him marked attention while he gave a brief history of Poe and read his masterpiece, The Raven. As a lecturer, he came fully up to the expectations of the audience, and his rendering of Bagby's description of music was well done and kept the audience in a roar.

Personal.

Judge Seymour has returned from Elizabeth City, where he has been holding court.

Mr. Geo. W. Charlotte, editor of the Beaufort Record, called to see us yesterday and left on the steamer Newberne for Norfolk. He contemplates issuing a daily at Morehead City during the session of the Teachers' Assembly.

Steamer Movements.

The Newberne, of the O. D. line, sailed for Norfolk yesterday at 3 p. m., with peas, turkeys and asparagus and eighteen passengers. The Pamlico, of this line, will sail at 3 p. m. on Friday. The Vesper of the E. C. D. line, arrived at noon yesterday with full cargo of merchandise, and sailed at 4 o'clock with truck, &c. Several boxes of peas formed part of shipment.

Rev. J. E. Johnson, D. D.

Dr. Johnson returned yesterday from a Presbyterian visit to Elizabeth City. A considerable legacy has been left to Orange Presbytery to build a church there, and we hope the work may soon be accomplished. The Presbytery has made a most important move in unanimously electing Dr. Johnson its general evangelist for its whole field. He has resigned the charge of his church in Winston, and the dismission of the pastoral relation was ordered by the Presbytery; but he has not yet signified his acceptance of the position at Evangelist.

Dr. Johnson will preach tonight in the Presbyterian Church. We bespeak for him a good audience. He is a man of fine abilities, and an impressive speaker.

Decoration Day.

The 10th of May is approaching, when the annual decoration of the graves of Confederate soldiers will engage the attention of our Southern people, and all who admire patriotism, devotion to duty and love of country. In New Berne the annual address will be delivered by our distinguished townsman and gallant ex-Confederate soldier, Maj. John Hughes. His subject will be the life and military career of the lamented General L. O'B. Branch. The subject is an interesting one, and the speaker is fully competent to do it justice. Let all who revere the memory of those who died in defense of our homes and for our cause come and join in these ceremonies. The invitation is extended to all, and we hope all who can will devote one day to this purpose.

In this connection we wish to again make an appeal in behalf of the Ladies Memorial Association, to whom so much is indebted for the care of the spot where rest the remains of our departed fellow soldiers. The Association has been much reduced in numbers by death and removals so that the annual dues which they have been paying for these many years does not raise a sufficient amount to keep the grounds in order and defray the necessary expenses of Decoration day. We proposed sometime ago to get up an auxiliary Association composed of ex-Confederate soldiers, and any other gentlemen who are willing to become members, for the purpose of contributing annually so much in dues. Fifty cents, payable on the 1st day of May and the 1st day of November, in all one dollar per year, would, with an auxiliary society of forty or fifty members, be sufficient to keep the grounds in decent order. There would be no meetings to attend unless the members so desired. The object is simply to aid the ladies by these small contributions. Are there not enough living Confederates in this city who are willing to make this small contribution? Several have intimated their willingness to do so. We are waiting to hear from others.

Vote for Schools.

We wish to keep it before the people of this city that the question "For Schools" and "Against Schools" will be submitted to them on the first Monday in May. There are some who are against schools because they do not want to be taxed to educate other people's children. They will probably cite instances where poor people own a little property and have no children and show how hard it is to make them pay twenty cents on their hundred dollars worth of property to educate somebody else's children. Carry out this idea and you abolish every public school in the State. The public school houses would be converted into dens of ignorance and vice, and the sapping and undermining of the Churches by ignorance and avariciousness would begin. It would be many years probably before the legitimate results of such a backward step would be felt, but felt it would be, and the blow would be crushing. There are children in this city who do not attend school because their parents are not able to pay the tuition. Can any man conscientiously vote "Against Schools" and thereby deny to these the benefits of education? The following from the Goldsboro Messenger is so much to the point we commend it to every one who expects to vote in the election on the first Monday in May:

Our neighbor, the Argus, well says "It can be comprehended how a rich man may be opposed to the Graded School bill, that is, if we reason on the basis of narrow-mindedness and selfishness."

"No matter how costly private tuition may be, his children are safe. Their educational future is secured. They will never grow up in ignorance. It may be said to the credit of the wealthy men of this community that as a class they favor this bill. They are far-sighted enough to see the good in it, for the rising generation."

"How a poor man, black or white, can oppose it is beyond comprehension. It amounts to madness. By his vote, by his own free will, he would doom his children to ignorance and set them back in the race of life. He owes a debt to them and to society. He would refuse the means freely offered to lift his offspring to higher things. Let him think might be his lot to read his folly written upon his child's face or graven upon his character."

"Now is the time for such reflections to come home to every voter in this city and township, for in the coming election he will be called upon to say at the ballot box how it shall be with the grading school—with the children of this city."

New Book.

See and Land, by J. W. Buel. An illustrated history of the wonderful and curious things of nature existing before and since the deluge. Being a natural history of the sea; also a natural history of land creatures; to which is appended a description of the continents and wild faces of the world. Handsomely bound, 500 pages with 500 illustrations.

Complimentary Resolutions.

The following resolutions we copy from the Statesville Landmark. Mr. Wooten is a native of Craven county, and his parents are still here, as well as his brothers and sisters. He was one of the "boys in gray" during the late war. Mrs. Wooten was a Miss Jewett of our sister city of Wilmington:

At a meeting of the vestry of St. Luke's parish, Seaford, Delaware, on the 11th inst., the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, At the beginning of a new ecclesiastical year we deem it right and proper for us to review the one that has passed and see what has been done in the parish, and to take order for the accomplishment of such other improvements as may be deemed wise and necessary;

AND WHEREAS, We recognize in the improvements made in St. Luke's church building, Seaford, Del., during the past year, a very substantial gain, not only in the increased seating capacity and the comfort of the worshippers of the large and rapidly growing congregation, but also in the increased interest and desire for further progress, more zealous work and stronger attachment in real piety and every good work in the parish;

AND WHEREAS, In the accomplishment of this work we recognize the invaluable assistance of our beloved and zealous rector, as well as all those other benevolent and liberal-minded persons who have aided us by their contributions;

Therefore, resolved, By the wardens and vestry of St. Luke's parish, that our thanks are due and we hereby tender them to our rector (Rev. Edward Wooten) for his wonderful energy, untiring zeal and abundant liberality in aiding the vestry in carrying out the improvements to completion.

Resolved, further, That in his ministrations among us, by his indefatigable industry, great energy of character, zeal and piety, benevolence and liberality, he has won not only our confidence and esteem, but our most affectionate regard.

Resolved, further, That we tender our sincere thanks to Mrs. Wooten for her noble generosity in presenting the church with a handsome organ as a thank-offering to Almighty God for her recovery from her recent dangerous illness.

Orange Wine.

The wonderful crop of oranges which has been produced in California has led to the manufacture of a new and non-alcoholic wine from that fruit. A gentleman who has traveled extensively in California, in conversation with a reporter, thus describes the process: "In San Gabriel, Los Angeles Co., Cal., where the sweet naval or seedless orange grows to great perfection and in large quantities, the Mexican residents made from it a wine not unlike the May wine of the Germans. This wine, of course, has to be consumed at once, or it would spoil. But the idea was suggested by this practice that good wine could be made from sweet oranges, and the question was, how to make the wine so that it could become a marketable and profitable commodity. As soon as the souring was overcome, more money had to be invested. This was accomplished after considerable money had been lost. The sweetest oranges are selected, those of the naval or seedless kind; but not until they are fully ripe. Oranges when shipped to market for eating are generally packed green, and ripen on the way. Not so with those used for wine. When gathered, a machine removes the peel, leaving only the juicy pulp. The pulp is placed in a large vat, with layers of the angelica grape sugar. The pulp and sugar are allowed to remain together about three weeks, when, by the aid of a jackscrew press worked by machinery, the whole of the juice is squeezed out. This is run off into casks, and purified every month for about two or three years. It is kept from souring by the addition of distilled glycerine preservatives, and at the end of that time is considered fit for general use. It is drawn off into casks of a commercial capacity, and is ready for shipment."

"As transportation, especially to a distance, would cause the wine to muddle, it is again refined at the end of the journey, and the dregs precipitated before it is put into bottles, in which condition it is sold to the general public. The wine has already been exported to England and many parts of Europe."

"Is not the wine fermented in some way?"

"Not at all. It is purely the juice of the orange, a simple fruit wine, and contains no alcoholic spirits whatever. People eat oranges after meals as a digestive; now they can partake of the pure juice alone for the same reason. I think it will soon outrival any of the mild drinks of the present day."

"Then it is simply a still wine without any intoxicating qualities?"

"Yes, in its original form. But it can be made into a sparkling wine by the introduction of carbonic gas. By diluting the orange juice one-half, and adding the gas, a beverage equal to champagne can be produced, without any of the intoxicating or enervating effects. This has been done, and temperance drinkers have been delighted with it. As a summer drink it is far better, ac-ording to medical men, than lime or lemon juice."—Exchange.

If it were not for the time required to bring it to perfection, it would be very cheap. The cost of transportation, has to be added to all shipping points, yet with this it is sold by retail at the low price of $1.00 per gallon by James Redmond in this city.

Father and Son Instantly Ill.

Others Prostrated.

A horrible rain and thunder storm passed over this section on Friday afternoon, about nine miles from Goldsboro. Mr. Taylor Eatman and his seven-year-old son were instantly killed by lightning, and others of his family badly prostrated.

On Friday evening, during the storm, the family were seated in the house, Mrs. Eatman near one of the windows, Mr. E. and his little son near another, while a daughter and his son John were seated around the fireplace. Little were they dreaming of danger, when suddenly a flash of lightning struck the gable of that portion of their house where they were seated, and its work of destruction was terrific. When Mrs. Eatman returned to consciousness she found husband and son dead, while others of the family were still in a stunned condition. John, a son about 13 years old, with wonderful presence of mind, quickly put out the fire that was then spreading through the building, and thus prevented greater destruction, but it seems that the same flash of lightning had also fired the barn some distance from the house. The boy reached there in time to rescue a mule and to pull a buggy from under the shelter, otherwise everything in the barn was destroyed, also a lot of goats and hogs.—Goldsboro Messenger.

Accepts the Call.

Many people in Raleigh will be glad to learn the Rev. Thos. Dixon, of Goldsboro, has accepted the call to the pastorate of the Second Baptist church in this city. Mr. Dixon's reputation as an eloquent, logical and forcible speaker and preacher is widespread. He is cordial, winning and prepossessing. He is energetic and strong as a minister, and will be a great acquisition to the Christian workers of Raleigh. The Goldsboro church will give him up with regret, and not without an effort to get him back. He will preach his first sermon as pastor of the Second Baptist church on the evening of the first Sunday in May.—News and Observer.

Don't Experiment.

You cannot waste time in experimenting when your lungs are in danger. Consumption always seems, at first, only a cold. Do not permit any dealer to impose upon you with some cheap imitation of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, but be sure you get the genuine. Because he can make more profit he may tell you he has something just as good, or just the same. Don't be deceived, but insist upon getting Dr. King's New Discovery, which is guaranteed to give relief in all Throat, Lung and Chest affections. Trial bottles free at E. N. Duffy's drug store.

Notice.

On account of the unjust prejudice exercised by some of my so-called friends during ward meeting, Monday the 18th, and of non-residents and minors voting thereat, and believing as I do that the will of the people of the fifth ward was not expressed in this action, there being not more than 50 or 100 legal voters in accord with the desire and wishes of many, I announce myself as the legitimate candidate for Councilman of the fifth ward. Knowing that the will of the people will be expressed at the polls on the 1st Monday in May, I shall be in the field on that day, and shall be there that day. Respectfully,
