Mr. Bancroft at Mrs. Polk's Home. A Nashville (Tenn.) dispatch says the reception given Monday afternoon by Mrs. James K. Polk to Mr. George Bancroft was one of the most brilliant social events of the season, aside from the interest attaching to the venerable lady and gentleman who were the central figures of the gathering. Each of them much, if not more, than any others present. Mrs. Polk seemed happy in the reminiscences that the occasion recalled. Said she: "It so reminded me of the receptions at the White House when Mr. Bancroft and I received together. He is the only member of Mr. Polk's cabinet living. He is greatly changed, but I wouldn't tell him so. Forty years made a great difference. Among the throng at the receptions were noticeable many distinguished gray heads of the city who had met or known hr. Bancroft in years past.
