The First Steamer to Cross the Atlantic.

In 1819 the Atlantic was first crossed by a ship using steam. This was the Savannah, of 380 tons, launched at Corlear's Hook, New York, August 22, 1818. She was built to ply between New York and Savannah as a sailing packet. She was, however, purchased by Savannah merchants and fitted with steam machinery, the paddle-wheels being constructed to fold up and be laid upon the deck when not in use, her shaft also having a joint for that purpose. She left Savannah on the 20th of May, and reached Liverpool in 25 days, using steam 18 days. The log-book, still preserved, notes several times taking the wheels in on deck in thirty minutes. In August she left Liverpool for Cronstadt. An effort was made to sell her to Russia, which failed. She sailed for Savannah, touching at Copenhagen and Arendal, and arrived in 53 days. Her machinery later was taken out, and she resumed her original character as a sailing packet, and ended her days by being wrecked on the south coast of Long Island.

But steam power had by 1830 grown large enough to strike more boldly. The Savannah's effort was an attempt in which steam was only an auxiliary, and one, too, of a not very powerful kind. Our coastwise steamers, as well as those employed in Great Britain, as also the voyage of the Enterprise to Calcutta in 1845 (though she took 113 days in doing it), had settled the possibility of the use of steam at sea, and the question had now become whether a ship could be built to cross the Atlantic depending entirely on her steam power. It had become wholly a question of fuel consumption. The Savannah, it may be said, used pitch-pine on her outward voyage, and wood was for a very long time the chief fuel for steaming purposes in America. From "The Development of the Steamship," by Commander Scribner's Magazine.

Fair Bird Destroyers.

That tickle, changeable, fantastic, and often nonsensical goddess, Fashion, and her fair votaries, are answerable in part for the destruction of the birds, and particularly of those adorned with brilliant plumage. Many a fair maiden, or woman, tender-hearted, considerate and sympathetic, who would be shocked by the wanton cruelty of the thoughtless boy who would kill the beautiful little humming-bird as it flits from flower to flower, is quite reconciled to the act if the dead bird can be treated by the taxidermist and added to the aviary upon the curious structure which is now worn in the place of the bonnet which adorned and protected the head of her mother and grandmothers, of different degrees, for generations. Questionable as is the taste that places a yellow-eyed screech-owl, or vampirish bat, upon a lady's head-gear, it is a well-known fact that thousands and tens of thousands of our much-prized birds become a sacrifice to fashion in each year.

It is gratifying to learn that the Audubon Society, whose members pledge themselves to do all in their power to discourage, and, if possible, suppress the use of birds and birds' feathers as ornaments of dress, is rapidly extending its sphere of usefulness and humanity. It would be well if in every city, town and school-district in the United States the girls and boys would organize a society or club having for its object the protection of our harmless, beautiful and musical birds. The girls, by refraining from the use of birds, or the plumage of birds for ornament; and the boys, by ceasing to stone, shoot, or trap such birds or to rob their nests of eggs, or young, and by waging a war of extermination against the sparrows, can do much towards restoring to us the birds whose absence and loss is so much to be deplored.—American Agriculturist.

A Great Bargain.

327 ACRES. Will be sold at a Great Sacrifice. A valuable Plantation situated on the south side of the Neuse river, three and a half miles from the City of Newbern, N. C. One hundred and twenty-five acres cleared. Good land, suitable for trucking. The balance, two hundred and two acres, heavily timbered with pine, oak, cypress, and other kinds of timber. It is also fine grazing land. Good dwelling, outbuildings, and a fine orchard. It has a fine fishery fronting half a mile on the beach, where there are high banks of marl that can never be exhausted, from which vessels can load with ease. It is a very beautiful and healthy location, presenting a near view to the passing vessels and railroad. The cleared land with buildings and orchard will be sold separately if desired. For terms apply to F. TRENWORTH, mar12 dw On the place, or Newbern, N. C.
