In consequence of the draw being detained last right. The draw is being thoroughly repaired, and the structure being a truss the chords are slowly and with difficulty removed and as slowly replaced with new ones. When once out the stability of the structure is gone and the bridge is impassable. Work at this point will soon be completed and everything made as good as new, and there will be no farther detention unless when the lattice bridges are being repaired, as we learn the bridge gang on the road are repairing and rebuilding all the bridges and culverts.

The Original Scuppernong.

We have a letter from our old friend Capt, S. W. Noble, of Wilmington, now the great grape grower of Eastern North Carolina, in which he inquires about the original Scuppernong grape vine which Wiley's North Carolina reader used to tell us covered five acres of land. He wants to correspond with the owner and desires to obtain his address.

We think this vine was on Rosnoke Island and was owned a few years ago by Mr. Chauncey Meekins, who is now dead. Cannot Bro. Creecy of the Economist give us some information about it ?

The Three Bears or Golden Hair.

A large and select audience attended the theatre on Wednesday night to witness the operetta. We are not a musical critique, and therefore not qualified to speak critically of the performance. But the fact that it gave general satisfaction to those present, and the favorable comments they have made. justify us in saying that it was a real nice entertainment and that the ladies, young men and children are entitled to much credit for getting up so good a perfomance in so short a time.

The opening scene was beautiful and grand; the Queen of the Forest, Golden Hair, the Bard and The Three Bears sustained their parts well, and it was generally conceded that the piano had never been under such exquisite touch in the presence of an audience. Mrs. Hanks is indeed competent judges say; it is not our opinion simply. The the children were highly enjoyed, and the bears afforded lots of amusement. But we cannot go into particulars.

The play will be repeated tonight with some additions in music.

An Important Enterprise for New

The Eastern Carolina Land and Rail way Company has organized an enterprise that will, if carried into successful operation, do a great work for New and Jones. The construction of a railfrom Bayboro yesterday with a good road between the Trent and New rivers will be of immediate benefit to these New Berne a large amount of cotton, produce, naval stores, fish and oysters that now go in other directions, or are not moved at all.

When the subscription reaches twenty thousand dollars the route will be surveyed refused to yield to obstruction, the opand work begun. This is an important position's response was that they had a enterprise to the Neuse and Trent River Steamboat Company, a corporation of considerable strength and capable of tions of landlords to keep rack rents at undertaking a work of more magni the starvation point would be permitted, tude than this. This company while the combinatios of tenants to deought to own a controlling interest in this road and receive aboard their boats He asked if there was the slightest at the Trent river terminus the chance that the measure would ever be freights and passengers, which will be of used against a combination of landlords. no little consequence. The Company would have to put on a fast mail, passenger and express boat on both Trent to 79. and New rivers so that any point on New river could be within a few hours run of New Berne.

We learn there are many people in the two counties who will not take stock in the road, but are ready, as soon as it is located, to aid in its construction by furnishing cross ties or evening sitting. grading. The condition of the Neuse & Trent River Steamboat Company it seems to us is such as to justify a large subscription on their part, and we hope to see it come forward pretty soon.
