The Raleigh Signal says: "Wipe the Democratic party out of power next year and the Republican party will wipe the internal revenue taxes from the statute book." The people have not forgotten that the Republican party was in power for twenty-five years and the internal revenue is a part of their work.

NORTH CAROLINA PAPERS.

The Daily Index, of Wilmington, in speaking of the new enterprise of removing the Goldsboro Messenger to that city, says: "If our informant be correct, we see reasons why the venture should not succeed in every particular. Wilmington has long needed a first-class daily paper, and we believe one properly supported will be supported handsomely. There are few papers, not in this State, but in Wilmington, but in this State, and in the Southern States. It is lamentable that, at the present day, a first-class daily paper published in North Carolina, and we sincerely trust this new venture will be made one."

Now we think it a lamentable fact that North Carolinians do not properly appreciate what they have. The Index in the above-mentioned gives the most glaring proof of this, because the Star, published in its own city, is unquestionably a first-class daily paper, and is so regarded outside of North Carolina. Some of the Northern and Southern dailies are, but it is large enough and its condensation of news and discussions of general topics are fully up with the times. We do not wish to be understood as endorsing the Star as being always right; on the contrary, we think it makes some serious errors at times (so do we all); but as a daily newspaper it is first-class. Then we have the Raleigh News and Observer and the Charlotte Chronicle, both first-class daily newspapers and large enough for any person who has anything else to do besides read. But a prophet is not without honor save in his own country.

MAYOR HODGES ON TEMPERANCE.

The Brewer's Association of the United States held their annual convention in Baltimore on Tuesday night last, Mayor HODGES delivering the address of welcome. The Mayor, after having promised to deliver the address, was pressed, upon temperance grounds, to recall his promise, but as the invitation was extended to him in his official capacity, he could not make distinctions in organizations engaged in lawful industry. So he delivered the address of welcome, from which we copy below a paragraph. It is indeed a great mistake to suppose that intemperance in drink is the only great evil with which we have to contend. In the city of New Berne alone there are evils other than those excessive drinking that tend to demoralize, to destroy confidence, to corrupt the minds of the young, and the people need teaching on these as well as on intemperance in drink. These words of Mayor Hodges which we copy here are worthy of the consideration of those who earnestly desire to eradicate all evils from society that the world may grow better as it grows older.

evil as one will deny. But, unhappily, in our fallen state it is not the solitary evil that afflicts humanity, but it is one of many. There is not only intemperance in drink, but there is intemperance in thought and speech and action. There are those who would shrink with horror from a single glass of wine who yet would quaff to the dregs the cup of rancor and uncharitableness, and pour out in full measure the poisonous draught of misrepresentation, perversion of truth, false witness against their neighbors, and under by cruel speech, under the stimulating influences of ambition, the sacred ties of friendship itself. There are those who would not do these things who yet by dwelling too passionately on a single idea have established a false moral standard, and who have looked at one evil so long and so exclusively as to come to the belief not only that it is the worst of all evils, but that there is hardly any other evil beside it. They hold one thing so close to their eye that for them it blots out the universe. Not only do they see things in a distorted light themselves, but in their passionate partisanship they insist on others seeing them in that light also. Black, a besotted drunkard, beats his wife and starves his children. White, a good citizen, husband and father, who was never intoxicated in his life, takes a glass of wine every day. Is there no difference between these men? Intemperate temperance, besides punishing one for the sins of the other, classes both as the slaves of rum, and as belonging to the same synagogue of Satan. Surely there is something in the nature of intemperance in a line of thought so radical as that."

STATE NEWS

Gleaned from Our Exchanges.

Fayetteville Evening News: One Nathan Hodges, col., attempted rape on the person of Mrs. Lenorah Bane, a white lady, near Godwin's Station, on the Wilson Short Cut R. R. yesterday morning and was brought down to Fayetteville for safe keeping.

Nashville Courier: A gentleman came into our office today, and was telling of a catamount that has been seen in Pig Basket Swamp just above Nashville. He says that the most ferocious dogs are soon whipped out. He has been seen by three or four parties, while hunting. Farmers say that cotton this year is clear of the lice which did so much damage last year, and that the wheat crop is splendid.

Roanoke News: It is rumored that the Loblolly Car Wheel Company, of Wilmington, Delaware, has recently purchased the iron property near Gaston and will soon commence the development of the mine. In this county are said to be considerable beds of hematite. This ore is known as specular, and contains some magnetic grains disseminated through the mass. It will assay up to 60 per cent. metallic iron, with some phosphorus. All these ores are remarkably pure and are adapted to the manufacture of steel.

Wilson Advance: Sheriff J. W. Crowell left Monday evening for Raleigh with an escaped convict in charge, and an insane white woman. The escaped convict was named Peter Morgan and was sent up to the penitentiary about two years ago from Wayne county for cattle-stealing, being sentenced to ten years imprisonment. He has been engaged in the canal work being done by the State in Hyde county and escaped only a short while ago. He came back to the scene of his old crime and attempted to sell a lot of cattle in Black creek, a few days ago. His actions were suspicious and Dr. Brooks issued a warrant for him. He is now safely behind the iron bars of the penitentiary. One of the most diabolical, cold blooded murders that we have heard of for some time was committed in Wilson last Monday night, between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock. Oscar Wooten, the man who committed the fearful deed, is about five feet nine inches high, weighs about one hundred and forty pounds, is about twenty-five years old, shows his teeth when he talks, moves quickly and rocks while walking, has small moustache, is black and slender. Mitty Strickland was the victim.

Idle Brains and Hands.

Bishop Peck has lately produced some prominent ideas about dormant forces and idle muscles. He instances the idle young man. No power comes from his muscles. They were made to be strong for work, but he does nothing. His muscular ability is simply good for nothing, and he is good for nothing. Devoted to agriculture, or handicraft, the physical force which is dormant within him would give bread and health, and respectability. As it is, he is only a nuisance; perhaps a handsome object of pity and contempt. And the bishop takes the true ground, that an industrious young bootblack is better, and is better off, than a loafing, idling sprig of aristocracy.

Work is demanded everywhere. All departments of industry are languishing for want of faithful, skilled workers, whether it be making streets, sawing wood or in the higher branches of skill and art, and yet, witnesses the good bishop, amid all the din of labor in farming, manufactures, in all the industrial arts, these men have nothing to do! How did other men get work? By thinking quickly and acting promptly; by seizing the best, the first that came to hand. Tramping, loitering, begging, never gave employment to any man. The thousands of idlers have made themselves viciously brainless. The lapse of powers, active and bright enough in children has come of parental indulgence, gormandizing, laziness, indulged dependence, drinking, disease or misdirection. Grand fields of industry, wealth and usefulness lie all around this idle, shiftless nuisance, but he cannot think himself into them. He has lost his sole eyesight. They very bread, money, comforts, elegance he sighs for are within reach of his hands, but he cannot see them; wouldn't know them if he did see them.

But he does not only denounce the idler, he tells him how to find employment. Employ yourself then. Sell that apple instead of eating it. Sell it and buy two. Sell the two and buy more. Before you know it you will have a basketful—be a trader, a merchant, a valuable citizen. Do not hang about the city doing nothing. Push out into the country; seize that saw and axe; cut up a few sticks of somebody's wood. Earn your dinner. Don't beg it. Get hold of a spade; show somebody that you are just the man they have wanted for a long time to make a garden. Seize a plow, and if you don't know how to hold it, learn. "Hands all blistered?" Very well. Glad of it. The first signs of life in you for a long time. If you had blistered them before they would have been tough and good for something by this time.—American Captivator.
