

"The Little Store Round the Corner"

Has doubled itself. It is square in shape, and square in its dealings with all. Our old friends have long been convinced of this fact, and it will take only one call from new ones to positively assure them. Bear in mind we are always able to put before the customer anything and everything we advertise and at the prices named. Listen to the wonderful inducements we are offering this season, and remember we have not the slightest fear of competition; our prices can not be met by any house in the city. Why! do you ask? It is a simple story and easily told—

WE PAY CASH! SPOT CASH!

Thus saving the time prices and the cash discount, which is a very large item. Our customers get the advantage of these in our very low prices. Now see for yourselves:

THE PIONEERS.

Rouse! brothers, rouse! we've far to travel,
 Free as the winds we love to roam.
 Far through the prairie, far through the forest;
 O'er the mountains we'll find a home.
 We can not breathe in crowded cities,
 We're strangers to the ways of trade,
 We long to feel the grass beneath us,
 And ply the hatchet and the spade.
 Meadows and hills and ancient woodlands
 Offer us pasture, fruit, and corn,
 Needing our presence, courting our labor—
 Why should we linger like men forlorn?
 We love to hear the ringing rifle,
 The smiting axe, the falling tree—
 And though our life be rough and lonely,
 If it be honest, what care we?

A Confederate Opinion of Grant's Wilderness Campaign.

From the Century war papers for June we quote the following:—When General Grant was appointed to the command of the Union armies and established his headquarters with the Army of the Potomac, we of the Army of Northern Virginia knew very little about his character and capacity as a commander. Even "old army" officers, who were supposed to know all about any one who had ever been in the army before the war, seemed to know as little as anybody else. The opinion was pretty freely expressed, however, that his Western laurels would wither in the climate of Virginia. His name was associated with Shiloh, where it was believed that he had been outgeneraled and badly beaten by Albert Sidney Johnston, and saved by Buell. The capture of Vicksburg and the battle of Chattanooga, which gave him a brilliant reputation at the North, were believed by the Confederates to be due more to the weakness of the forces opposed to him and the bad generalship of their commanders than to any great ability on his part. That he was bold and aggressive, we all knew, but we believed that it was the boldness and aggressiveness that arises from the consciousness of strength, as he had generally managed to fight his battles with the advantage of largely superior numbers. That this policy of force would be pursued when he took command in Virginia, we had no doubt; but we were not prepared for the unparalleled stubbornness and tenacity with which he persisted in his attacks under the fearful losses which this army sustained at the Wilderness and at Spotsylvania. General Grant's method of conducting the campaign was frequently discussed among the Confederates, and the universal verdict was that he was no strategist and that he relied almost entirely upon the brute force of numbers for success. Such a policy is not characteristic of a high order of generalship, and seldom wins unless the odds are overwhelmingly on the side of the assailant. It failed in this instance, as shown by the result at Cold Harbor, which necessitated an entire change in the plan of campaign. What a part at least of his own men thought about General Grant's methods was shown by the fact that many of the prisoners taken during the campaign complained bitterly of the "useless butchery" to which they were subjected, some going so far as to prophesy the destruction of their army. "He fights!" was the pithy reply of President Lincoln to a deputation of influential politicians who urged his removal from the command of the army. These two words embody perfectly the Confederate idea of General Grant at that time. If, as the medieval chroniclers tell us, Charles Martel (the Hammer) gained that title by a seven days' continuous battle with the Saracens at Tours, General Grant certainly entitled himself to a like distinction by his thirty days' campaign from the Wilderness to Cold Harbor.

Perley Poore Dead.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Major Ben Perley Poore (who was reported as slightly better in an earlier edition), died at the Ebbett House in this city at 12.30 o'clock, surrounded by wife, nurse and attending physicians, Drs. Baxter and Harrison. It was reported yesterday that he was a shade better, but last evening he grew rapidly worse. His physicians were summoned and a few friends sent for, but by the time the latter arrived he was dead. Major Poore had been a sufferer from Bright's disease for several years, which was the cause of his death.

Major Poore was born in 1820 on Indian Hill Farm, near Newburyport, Mass., and after leaving the printer's trade moved to Athens, Ga., when twenty-one years of age, and assumed the editorship of a paper in that town. The following year Mr. Bland, who was Minister to Germany, chose him for his secretary, and he went abroad for five years. On his return he became Washington correspondent of the Boston Atlas. He enlisted in the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston when the war broke out and was commissioned Major and assigned to the duty of drilling recruits in this city. In 1867 he was appointed clerk of the Senate Committee on Printing and held the office ever since, and also acted as correspondent for a number of newspapers. He was a Mason of the thirty-third degree. Major Poore was a provincial in his position, fond of a good story and a lover of social entertainments. He leaves a wife, two sons and a grandchild.

An End to Bone Scraping.
 Edward Shepherd, of Hatteras, N. C., says: "Having received some benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. I have had a running sore on my leg for eight years. My doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped, or amputated. I used several dozen bottles of Electric Bitters, and the sore is now sound and well. Electric Bitters are sold at City and Country Drug and Book Store, 107 N. 2nd St., New Berne, N. C. Get box by R. N. Duffy."

NOTICE.

South Carolina Superior Court, Craven County. In an action wherein Mary Mand Chadwick, an infant, by her guardian James C. Harrison and Elizabeth B. Bower, vs. N. M. Chadwick.

The above entitled action is settled for the sale of a house and lot on the east side of Craven street in the City of New Berne, the residence of Mrs. Mary Chadwick, and now occupied by C. W. McClellan and wife defendants, I will sell at Public Auction at the Court House door in the City of New Berne, on Monday the 14th day of June, A. D. 1887, and answer or demur to the complaint.

This 21st day of April, 1887.

E. W. CARPENTER, Clerk Sup. Court.

FORECLOSURE SALE.

Pursuant to a decree rendered in the Superior Court of Craven County at the Fall Term, 1887, in an action wherein J. A. Bryan and wife were plaintiffs and C. W. McClellan and wife defendants, I will sell at Public Auction at the Court House door in the City of New Berne, at 12 o'clock, M., on Monday, the 6th day of June, 1887, the following described real estate, to wit: A certain tract of land being a portion of the lands formerly belonging to the late of R. D. Knight and John H. Donnell, lying and being situated in the Counties of Craven, Carteret and Jones on the south side of New River, on both sides of the east and west prongs of Bloomsburg Creek, on both sides of the A. & N. C. Railroad, and upon the lakes in said counties, for a more particular description of which reference is made to an agreement entered into between the plaintiffs and C. W. McClellan, recorded in Craven County Book 11, page 272, 273, 274, 275 and 276.

Terms of Sale Cash.
