A School for Girls and Young Ladies. The JOURNAL is a friend of education and progress. It believes in practical methods, and in that system of education which inculcates self-reliance, independence of thought, the necessity of work and the importance of a higher and more useful citizenship. Hence, we are always ready to speak a word of encouragement to institutions designed for the accomplishment of these things Kinsey's School for girls and young ladies, at La Grange, is one of these institutions. Mr. Kinsey's qualifications for presiding over and directing the affairs of such a school, and his efficiency as a teacher, go without dispute.

The dining room, which is also two story, 57x18, connects the wing and main building and residence of the principal, The lower story of the main building will be used as the recitation room and office of the principal; the second story will be used as a dormitory for the teachers and pupils. The rooms will be comfortable and well furnished; and a hall is also arranged for the library and the meetings of the Literary Society which the young ladies have during the last year conducted very successfully and with great benefit to themselves. With this new building completed, the principal can accommodate sixty boarders, besides the teachers, who are all ladies, and will board with him and be where they can al ways care for their pupils.

Four lady assistant teachers were employed last session; six will be employed next session. Girls will be prepared here to enter any class in any college, or they will be given a certificase of proficiency and be fully prepared to teach any of the branches tanght in the public or high schools. devote to this class of news for the next The expense per session of five months is ninety dollars. And in this connection the principal is thinking of adding a dress-making establishment to the school for the purpose of lessening the cost of making up aniforms and giving those girls who de-size to the stan opportunity of learning have traces by measure.

The location is a most desirable one for such a school. There are four Churches, Baptist, Methodiet, Primitive Baptist, and Disciples... The Episcopals pupils are allowed to attend the serviwith one of the teachers.

The teachers employed in this school are graduates of the best institutions in the State. Their elegance of manners. and aptness in teaching render them capable of making a most favorable impression upon those whom they teach. A session at Kinsey's school will produce a marked improvement in any girl or young lady. This we speak from observation and a knowledge of the work being done.

The Advantage of Insuring in the Connecticut Mutual Life.

The Company is peculiarly strong by reason of the character of its business and its financial condition, with over forty years experience.

It offers no speculative inducements.
It has no special class of policy-holders who are to get the dividends earned and forfeited by others. It has no stockholders to absorb profits directly or indirectly. Every policy-holder is therefore, sure of getting his insurance at its actual cost to the company year by year; the surplus earned being returned to him at the end of each year. It selects its risks with great care and in the healthy sections of our own ountry only.

It seeks new business only at such cost as will enable it to continue to give insurance at as low a cost. at least as heretofore, so far as the fall in the rate of interest will permit.

Each policy now issued provides that, in case of lapse after two or three years' meaniums are paid, it is fully paid up for an amount stated upon the policy, without any action on the par of the institution also gives large cach values after ten years, which are print-ed in figures in the policy: hence each member will get all he pays for, and nothing of what any other member pays far. No one is made to lose because he cannot centinue paying; no one else gains at his expense. For full particu-lars inquire of William H. Oliver, agent, Newbern, N. C.
