MOREHEAD CITY, July 1, 1887. EDITOR JOURNAL-As it not infre quantly happens that a good listener by reason of remarks made in his hear ing by both sides, and by close obser vations of the actors, is enabled to form a more correct opinion of the results at which men aim, and to gain a more in timate knowledge of plans and schemes than their authors would care to have him possess, I propose in response to your request to give you the impressions made upon an observer by the meeting of the stockholders of the A. & N.C. idea that some great wrong had been perpetrated. Upon inquiring the cause of such an ebullition of feeling he earned that while the gentlemen from Wake and Chatham above alluded to were personally much esteemed by the people of this section, still inasmuch as neither of them had any known interest in the country along the line of the road. and none in the road itself except the ownership of one or two shares of stock. just enough to enable them to hold the positions, the people almost to a man, who understand the situation, who live in this section, whose money has gone by the tens of thousands for the construction of the road, and in their heavy debt taxes is still going to pay for that construction, and whose prosperity and welfare is largely dependent upon the valuation of property. The Salvation Army held a restival the read, feel that His Excellency the Governor, in going outside of their make to select representatives of their Bissic in the management of a property situated in their midet, and in which they have an interest measured in dollars and cents, paid out about equal to rain! Up to the first of July crops were that of the State itself, if not greater, and many times greater than that of all the present controllers and managers put together, has not only perpetrated a great wrong upon them, but in making these appointments for the third time, in the face of the many protests that have been made to him, has offered them a direct and premeditated insult. which at the proper time they will not plank and it rolled against dent's Report, and as it is on n with such force as to push for these reports to be printed and ready for distribution among the stockholders here. He attaches no blame to the giving them an opportunity to consider the suggestions and recommendations therein sontained before they are called when the meeting assembles, thereby upon to vote upon them, it was not surprising, when the President, reading from the only copy of his report that seemed to be available, suggested that the time of holding the annual meetings be changed from 4th Thursday in June to 1st Thursday in August, was considered by some as a snap judgment, and the reasons assigned for the change received with some grains of suspicion. The idea, said a gentleman on my left, that the business of this road has increased to such proportions that it requires will established that we need not say more than a month to get its accounts more than that it is fully up to its past ready for submission to the stockholders, is all bosh. Just wait until July '88, and you will see that the cat in the meal tub is a coon of another color The North Carolina road and all other roads, some of them with a business thousand times greater than the busi ness of this road, make up their ac counts in thirty days. The accounts of this road, when doing more busines and when its receipts were greater than they are today, have always been made up in thirty days, and if it is indeed true that the present president and his numerous assistants are unable to make up in thirty days, scoounts opvering a business amounting to the petty sum of $117,000, less than the business of any first-class merchant in the Stafe, then Capt. The feature of the meeting which persistent as 'determined efforts to get possession of a majority of the stock seemed to elicit the greatest attention with the view to obtaining permanent was the discussion between the Hon. control of the Road uself. F. M. Simmons and Mr. James A. His speech was strong and telling and if the discussion had ended when Mr. Kennedy suggested that we had heard enough, his resolution might have been adopted and a subscription of many thousands of dol-lars made by the A. & N. C. R. to the stook and bonds of the new road. But Mr. Kennedy ceased speaking. Mr. Bryan took the floor in opposition to Mr Simmons' resolution. He said he would be glad to see railroads built all over the State and especially so to see the A. & N. C. R. build feeders at every point where they would be profitable and in fact, would not object to its subscribing to build Mr. Simmons' road, provided the Atlantic road should use its surplus carnings only in making the subscription But for a road in the condition of this one, its president having declared that it could with difficulty pay its taxes and keep itself running. even think of subscribing to anything. was the veriest folly. He said that while all this was true, and the road was mortgaged for several hundred thousands of dollars, it was, and always had been, since he knew anything about it, regarded by him as a valuable property; that if properly managed and us resources taken care of, it would soon pay off its present debt and become a dividend paying property. That the people of this section had shut their eyes to its value and its overshadowing ity, and at one time seemed to care litwhat became of it; that shrewd capitalists, men not given to investing their money in dead enterprises, had drifted among them, and seeing the great capa-bilities of the road had purchased large qualities of its stock and were still seeking to get possession of it with as much emperness and avidity as if it represented shares in the mines of Golquadruple their money too. That the ory that the road was a non paying property was all humbug; was made to cover a purpose. That the president said the road would do better in private hands, that being so let the Governor put it up for lease or sale to the highest bidder, first giving the public proper notice of his intention. If offered for lease under those circumstances, it would bring a sum that would soon pay off its debt; al offered for sale he thought it would bring not less than $600.000 or $33; per share. For these reasons he had advised and still advised the people of Craven county not to sell their stock for the figures at which it was being bought up by those anxious to get control of the road, and he advised all others who owned stock to hold on to it for the present at any rate. and to await results, which he thought would in the near future, give them no cause to regret their action.

He said that in regard to his connec tion with the Eastern Carolina sydicate tion with the Eastern Carolina stankly, that he did favor mortgaging the A. N. C.
