Celebration next Tuesday.
A good crowd went down for Morehead City last night.

Huckleberries are plentiful in market and sell for five cents per quart.

The steamer Margie, which has been on Howard's ways, was launched yesterday.

Our correspondent we believe, as well as we can remember, quotes Mr. Bryan's speech correctly.

A good watermelon can be bought for twenty-five cents. The market is pretty well supplied with ten cent melons.

A small red cow has been taken up by the city authorities. Owner can get same by applying at the police station.

A new shipyard is being fitted up on South Front street, near Long wharf. Dr. Duffy is adding considerable improvements in that neighborhood.

We call attention to the advertisement of the Wilmington Star. It has reduced rates but has not gone backward in its make-up, ability, news and neat appearance. We think it has somewhat improved recently in local news matters.

We learn that a meeting will be held on Monday night at 8 o'clock, July 11th at the colored Odd Fellow's Hall, to consider measures pertaining to the retention of the colored Normal school located in this city. All concerned in educational matters are invited to attend.

Rapid Growth.
Issac Franklin, colored, who farms on Capt. W. T. Taylor's plantation on Trout river, reports an acre of new ground corn which made eleven inches growth in six days. Said it grew so fast he could almost see it jump, and he thought it ought to be reported in the JOURNAL.

New Boarding House.
The popular caterer, Fred L. Perry, will open a boarding house on the 16th instant on Middle street in the building formerly occupied by Mrs. Howerton. He has twelve nice, airy rooms, which will be newly furnished and everybody knows that Fred Perry knows how to supply a table.

Personal.
Clement Manly, Esq., left for Baltimore yesterday morning on professional business before Judge Bond of the U. S. Circuit Court.

Mr. J. L. H. Missillier, of Henderson, is in the city, and was greeted by many old friends yesterday.

Steamer Movements.
The Carolina, of the New Berne and Snow Hill line, arrived last night from Snow Hill and will leave for Bell's Ferry tomorrow and will return with an excursion party on the 13th.

The steamer Annie, of the E. C. D. line, arrived yesterday morning and will sail Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The steamer Vesper of this line, will arrive today.

Steamer Pamlico arrived last night and will leave in the morning at 9 o'clock for Norfolk, touching at Nags Head.

LITERARY TALK.

Ben Hur. A Story of the Christ.

The author of this wonderful book, as we all know, is General Lew Wallace, Sunset Cox's predecessor as minister to Constantinople. Very eminent critics have given it rank with Ivanhoe, Monte Christo, and others of the most celebrated works of fiction. We have just carefully read it for the second time, and believe it would bring pleasure and profit to all thoughtful young people just completing their education. The historical and geographical character of the country where the development of the story is wrought out, at that dramatic period between the death of Herod the Great and the crucifixion of Christ, is graphically presented. Nowhere else can the youthful mind catch such a vivid view of the polished Greek, the devoted but fanatical Jew, and the iron-clad Roman. The gorgeous city of Antioch, at that time next to Rome the richest city in the world, keeps watch and ward by the Orontes over the imperial gates of the east. The author's description of this splendid city, of its baths, gardens and games, of its vast commercial structures, bridges and ships, and particularly of the strangely fascinating grove of Daphne, with its flowers, myrtles and nymphs, is of itself worth ten times the cost of the book. And then the delineation of Jerusalem bound in Roman chains, with every foot of landscape hallowed by divine memories; with the slopes and vineyards of Olivet, the tower of Antonio and the Hill of Zion glowing in the sunset; with the sacred wells and fountains sparkling in the surrounding valleys, and Bethany and Bethlehem rising in the distance,—all this is so touchingly and forcibly portrayed, that the geography of that country becomes an absolute realization instead of a vain dream.

Back and forth between the Tiber, Antioch, Jerusalem and the desert, like a weaver's shuttle, sweeps the enchanting tale. On the lonely Syrian plain, in obedience to the divine call, on stately white camels, gather the three Wise Men, who thenceforth follow the "star of the east" until it leads them to the manger cradle of the infant Jesus, Ben Hur, a slender, gentle Jewish boy, for an accident to the Roman Governor, sees his family and home broken up, is himself doomed to the galleys, is for three dreadful years bound as a slave to the oars, until God opens the heart of Arrius, the commander of the fleet, to his beauty, his grace and his courage, and, in a terrific battle with pirates among the fair Grecian isles, makes him the instrument of his commander's success, when Arrius adopts him and starts him on his career of ambition, heroism and glory. He goes to Antioch, where he finds Simonides, the ancient and powerful steward of his father, and the beautiful Esther, the most enchanting figure of the story. Then comes that unequalled description of the chariot race in the circus, which neither Scott, Bulwer nor Dumas has ever approached. Ben Hur, driving the Arabian flyers of Ilderim, overthrows his unprincipled adversary, Messala, carries the sympathies of the vast multitude in a storm, and becomes the idol of the golden city of the east. Out of all this conflict, passion and excitement swiftly rises the story of the Christ, and the dramatic scene is changed to Jerusalem. The Prince, the King, the Deliverer, followed by Ben Hur with his desert legions, makes his last entry into the royal city, but failing to take an earthly crown for his kingdom, is forsaken by his pretended friends, and is abandoned to the horrors of Calvary.

There is an undercurrent of power in this story, born of genius, inspiration and feeling. It is sound and healthy to the core. It fills the soul of the reader full of electric lamps, by whose light many hidden truths are revealed. Read it, and you will be better for the reading.

When Will He Come?
EDITOR JOURNAL.—Will you please inform me when your correspondent, Mr. "More Anon," who is now absent from the city, on a visit to Mr. Bryan at Morehead, will return home. If it will not be too much to ask, will you at the same time kindly inform me when Mr. Bryan, who is now enjoying the seascapes and the constant companionship of Mr. "More Anon" at Morehead, will return to the city. It will be a great gratification to separate these modern representatives of Damon and Pythias, but one or the other of them, it makes no difference which, is needed here on present affairs of great moment.

As our correspondent, Mr. "More Anon," and "Mr. Bryan" are two distinct personages, our "X" correspondent may be mistaken as to the close intimacy between them. However, we cannot answer the question as to when either of these gentlemen will be in the city.—Ed. JOURNAL.

That Communication.

The late hour at which we obtained the proof of the communication concerning the stockholder's meeting at Morehead City, prevented us from extending a notice as we desired to give. Our attention has now been called to the fact that our correspondent misrepresented, doubtless unintentionally, the position of Mr. Simmons on the resolution introduced by him, which authorized the directors, if they thought it in the best interest of the A. & N. C. R. to subscribe in stock or bonds to the construction of the road authorized by the charter of the East Carolina Land and Railway Co. Mr. Simmons stated distinctly that he did not expect the resolution to pass as he introduced it, but he desired to have the matter discussed and after discussing it he very readily accepted Col. Hinadale's substitute which merely authorized the directors to inquire into the matter and report at a regular or called meeting.

Our correspondent is also in error when he says that Mr. Simmons stated that the East Carolina Land and Railway Company controls twenty miles of road-bed virtually ready for the ties. What he did say was that the charter of the East Carolina authorized the counties of Jones and Onslow to donate this twenty miles of graded road.

Mr. Simmons made no organized effort to get his resolution through, he had consulted no one who held any considerable vote. His sole object was to induce the stockholders to investigate the project, knowing that it was a very meritorious one.

Sea Breezes.

MOREHEAD CITY, July 9, 1887.

Yes, plenty of sea breezes! That's what folks come here for, but these are all wet! Leaky skies, leaky roof, dripping rooms with a tub here, a tin pan there, anything yonder, that will hold water! Oh, for our house in New Berne! What's the use of staying on these sand hills? Bah! But the sun is breaking thro' at last, and yesterday we gathered the "Sea-Breeze House" gallant bane, and dashed for the ocean breakers, and just reveled in the roaring surf.

But "Sea-Breezers" have some recuperative energies in adversity. We possess, among the many treasures, New Berne's happy grocer and humorist, and he has in his train a sympathetic lad. Just come into our parlor. Let the rain drive. What means that sheet stretched across the door? Ah, see! Shadow-phantoms. What a fishing scene. Hold him, little man. What is that you are catching? Now comes Jumbo, fresh from the Indian jungles. We did not know he had arrived—the JOURNAL is behind the times and made no announcement. Sandflies are bad, and sand-spurs worse—to bare-footed boys! But Jumbo understands the use of his amazingly active tail. What a switch! Many a tired matron might learn a lesson in domestic economy, promotive of household peace, from that extremity.

But here is a royal procession of the "Sea-Breeze" domestics. First, the Elephants, our extended cook; weight, say 250 lbs. more or less—ought not a cook always to be fat? Here follow her little imp—sprinklers might use a worse word. The procession rises in shadowy dignity as the nimble and fair dish-washers glide impressively across the scene, and we think of charming madamonnies, and so pass many amusing photographs. Everybody is useful as well as ornamental at the "Sea-Breezes." Our General Manager does not allow any other sort of being to domicile there, not even the "grocer."

Again, the magic lantern does service under charge of the "small boy." The friendly (?) rains have created a goodly chain of miniature lakes at our doors. Superior, Huron, Erie, &c. Young America speeds the crowning yacht across the shining surface, and old America—male and female—applauds. Under bare legs the boys and girls scud before the sweeping winds.

But we have music here in his throne, surely every frog has his own pond and his tuft of grass. Oh me! they do sing from the myriad lakes. No need of any Davis string band now. However Moreheadites know how to manage the orchestra. Two ingenious jokers, a little while ago, being without musical taste, paid some colored boys to rake up these merry musicians and fill a barrel with them. It was covered with cloth, labelled "TERRAPINS," and sent by freight up the road to an expectant agent at—station. How glad he was of the present. The train is off. Now for a good dinner. How the mouth waters off with the cover. Jerusalem! Whew! ha! ha! What a rush out of that barrel! A heavy kick, with the weight of disappointment, indignation, and the surrounding shout, sends it over, and chroniclers say the grandchildren of that freight are singing lullabies around that station yet. Morehead was still awhile, but is now vocal again, for curses come home to roost. The welkin rings with bass and treble, piping and roaring, meek and impudent voices. Somebody may expect a shipment of terrapins soon, if the sun does not take up these waters.

If you think, Mr. Editor, that there is any fancy about these hasty sketches, come and see us and we'll initiate you. There are about 125 visitors at the Atlantic Hotel, and others at the New Bern House and scattered through the city. As the weather clears up we expect the crowds of pleasure and health seekers to pour in their continuous stream. "Sea Breeze House" always full, a decidedly successful run, as is well known by—

Jacob Sharp Cannot Live.

NEW YORK, July 8.—The medical commission appointed to examine the condition of Jacob Sharp today, turned in its report to the district attorney, who refused to divulge its contents. It is known however that Sharp is suffering from such a combination of the cases that he cannot, under the most favorable circumstances, live more than a year or two, and may die any moment.

Can't Make Anything Like It.

I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons' Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the liver to action and at the same time aid instead of weakening the digestive and assimilative powers of the system.

No other remedy within my knowledge can fill its place.

RENOVATE YOUR Feathers!!

Old or New Feathers Thoroughly Dusted, Steamed, Dried, and Rendered Perfectly Odorless.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

It is well known that our feathers are cleaned, dusted, dried, and rendered perfectly odorless, and are then put into a new and improved process, which will continue in operation for a few weeks longer at New Berne, N. C. This machine has been used extensively for years past in all the Eastern and Western States and Canada, with the best results and most general satisfaction. Thousands of testimonials could be obtained, but we will give a few from those best known in our own State to be more acceptable.

TESTIMONIALS.

Goldsboro, N. C., 20th April, 1887.
Mr. George Hatcher, Dear Sir:—I give you pleasure to bear testimony to the excellence of the steam process for cleaning and renovating feathers. It renders beds, which are unpleasant and unwholesome in every respect as good as new. We are now using beds which were subjected to this process about seven years ago and they still retain their softness and odorous condition.

J. M. HILLIARY,
Rector St. Stephen's Church.

Goldsboro, N. C., April 23, 1887.
We have had work done by Messrs. Hatcher & Co., and we are satisfied that feathers renovated by their process is all they claim for it, and we will willingly recommend their work to the favorable consideration of every one.

T. W. SWANN,
Goldsboro, N. C., April 23, 1887.
Messrs. Hatcher & Co., Dear Sir:—The work done by you in renovating feather beds is perfectly satisfactory.

L. J. HARRIS,
Goldsboro, N. C., July 4, 1887.
Mr. Geo. Hatcher, Dear Sir:—The feathers that you cleaned and dried for me gave entire satisfaction, making them as good as new.

T. H. HEMAN,
Goldsboro, N. C., July 4, 1887.
It is not necessary to say anything of our work on your reference, and you are bound to please and give satisfaction. This is the best machine of the kind ever introduced in this State, and this will probably be the only opportunity offered to renovate your beds, which are so low that every one who owns them should take the chance to have their work done.

Work done for and delivered free of charge.

Feathers that were sent by express, or freight, will be added extra. No charge for drying or packing.
