It is evidently not the country be tween Wilmington and Onslow they wish to reach. That is, it is said, in the main poor and susceptible of but little development. It is the large and growing trade of Onslow they so much desire and love. They now have say about one third of this business, but they want it all. The construction of this road will secure it them except perhaps a small strip along the White Pemberton. oak river. They know the value of what they would gain and they know too the slender tenure by which they now hold what they already have. They are far too wise not to see that a short road of thirty-five miles run out them this coveted prize, and to make sure of it they propose to build a line about fifty miles, burden themselves with a debt of one hundred thousand dollars and an annual tax of six thousand dollars to pay the interest. All this notwithstanding they now have a heavy bonded debt.

Nobody thinks of asking the city of ing: Mrs. O.
