Judge J. A. Gilmer has awarded the contract to Davis, Wainman & Co., for the building of a $10,000 residence. The Judge's old residence will be torn down to make room for the continuation of North Elm street—Greenboro Cor. News and Observer.

The Judge's many friends in this section think he might deter building for the present as they wish him to occupy the mansion being erected in Raleigh for four years. While there the residence in Greenboro can be built.

Haywood White Sulphur Springs, WAYNESVILLE, N.C., 1897.

MR. EDITOR—After 41 months journey we reached here in good time to enjoy what might be called our portion of the land of the sky.

We are much pleased with the place and all of the surroundings. If you will look on the map of N. C. you will find the town of Waynesville is in Haywood county, about 32 miles from the Tennessee line situated on the Ducktown Division of the Western N. C. Railroad just one mile from the court house and the springs.

Here we find a beautiful lawn of about 50 acres densely studded by giant forest oaks, maples, etc., and covered with a carpet of greenest grass and completely surrounded by the great Blue Mountains with an altitude of 3000 feet above the tide water. It is upon the highest point in this lawn that we had a large brick building of 200 feet front and three stories high. The hotel fronts the east and also the highest ranges of mountains which extend from the 12 miles distance. The point noted of which are the Gold Mountain with an altitude of 3000 feet, Blackstone (with carriage road to top, 5800 feet), Cane Rock, Bald Knob and Great Divide 6125 feet.

In the range of 9 miles we had a great number of the highest mountains than in any other place in North Carolina. The adventures are trout fishing, pigeon shooting, mountain excursions, etc.

Among the guests here we had Chief Justice Smith and family from Ark., Col. Connor, ex State Senator with a party from N. C., Col. McClosky, general passenger agent of Atlantic & Charlotte, Air Line, Atlanta, Ga., Col. Stearns of Rockingham, with many other guests from the State and from Texas, Tennessee, Wisconsin, and in all about 200.

Among the ladies we find Mrs. Woodard, Mrs. Rountree and Mrs. Daniels of Wilson, Miss. Anna Hatfield, Mrs. Simpson and Mrs. McKimmons from Raleigh, Miss. Sallie Jones of Ala., Miss. Wylie from Ga., and Miss Smith from Ark., who is known here as the Arkansas Traveler.

We have not been here long enough to find out who the bellias, and are afraid to give an opinion as yet. Will let you know in our next.

Prof. Portis and his boys from Col. Davis's school furnish the music on all occasions.

While our train was puffing away in its efforts to climb the steep and rugged mountains over which we came on our journey, I could but wonder at and admire the great amount of vim and energy that the gentlemen must have possessed who undertook the construction of the road from Salisbury to Asheville and on to Ducktown, and I could but think how our old town would boom if we only had a few men of the same energy as these men.

When I think of the surrounding country and all of the rich lands which are adjacent to New Berne, and the many natural advantages which surround us, and then think of the dark shadows which seem to come over my energies in the veil of indolence and idleness, I can but cry aloud to all who wish to see old New Berne boom, to wake up! throw off your cloaks of idleness; put new springs in your every day life; learn to trust your neighbor and to think that other men are honest. Don't stand aloof from any enterprise that may seem good for our town but join in and give a helping hand, a word of cheer, and in heaven's name refrain from saying anything that is or might be construed as against it. Slack remarks can do no good and often they do harm.

I hope you may pardon me for this departure. It has been very rainy here for the past two weeks. Much trouble has been experienced in railroad circles on account of washouts. No. 494 has been delayed and the rain has hindered us from taking one of the mountain train trips as yet.

We expect to go to the head of Pigeon Lake one day this week, which is about 18 miles away on a fishing excursion. The mountain front are there in the greatest abundance and much fish is anticipated. It will be fun riding over the mountain roads in wagons with out springs—something on the order of the straw rides of New Berne, only there will not be so many in one wagon.

This town is dry, but it is said that to place a jug out upon the side of a hill, whistle and then leave for ten minutes, and then return and you will find the jug full of the pure "mountain pure." Just send Alph Wood up here and I think moonshiners will give it up.

The cry is, more boys. There are about four girls to each boy. I say boys, come up here, and you will have a good time. Mr. Edger says you are nearly as good as dead. When we shall take a dip of hot water, we will have the best of health and return to the best of health.

In the discussion, which Dr. Harts' paper chronicled, President Blatchley took a decided stand against the assertions that our schools were educating thinkers. He insisted that thinkers were made at home, and that the evils complained of were due more to improper home influences and corrupt influences of society, than from the want of wise instruction in the schools.

Their business booming: Probably no one thing has caused such a general revival of trade at N. C. as the drug stores as their giving away to their customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Their trade is simply enormous in this very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. Coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, croup, and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

Facing a verdict by starting a jury. Jurymen are better off in these times than in the good old days, when it was the law to endeavor to starve them into a verdict. It is had enough now to be put to loss of time and money, with little or inadequate recompense, without being starved or fined in the bargain. In the early part of the term of Henry VIII, Lord Chief Justice Keel tried an action, when on a verdict in which the jury were locked up, but before giving their verdict had eaten and drank, which they all confessed. This being reported to the Judge, he fined them each heavily and took their verdict.

In Henry VIII's sixth, Henry VIII, the case came up before the old court of the Queen's Bench on a writ of habeas corpus, the verdict being on the ground of impropriety of trial, the jury having eaten when they should have fasted, and to send the cases under the powerful administration of the case. The jury were told that they made up a verdict before the law before they were allowed to return into court with a verdict, and ending the Lord Chief Justice had the wit to see a way out of the dilemma when he might have been locked up with the rest. The jury was fined both the verdict and the case.

The "Driver" Reports a case is reported to the court, who retired to consider their verdict, and when they came back the ball returned the judge that some of them which he could not depose had seen feeding while locked up. Both bail and jury were sworn, and the pockets of the latter were examined, when it appeared that they all had about them "suppers" of which "some of them" confessed they had eaten, and the others said they had not. All were severely reprimanded, and those who had eaten were fined twelve shillings each, and those who had not eaten were fined six shillings each, for that they had them in their pockets.—All the Year Round.

Character Education. At a teachers' institute held some weeks since in Nashville, Rev. D. M. Harris read a paper on "Character the True end of Education," in which he was severely critical. The substance of his paper, as given in the Nashville American, is as below:

The Doctor thought it is the business of the teacher to train for real and not imaginary existence. The majority of those engaged in the work of teaching, think that it means mere pay; a better living; but they should teach more truth and honesty, and less geometry, Greek, etc. The elements of true character are more essential than the whole course of mathematics and languages. One of the elements of character is manliness, and the American youth needs more of it with courage and will-power, backed by the energy that defies opposition. Secondly, we should encourage more physical bravery and self-reliance, the outgrowths of manliness. Our teachers too often render assistance to pupils without giving them a chance to dig for themselves, and in this way make a lot of leeches, hangers-on and parasites; but rid ourselves of beggars, pest houses and gambling hells. Four fifths of the gamblers some from respectable families, who think their boys too good to work.

Honesty is again another essential element of character. That the country needs most at present open, frank and upright men, but there exist some schools whose purpose it seems to be to mould rogues, tricksters and dunces. Some teachers teach dishonesty by grading, thus favoring not from merit, but from likes and dislikes. In many of the schools the culture of the girls is like the powder put on their faces. It rubs off in the struggle of life. No virtue is more sadly wanting in our American life than self control, and the school room is the only place to successfully teach it, and not that they (the scholars) must stand at the head of their classes at the expense of their bodies, but teach them moderation.
