No Bonds.

The election held in Pamlico county on Thursday upon the question of issuing bonds to pay off the county's indebtedness resulted in the defeat of bonds by a large majority, so we are informed by Mr. Furbus who came up yesterday.

It is a little singular that questions of this sort fail to interest the people sufficiently to bring them to the polls. Nothing but the woods full of candidates can get the masses of the people to the ballot-box.

The Inter-State Farmers' Convention.
ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 19.—The convention has been a splendid one. North Carolina has been repeatedly complimented. Not only does the convention hold its second meeting at Raleigh, but the president and the secretary were chosen by acclamation from North Carolina. Col. L. L. Folk, of North Carolina, president and Mr. E. F. Hester, of Oxford, secretary. Begin to prepare for one of the largest and most important meetings ever held in the State.

Turning Under Pea Vines.

Appropos to the subject of green manuring, Messrs. E. M. Foscoe and L. A. Haywood, two good farmers of Jones county, say that pea vines are excellent manure but they never turn them under until the hogs have gone through them and gathered all the peas. In fact they don't turn them under until they are ready to prepare the land for planting. This is positive evidence that pea vines are good manure, but it does not prove the point that is now under discussion, not only in the columns of the JOURNAL but many other papers. If Messrs. Foscoe and Haywood had turned under a portion of their pea vines while green they could have definitely determined whether it pays or not. To induce farmers to experiment in matters of this kind, though it cost but little if anything, is a hard task, yet we know of nothing that would be of more practical benefit than practical experience on the farm. Three acres sown in peas after a wheat or oat crop, one to be turned under when the vines are just beginning to fruit, one when the peas are beginning to ripen and the other in the following spring just before planting time, it seems to us would settle the question as to the proper time to turn under this crop for manure.

The Railroad to Onslow.

Rumors about injunctions, mandamus, etc., seem to have little effect on the Wilmington, Onslow & East Carolina Railroad Company. They are going right ahead, with the seeming determination to complete the road before its opponents get through showing that it is an impossibility for them to undertake it. Yesterday the company closed the bargain for the purchase of one-half interest in the banks and hammock property at Wrightsville belonging to Mr. George Harris, and upon which they had secured the option, as mentioned in last Tuesday's Star.

The line from Wilmington to New river will be located within a week or two, with a branch to run from the main line to Wrightsville. It is asserted that inside of three months the contract for grading the entire line will be given out.

As regards the city subscription of $100,000 to the capital stock of the company, the friends of the road are confident that it will be sustained by the courts.—Wil. Star.

A Destructive Storm.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—A Lincoln, Nebraska, special gives particulars of a storm at Republican City, Nebraska, yesterday. Buildings were blown down and houses unroofed. A large brick school house, nearly completed, was wrecked and the carpenters were buried in the ruins. J. J. Fanning and man named Allen, of Alma, were killed and six others were seriously injured, two fatally. H. H. Wetherell's house was blown away and his wife and children badly hurt. Other houses were demolished and many persons were injured. Large hailstones fell during the storm.

The Value of an Engagement Ring.

The value of an engagement ring as a mark or seal of a promise of marriage has been decided by the Supreme Court of Missouri. In a case of breach of promise, which had been appealed to the Supreme Court, the defendant, the man, relied on the return to him of the engagement ring by the plaintiff to show that she considered the engagement terminated. Her testimony showed that she had resigned it under the pressure of defendant's taunts that he had become tired of her and loved another woman, whereat she was so much distressed that she gave up the ring without knowing what she did. The court held that the giving of the ring by the man was the seal of an engagement of marriage, and to extort its return through force or fraud operated much the same as an attempt to destroy or break any other contract by similar means. The court declares as follows:

"The giving up by the plaintiff of her engagement ring thus wrong from her by the action of the defendant is not to be tortured into an agreement to rescind the contract which the defendant had already refused to perform. By his own action he had left her no choice in the matter. There was nothing that she could do but accept the situation he made for her, abandon all hope of the marriage, give up the symbol of that hope and seek such compensation in damages as the law could give her for the injury she had suffered without fault on her part at the hands of the defendant."

The court affirmed judgment in favor of the plaintiff.

Wants to Hear From Us Again.

EDITOR JOURNAL.—The Goldsboro Article once favored its readers with an article advocating the connection of the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley Road with the Atlantic and North Carolina Road, which pleased its readers much. We would like to hear from it again on that subject. READER.

A Clear Complexion.

How can you expect a clear complexion when the blood is full of impurities and the stomach clogged? The blood becomes impure because the liver does not act properly and work off the poison from the system, and the certain results are blotches, pimples and eruptions. Purify the blood with Simmons' Liver Regulator, and regulate the liver, stomach and bowels, and then the skin will become clear.

THE FARMERS' CONVENTION.

SENATOR COLQUITT ON THE GOVERNMENT IN ITS RELATION TO AGRICULTURE.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 17.—The second day's session of the Interstate Farmer's Convention opened with President J. S. Newman in the chair. He delivered an address on "The Exact Objects a Farmer Should Seek to Accomplish and the Best Means of Accomplishing those Objects." An invitation was received from the Piedmont Exposition Company to visit and inspect the preparations for the exposition. The invitation was accepted with thanks.

The president of the convention then introduced to the audience United States Senator A. H. Colquitt, who made an eloquent address on "The Government in its Relation to Agriculture." Senator Colquitt said: "We have had for a number of years in the recent history of our country a class of politicians which I greatly regret, seems to be growing in number and influence. These men, by a singular perversion or confusion of judgment, have set up as an idol the creature in place of the Creator. The government, they would have us believe, was the source of power, the dispenser of benefits and the grand almoner, sharing out its gifts as well as its teachings of wisdom. This is the same old fraud of the monarch and despot that for thousands of years, while tapping the very heart's blood of the people, would have the people magnify and glorify the generous deed. With all the assumption that the imperialist school of politicians make for the government, in very truth that government at last is the most thorough-paced charity subject that lives. When we need money we cast a wistful eye on a treasure box that you have filled by your hard work and your generous contributions. When we talk of the power of the government, it is your right arm that support it. When you refer to the dignity and rank of the same government in the scale of nationality, all men who think can but know that this is only a reflected light from the essential and the concentrated virtue of the component parts of our Union. For all this it really seems that we are losing all faith in our own manhood, and are sliding back into a state of infantile wardship and dependence. We are losing our faith in man and natural laws, and are accepting rather a society that is buttressed upon official help and power. For my part I am for keeping absolutism shut up to the soil and climate where it belongs. I am disposed to indorse Mr. Beecher for once at any rate, when he says that a paternal government is an infernal government put a crown on it and it is a Czar. Farmers of the South, remember that while we fight against poverty and restricted resources for the family there is an evil greater even than poverty, and there is a glory far exceeding riches and all the pomp and power that can be made out of wealth. The greater evil is the loss of that conscience and integrity that is vital to a people's fame and true happiness, and the superior glory is that the public virtue is kept impregnable and resplendent in spite of all seductions." He then showed the relationship existing between the government and the farmer, and asked if the farmers had fair play. "Why should the man who spins cotton be a pet of the government, while the man who raises it should be the government's orphan or outcast. We have a right to demand a fair field and an even chance at least; we ask no more. I take pride in the independence of the farmer. But while the farmer bears his own burden, we have a right to denounce all attempts to handicap him by weight he should not carry. Let the agricultural department of the general government begin a system of such thorough and authoritative experimentation as shall command the respect of every intelligent and earnest-minded farmer in the land. If we have the men who can conduct this great work, encourage them by treatment the most liberal. If we in frankness might own that we are not in the command of such talent, then let us have it at any cost."

In concluding his remarks, Senator Colquitt said: "Tribulations may begin with the farmer, but they will assuredly reach all the rest in due time. The farmer is not prospering in the South as he deserves to do, or, perhaps, as he might do. Some of this hard fortune results, in my honest judgment, not, I will say, from the neglect of the government, but from downright imposition. Could you be allowed to sell where you could get the best price and buy where you could buy cheapest, your incomes, let them be great or small, would be enhanced perhaps thirty-three and one-third per cent. If the people who live by the soil in this region, and who have the power to control the question of revenue and taxation, do not care to shake off present burdens, then let us resort to the aid which each of our State governments can give us, with benefit to every business and individual in the land. Let us, through this instrumentality, come to the rescue of our agriculture by exposing old errors, discarding mistaken processes, discovering hidden truths, adopting and disseminating better methods, and thereby carry comfort and plenty into every farmhouse in the South, and make our section what nature meant it for—the paradise of the earth."

In the afternoon Hon. M. N. Burke, of Mississippi, read an essay on "All Cotton: Its Relation to the Present Condition of Agriculture." Mr. L. L. Folk, of North Carolina, chairman of the committee on organization, reported in favor of a permanent organization of this body, to include all the cotton States. A resolution to that effect was adopted.

Valuable discoveries of iron ore have been made near Waukon, Allamakee county, Iowa, and a company has been formed, with a capital of four million dollars, to operate and develop the same.

Senator Leland Stanford has filed his answer in the United States Court at San Francisco to the petition of the Pacific Railway commission to compel him to answer questions as to the use of money for the purpose of influencing legislation in connection with the Central Pacific Railway. He says he is unable to recall the details of the four hundred millions of business transacted by him for the company in twenty-five years, but denies that he has ever corrupted any member of Congress, or the Legislature, or any public official, or authorized any agent to do so. It is in regard to property with which the government has nothing to do that he has declined to answer. The repeal of the act of Congress may affect the bounties of the Central Pacific, but would not do away with the company. It owes its existence to the laws of California alone. The aim of the questions is the pursuit of personal enmity.

By the recommendation of Rev. C. C. Davis, I used Dr. Mosley's Lemon Elixir for a severe chronic case of indigestion, palpitation and irregular action of the heart with constipation and biliousness. I also suffered greatly with gravel and great pains in the back and kidneys, much of the time unable to stand alone. I was treated by many physicians and used many remedies, but got no relief.
