Mr. J. K. Willis shipped a large and handsome monument to Harlowe yesterday, to be placed to the memory of the late Rufus Bell.

Music in the air—anywhere within a block of the machine shop of Willis, Edwards & Co. and Crabtree & Co., where boilers are being constructed.

Luke Hill, col., who was sent to jail by Justice Hill some time since for failing to pay cost, was released yesterday, he having given bond for payment of cost.

In a full two-column "ad." O. Marks tells what he can do in the mercantile line. He says he has bought larger than ever and can supply customers in any quantity, either wholesale or retail.

An Ebon-hued South Front street barber yesterday morning nearly rivalled the fairest caucasian in color as he flew out of his shop just ahead of an easterly wash basin thrown at him by a customer who had been seized by a paroxysm of fit.

The brick walls of the new banking house of T. A. Green on Middle street are finished and covering the roof is now in operation. When completed this will be another handsome brick building to grace the business portion of our city.

The State Fair at Raleigh is nearing its end and a good exhibit is looked forward to. The rates over railroads have been made lower than ever before, and all who can avail themselves of the opportunity of spending a few days there should be sure and go.

On our second page will be found the proceedings of a meeting of the Produce Exchange of Wilmington. We copy it that our people may see what steps are being taken to head off a scheme we have been urging for the benefit of New Berne, Morehead City and this entire section.

The busy season is gradually arriving and before it is fully here it is to the interest of every man doing business to ask himself if he is doing all he can to better his trade; if he is striking in every direction to build up his business and better his condition. To do this there is no one way, but many. It is not always well to imitate and do as your neighbor does, or, some one else just say they do, or, some one else just say they do. Branch out in every direction, and plenty of it. Do not be afraid to try, and you will be surprised to find how much you can do.

A Post of Honor and Responsibility.
John S. Long, Esq., has been invited by the Faculty of the University of North Carolina to lecture before that institution, and deliver an address there in the month of November.

Ex-Sheriff Hahn has returned from New York with a batch of thirty fine horses, among which are some fine drivers, match teams, draft horses, &c., &c. He also brought a lot of elegant carriages and buggies and is ready to give a nice turnout in the livery business.

Onslow Railroad Matter Postponed.
A committee representing the citizens of New Berne had made arrangements to go to Jacksonville tomorrow to meet parties from Wilmington representing the Wilmington & Onslow Railroad, but a telegram from Wilmington yesterday informed them that the matter had been postponed for the present, and that a committee from New Berne would be received for a conference in Wilmington.

Personal.
Mr. Robert S. Primrose who has been studying medicine with doctors C. & F. Duffy, left yesterday morning for the University of Virginia to complete his course.

Miss Hannah Allen left for Wilmington yesterday morning on a visit to friends.

L. J. Moore, Esq., left yesterday morning for Greene Superior Court.

Clement Manly, Esq., left last night for Beaufort.

Value of a Local Paper.

We republish in another column an article from the Baltimore Manufacturer's Record concerning the value of a local paper. It is a timely article and one which we commend to the consideration of our New Berne readers. If the business of a town is judged by its local paper one would judge that there is comparatively little business done in New Berne. Of five or six hundred business places here only forty or fifty use the columns of their local paper to let the people know what they are doing.

Steamer Movements.

The Annie of the E. C. D. Line arrived yesterday morning. The Eagle of this line will arrive today. The Annie will sail Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The Trent arrived yesterday from Trenton and left in the evening for up Neuse with general freights.

The Carolina arrived from Bell's Ferry with cotton.

The Howard came down from Trenton with cotton.

The Newberne arrived last night from Norfolk to return Monday at 12 noon.

Discriminating.

It may be a matter of interest to the people of New Berne to know that cotton is shipped from Kinston to Norfolk for fifty cents per bale while seventy-five cents per bale is charged from Kinston to New Berne by the same line, although New Berne is two hundred miles nearer Kinston than Norfolk. By what rules, regulations or propriety such discrimination is justified, unless for the singular purpose of starving out New Berne as a cotton market, we are unable to discover.

New Berne should demand that the "long and short haul clause" of the interstate commerce bill be enforced. Fifty cents per bale to carry a bale of cotton 285 miles; seventy-five cents per bale for carrying it 45 miles! It is high time the people of New Berne were beginning to look after their interest.

New Berne Building and Loan Association.

This institution has been chartered and organized mainly with a view of promoting the prosperity of the city, and to aid persons otherwise unable to do so to procure homes for themselves and families. As an investment, experience shows that these associations are very good—better than savings banks—and are desirable custodians of the earnings of those who wish to lay aside small amounts, for their future support and comfort.

The undersigned officers and directors wish to urge upon all who can do so to take shares in this enterprise and increase the volume of its receipts in order that a corresponding increase of benefits may be experienced by the community. They assure all who entrust their funds to the keeping of the association that they shall have the careful attention of each and every member.

L. H. CUTLER, President.
Directors.—S. H. Gray, Thos. Daniels, J. H. Hackburn, O. Marks, Thos. McCarthy, C. E. Foy, G. H. Roberts, W. M. Watson.

The Onslow Railroad.

The President of the Wilmington, Onslow & East Carolina Railroad Company yesterday sent a communication to the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen, requesting the committee to meet at once for conference, with the view of preparing for the delivery of the $100,000 of city bonds, in trust, as directed under the order of the Board of Aldermen at their last regular meeting.—Wilmington Star.

Genesis and Geology—What is Said of It.

The Schoolteacher says: This extremely interesting and instructive volume of about 150 pages, contains five lectures recently delivered in Raleigh, Baltimore, Philadelphia and elsewhere, and shows in a striking and conclusive way, the harmony existing between the Mosaic and Geological accounts of Creation. God has given to mankind two great Books, the Book of Nature, and the Book of Revelation, and Dr. Hughes, believing that God's truth must stand whether revealed in the rock or in the book, places the records side by side, turns a leaf of one and then of the other and reads to us, in minutest detail, the same story from both.

The book is neatly bound and the print and illustrations are good. On one page is given an ideal scene, in the Mesozoic Age, drawn for the author by Mr. Collier Cobb, in which is portrayed the animal and vegetable life of the time. Of more than general interest to us is the picture of the Dromatherium Sylvester, the only mammal known to have existed in America during the Mesozoic Age, and the remains of which have not been found outside the limits of North Carolina.

The book shows careful study and ripe scholarship, and is the most satisfactory of anything we have seen upon the subject. The leading ministers of North Carolina, Baltimore and Philadelphia, together with the President and Professors of the University, give strong endorsements of the work, and we congratulate the author upon his success.

The Value of Good Local Papers.

One of the brightest and best of our Southern exchanges coming from a small town is the Gold Leaf, of Henderson, N. C. Like all other good papers, it is doing ten times, yes a hundred times, as much for its town as the town will ever do for it. And yet from its last issue we see that it is still printed on an old time hand press, and that with two objects in view, one to do still more good for the town, and the other to aid in securing money for the purchase of a new press, the editor announces that he will get out a special issue, showing up the advantages and the business interests of that town. He promises to make it a splendid advertisement to let the world know what Henderson has and what it is doing, and only asks for the encouragement of the business men of the town. Surely this will be liberally given, or we are mistaken in the character of Henderson's people. The Manufacturers' Record has often urged upon Southern people the importance of giving a liberal support to their local papers, and we use this case to enforce this point once more. There is no better investment that the people of any live town can make than to secure first-class live papers by heartily encouraging their publishers with business. A town is judged by its papers, and few outsiders will ever be drawn to a town where the local papers show, by the lack of well filled advertising columns, the want of energy of the people of that place.

Southern papers are doing a great work for their country. In its development they are taking the lead and they are exerting such a mighty force for the uplifting of the people by steadily and persistently fighting for the right and striving to encourage all classes to unite in pushing on the great progress of that section as to attract universal attention. Free to a large extent from sensational trash and particular of all the latest scandals, the press of the South have bent their whole energy since 1865 to improve the material interests of that section. They have sowed, but others have reaped the profits. Certainly, with the improving financial condition of the South, the time has come when every well edited and well managed Southern paper should have its columns well filled with local advertisements at good prices. Let special issues teeming with good descriptions of towns and filled with advertisements of every business house be scattered all over the North and West this winter, and good results will as surely follow as that harvest follows the seed time. But this costs money, and this money must be furnished by the real estate owners and agents, merchants, professional men, and, in fact, by every one interested in the prosperity of their section.—Baltimore Manufacturers' Record.

Death of Nathan A. Stedman, Esq.

Full of years, held in high esteem where best known, and loved by his friends and relatives, Nathan Alex. Anderson Stedman died at his home at Fayetteville on Thursday, 29th of September, 1887, at 4 o'clock a. m. He was born at Pittsboro, Chatham county, and was 81 years old last February. He was elected to the Legislature in 1827, when but 21 years old. He was again elected in 1832, and in 1833. For many years he was Clerk of the County Court of Chatham. He served as Comptroller of the State for two years, being elected by a Democratic Legislature although himself a very decided Whig. He was an intimate friend of the late Governor Manly, Hon. Hugh Waddell and other prominent men of their day. At the time he resided in Raleigh as Comptroller he had probably a more general acquaintance throughout the State than any man then living. In his prime he was a grand specimen of physical manhood. He was a man of the highest integrity and strictest veracity. He was frank, perpetual, decided, brave, without guile and without hypocrisy. He had that sort of magnetism that drew men to him and held them faithful to the end. He was as true as steel to those he called friends, and his liberality was as open as day and as free as water. He married Euphania W. White, founder of the Southern Literary Messenger. She survives him, as do also his two sons, Lieut. Gov. Stedman and Frank H. Stedman, and two daughters. He was a North Carolinian, and when he took an active part in politics was influential and popular. He resided in Chatham until about 1851, when he removed to Fayetteville. From that time until his death he lived at his last home. He rarely left Fayetteville except to pay an occasional visit to Wilmington. He was a man of excellent sense and sterling qualities, and in his death the State loses a valuable citizen, a true patriot and an honest man.—Wilmington Star.

EDITOR JOURNAL.—Allow me space in your valuable paper to say to the editor of Golden Rule to learn journalism before he begins to censure men, be their birth humble or laudable, for whilst he may dip his pen to write the names of men with regard to censure their principles, they know also that fairness in the right is the motto of the owl, and a finger's touch in trap mineral water is a sure cure for the eyes. For better information apply to the rule.

Seeing therefore an article in last week's issue collecting the dignity and honor of Prof. I. H. Smith of this city, which article only met the approval of the little "owl" who, desirous of being known, thought that he would bark and let the people know that he is yet alive, but will die soon if something is not given him. Mr. Smith did not consider the article, knowing that it was from the little "owl" which is subject of doing anything that tends to impede one's progress. But I can say to him, that he may as well try to grasp the tail of a comet as to impede Prof. Smith's progress. Newspapers may abuse him, politicians may intrigue against him, but his God-given intellect cannot be crushed by any of the canine species or mud slinger, for heaven has marked his pathway and angels cannot clog it, and reason the great masterpiece of the mind says amen, and in the language of the Frenchman "songez y serieusement."

NOTE.—Be suspicious of persons who recommend any other article as "just as good," and take nothing else but Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

A party paid ten dollars for a horse at an auction sale. The horse was lame and bruised all over. A bottle of Salvation Oil costing 25 cents was used, he is now valued at two hundred dollars.

DIED.

At his residence in Pitt county on Saturday morning, Oct. 1st, 1887 at 12:20, Jacob McOttter, aged about 77 years.

At his home in this city of old age, Saturday morning Oct. 1st, at 4 o'clock, Mr. Louis Brown, at the age of 84 years.

The funeral will take place at Neuse street M. E. Church, this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Friends and acquaintances are respectfully invited to attend. Mr. Brown has been a constant member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for many years and passed away quietly with the assurance of being at rest that awaiteth the people of God. He leaves two daughters and several grandchildren to mourn their loss. But their loss is his eternal gain.
